Tories eyeing UIC cuts

Only 'basic essentials', secret paper shows

TORONTO (CP) — The federal government is considering sharp reductions in benefits to the unemployed, according the the Toronto Star.

The paper quotes a confidential government document which it says indicates that benefits will be reduced to cover only the basic living essentials for the jobless.

The government also is considering whether seasonal workers and those out of work because of sickness or pregnancy should be allowed to continue collecting unemployment insurance benefits, The Star says.

It says the concept of universal coverage is being reviewed and that Paul McCrossan, Progressive Conservative MP for York-Scarborough, has been assigned by Employment Minister Ron Atkey to draw up a report.

"We're paying out about $500 million a year to people who quit their jobs," The Star quotes McCrossan, an actuary, as saying. "Giving them full benefits is like paying an arsonist to burn down his own house."

The Conservative government wants to improve the insurance features of the plan, simplify it where possible, eliminate inequities and make it more cost-effective, McCrossan is quoted as saying.

The Star quotes the government document as saying that despite amendments, introduced by the previous Liberal governnment intended to contain the expansion of the program, "fundamental concerns remain about the objectives and design of the program."

It quotes McCrossan as saying: "We want to shift away from paying people not to work, and divert money to job creation and paying people to work."

25—METRE—LONG PROBLEM faces California authorities who have to find way to dispose of rotting carcass of massive blue whale that was found on Pescadero Beach. Marine biologists say whales sometimes beach themselves when unable to cope with the ocean environment any more. This whale, seen here on its back, is member of largest species of mammal that ever lived.

Attention he got . . . plus

Victoria lawyer Ellis Achtem hoped his advertisement would be an attention-getter and it was — but more than he expected.

The ad attracted the attention of applicants, an association of legal secretaries, and the provincial human rights branch.

The city law firm, Achtem and Achtem, needed to replace two long-time secretaries who quit to have babies, and after two months of searching, using agencies and other means, the firm ran a classified ad noting that "termination of gestation periods" had resulted in two vacancies, and suggested that a "knowledge of birth control devices helpful but not essential" to applicants.

Achtem said today his firm received nearly 100 telephone calls and quickly filled not only the two vacancies but also hired a third secretary, a grandmother from Vancouver who was amused by the ad.

Only about half a dozen calls were critical, he said.

Three official complaints have been lodged with the human rights branch, including one by the Victoria Legal Secretaries Association.

Association secretary Roberta White said her group is concerned that the ad discriminated against male secretaries.

She said the association also wrote Achtem asking for a letter of apology and for an apology in the classified section of the Times and Colonist.

"We found the advertisement offensive, in particular the last line which indicates that a knowledge of birth control is helpful but not essential. That more or less indicates that is a qualification for employment, and when it comes to any sort of employment, you can't indicate anything like that."

A spokesman for the human rights branch said an investigation is being conducted, but refused further comment.

Achtem said he had spent three hours with a human rights officer who indicated that the ad was in bad taste but not contrary to the provincial Human Rights Code because "the Human Rights Code does not legislate against bad taste."

Achtem said the ad was not meant to be offensive but certainly produced results.

"We were inundated with phone calls and humorous letters. Of course there were a few expressing displeasure."

Achtem said he is sorry it offended "some of the ladies," because "the last thing I want is lady secretaries picketing my office."

He said the ad weeded out those without a sense of humor which is an asset because "we have a young and friendly place here."

The lawyer said he is prepared to apologize to anyone who found the ad offensive but will not do so in an advertisement.

"It would only add to the notoriety," he said.

Dief funeral tab totals $485,000

By JIM ROBB
FP News Service

OTTAWA — The cost of former Prime Minister John Diefenbaker's funeral was pegged at $485,000 Friday by a federal official.

Officials of the Secretary of State's department, who were responsible for funeral arrangements and are now getting the bills, say only that they will cost somewhere between $200,000 and $500,000.

The Diefenbaker ceremony was the most expensive state funeral in Canada's history. The cost escalated because of the $100,000 or more spent on the special train that carried Diefenbaker's body, official mourners, and members of the press to Saskatoon for the interment ceremony.

In 1972, only $15,000 was spent on the funeral of former Prime Minister Lester Pearson, a Secretary of State official said.

In 1973, the funeral of former Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent cost $32,500. A special horsedrawn hearse had to be refurbished for the funeral in Quebec City, pushing the cost up.

In 1967, $14,000 was spent on the state funeral for Governor General Georges Vanier.

Gen. Vanier was buried in the Citadel in Quebec City and $8,000 of the cost went to the special train that carried the body to the provincial capital.

Many hidden costs involved in the conduct of such solemn ceremonies cannot be determined.

One source claimed that Via Rail cannibalized every major passenger train to get the best cars for the special Diefenbaker train.

Rising interest rates given another push

Canadians face record interest rates next week following a decision by the Bank of Canada Friday night to raise its rate half a point to 12.25 per cent.

This is expected to push the prime lending rate of Canada's private banks to a record 13 per cent and will, in turn, increase the cost of all other short-term loans.

There would also be pressure on the mortgage interest rate, which is currently 11.75 per cent in Victoria. It could go above 12 per cent for only the second time in Victoria's history.

Ken Travers, Victoria manager for the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, said the anticipated increase in the prime lending rate to 13 per cent is necessary to match a similar half-point hike, to the range of 12.5 to 12.75, in the U.S.

Unless Canadian rates are higher, money will flow out of Canada and the dollar will be in further trouble, Travers said.

"These rate increases are mainly designed to protect the dollar. There are other factors but that is the main one. The dollar must be protected."

As a result, all short-term interest rates are virtually certain to increase next week.

"It is too early to tell what will happen to the mortgage rate. It is influenced more by long-term rates," Travers said.

However, this year is the first time the mortgage rate has been below the prime bank rate. When and if the prime bank rate goes to 13 per cent next week, the mortgage rate would be a record 1.25 percentage points below it.

"We are exploring new territory by having the mortgage rate below the prime." Travers said. "This makes forecasting very difficult."

The only thing certain, he said, is that interest rates in Canada must follow those in the U.S. or the dollar will collapse.

Lower interest rates will come to Canada when the rates fall in the United States. Interest rates are rising south of the border to cool off the rate of inflation caused by increases in oil prices.

In Ottawa, Finance Minister John Crosbie said he is unhappy with the Bank of Canada's action but said the new Conservative government is in no position to criticize its bank.

"It is not a question of government policy but a question of the economic state left to us by the previ-

$100,000 nugget found

SYDNEY (UPI) — Two of the new electronic prospectors for gold in Australia have hit it big, finding a 13-pound nugget worth more than $100,000, reports in Sydney said today.

The two Australians, Peter Culverson, 40, an orchard farmer, and Don Peters, 50, a sheep farmer, said they found the nugget by using a metal detector last Sunday at Hill End about 160 kilometres northwest of Sydney.

They refused to disclose exactly where they found the gold beyond saying it was south of Hill End, but admitted their "treasure" is already resting in a bank vault.

Their find, in eastern Australia, came at a time when hundreds of people, most lugging metal detectors, were rushing to the opposite end of the country, to the Western Australia town of Cue, 650 kilometres northeast of Perth.

Reports from Cue told of amateur prospectors hitting pay dirt in the desert terrain. One tourist found a 22-ounce nugget Thursday estimated to be worth $7,000.

Buck's back!

On Monday, the daring exploits of Buck Rogers, the world's best-known space traveller will be chronicled in the comic pages of the Victoria Times.

The first of its kind, Buck Rogers continues to set the standard for all science fiction strips, as it did 50 years ago when it first appeared in newspapers throughout the world.

Part of Buck Rogers great attraction has always been the never ending series of fantastic discoveries and inventions. Self-developing photos, satellites, even nuclear plants, were part of the Buck Rogers' world long before science proved them possible. And today's readers will be introduced to a whole new world of marvellous inventions.

The major new element in Buck Rogers as written by Jim Lawrence and illustrated by Gray Morrow will be liberal doses of humor, something that was missing from the original.

Cossitt blasts slack security

By JIM ROBB
FP News Service

OTTAWA — A national security time bomb could be ticking away in Canada's parliament buildings, Tom Cossitt, Conservative member of Parliament for Leeds-Grenville, said Friday.

Cossitt revealed that few if any of the 3,000 staff members who work on Parliament hill have been screened when hired, for criminal records or subversive connections.

The MP said in an interview that his information came from a reliable source. He refused to identify the individual.

"The potential for a security breach has existed for many years," Cossitt said.

"Many men and women on the staff of parliament have access, or could easily gain access, to ministers' offices where secret cabinet documents are often filed."

Federal public servants, as distinct from parliament's staff, with access to restricted government information are given a security screening by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police when they are first hired or when promoted into a position that gives them access to confidential material.

A security expert said Friday he considered the RCMP screening to be rudimentary and of little real value in actually exposing individuals who would pose a threat to national security.

Cossitt, however, criticized parliamentary authories for failing to take even that elementary step to tighten security.

The 1969 Mackenzie Royal Commission on national security called for criminal and subversives records check of everyone hired by the federal government.

The recommendation was turned down by the Liberal administration.

New jet set . . . mean, violent

By GEORGE FRANK
Los Angeles Times

Flight attendants — once able to comfort nervous passengers with a smile and a drink — say they are now catching flak from a new and angry breed of air travellers.

The anger, they say, has been building for years. It shows itself in verbal abuse, interference with flight attendants' duties, and outright physical attacks.

Such is the growing concern about such abuse that one union is taking assault cases to court, seeking civil penalties against passengers who assault flight attendants.

"Why should they get beat up?" asks attorney Evans North. "Look, the price of a ticket doesn't give anybody the licence to abuse a flight attendant's body."

For example:

— Vacationers on a flight to Honolulu watched in dismay as a passenger choked a male flight attendant. The incident occurred after the passenger forcefully pinned a female flight attendant against the cabin wall while attempting to kiss her and the male attendant came to her aid.

— On a Braniff International Airways trans-Atlantic flight on June 25, an intoxicated passenger grabbed a flight attendant. She broke away from his grasp. When the flight landed in England the man was arrested by police and fined $100 for being intoxicated.

— On an Eastern Airlines from Atlanta to Hartford, Conn., a passenger became upset with the flight attendant and threw a cup of hot tea on her. She suffered first-degree burns on her stomach.

— On an American Airlines flight between Boston and Detroit, a well-known baseball player became uncontrollable. He intimidated several flight attendants and disrupted the flight. He was fined $500.

— On a flight between Brazil and New York in 1978, a woman became intoxicated and was refused additional liquor. She began chasing flight attendants up and down the aisle, spitting in their faces and calling them "pigs." She calmed down only after the co-pilot threatened to handcuff her to the seat.

These are a few of the accounts in reports being received by the Federal Aviation Administration, flight attendant unions and attorneys representing cabin crew members.

"It isn't funny," said one San Diego-based flight attendant who asked not to be identified. "It used to be that passengers were demanding, now they are getting mean."

Leadership fight splits ferry union executive

VANCOUVER (CP) — A leadership squabble in the ranks of the British Columbia Ferry and Marine Workers Union has left it heading for a reef during stormy contract negotiations with the B.C. Ferries Corp.

Union sources say the executive is split into two camps with one faction encouraging job action against the government corporation behind the other side's back.

Both high-level and rank-and-file sources, who declined to be identified, said union business agent Matt Brown is attempting to take control of the union from president Shirley Mathieson.

Moderates recalled Thursday that Brown backed a proposal during the union's last convention for a full-time union co-ordinator, a position he filled temporarily at the time. The proposal was rejected by delegates who said it would give one man too much power.

Brown has refused to comment on the charges.

Mrs. Mathieson acknowledged in a news release Friday that there are differences of opinion in the union but said the leadership is united in its efforts to achieve an agreement.

"We would like to reassure the membership and the public that these differences have in no way affected negotiations," the release said. "It is understandable that almost five months of negotiations is having a frustrating effect on the membership."

There are also political overtones in the split among members and the executive of the union which covers 2,600 workers.

Moderates blame left-wing extremists for stirring up trouble within the ranks and encouraging members of the Marxist-Leninist Organization of Canada In Struggle to hand out anti-establishment leaflets at ferry terminals.

"The whole thing is getting ready to blow apart," said one union officer who supports Mrs. Mathieson, an opponent of disruptions such as the wildcat walkouts which shut down three terminals for half of Thursday.

"It won't happen until after we get a contract but when it does, the pieces will all land in the lap of John Fryer."

Fryer is general secretary of the B.C. Government Employees Union, which has more than 40,000 members.

Union sources said most members have been so concerned about getting the contract settled they have been blind to the power plays going on around them.

"The trouble is there are so many outside forces you can't always see where they are coming from," said one worker.

The union executive said the strikes, which halted service between Nanaimo and Horseshoe Bay, northwest of here, and between Langdale and Bowen Island, were not authorized by the union.

The job action came one day before industrial inquiry commissioner Clive McKee began meetings with both sides. On Friday, he said the first formal talks will take place today under a news blackout.

The moderates said Thursday's strike actually came a day late. It was supposed to happen Wednesday after McKee was appointed but the man in charge of supplying the picket signs slept in.

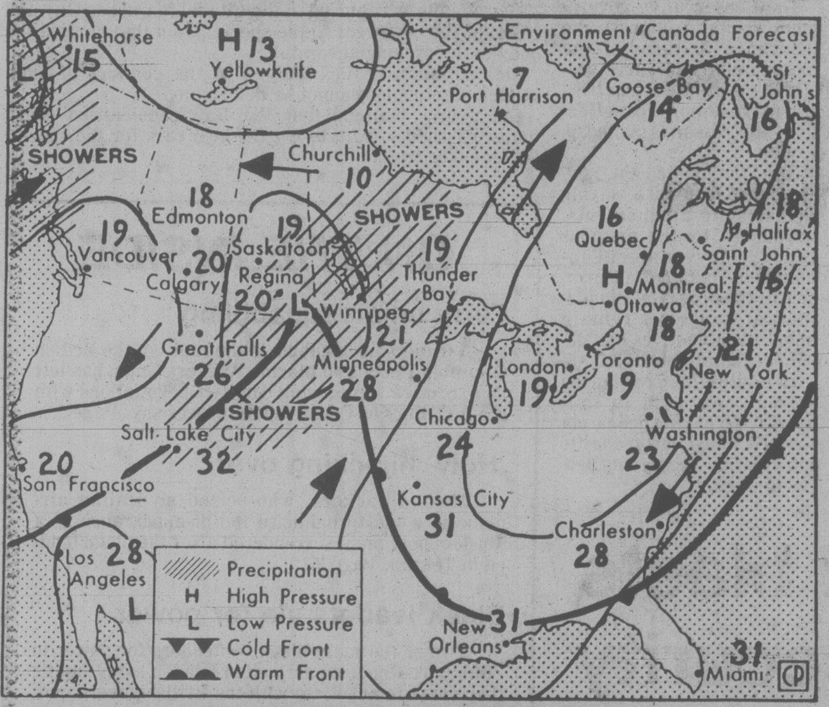
Some cheap seats

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Civil Aeronautics Board, which last week rejected low air fares proposed by Air Canada, said Friday it will permit the airline to accommodate passengers with tickets for flights between Oct. 5 and 11.

The CAB said it is acting to alleviate hardships for passengers who might not be able to make other travel arrangements.

Air Canada sold some tickets at the low fares before the CAB acted on its application for permission to do so.

The Weather



Map valid until noon Sunday

A vigorous low pressure system is presently northwest of Vancouver Island. The system has swept cool moist, unstable Pacific air across the province. The disturbance will slowly drift north but the cool moist unsettled air will persist over the province for the next several days. Overnight, numerous showers were reported along the coast and a few i the interior. Over the weekend skies are expected to remain rather cloudy with showers and the odd thundershower.

Ottawa prescribes cut in doctor's dispensing

VANCOUVER (CP) — A Vancouver doctor who prescribed morphine for a heroin addict has had his right to dispense narcotics limited by the federal government.

Dr. R. G. Schulze said Friday the bureau of dangerous drugs has notified him that all British Columbia pharmacies are being advised not to fill any of his prescriptions for injectable narcotics.

The bureau also advised the College of Physicians and Surgeons of B.C. of its action.

Schulze said that since he admitted last month he was treating an addict with a morphine maintenance program his patients have been harassed by police and druggists have boycotted him.

However, he said he has been providing a number of other addicts with morphine.

Schulze said persons identifying themselves as policemen have accosted patients outside his office and questioned them about their visits.

Bandits give up

ADAMSVILLE, Que. (CP) — Two bandits who held as many as nine people hostage for two days in a credit union here gave themselves up to police today and released the four remaining male hostages unharmed, police said.

Quebec provincial police spokesman Pierre LeMarbre said the two hostage-takers Gilles Gilbert, 26, and Fred Ladrew, 19, were being rushed to provincial police headquarters in Montreal for questioning.

Jean Seberg vanishes from Paris apartment

Actress Seberg before disappearance

Parisian authorities said today they had no clues in the disappearance of American actress Jean Seberg, who has not been seen since she drove away from her apartment 10 days ago wearing only a blanket and carrying a supply of barbituates.

Friends of the 40-year-old blonde actress said she recently has suffered from bouts of depression. "We have no indication that Miss Seberg is in danger or that she is being held somewhere against her will," one investigator said. "But we have no idea where she is."

Peter Ustinov, starring in King Lear at the Stratford Festival, took on a new role Friday, putting up posters promoting a benefit performance of Love's Labour's Lost to be held Sept. 14 to raise funds to help Southeast Asian refugees settling in Canada.

Sen. Edward Kennedy will decide by Thanksgiving whether or not to run for the presidency, the Boston Globe reported today. The newspaper said Kennedy told two New York Democratic leaders he will make up his mind about a presidential candidacy in November and publicly announce his decision.

The 18-year-old son of the exiled Shah of Iran was to be among 450 freshman entering Williams College today, director of admissions Philip Smith said. Prince Reca Pahlavi, who has spent the past year in Lubbock, Tex., was one of three overseas applicants accepted as full-time students.

Municipal police in Lachute, Que. have a problem tenant and they don't really know what to do with him.

A former patient at a mental hospital has been living in the police station for the last month and a half because the hospital has declared him fit to be released and he doesn't have anywhere else to go.

"We didn't know where to send him," said Constable Jean-Charles Fillion. The 48-year-old man, called Ben, was committed to the hospital for about two weeks. The trailer that had served as his home had been seized by a public trustee when he returned and police say landlords refuse to rent to him because he's too noisy. Fillion said police are also bothered — sometimes at 5 a.m. — when Ben begins playing his guitar, harmonica, violin or mandolin. Fillion said Ben had been a well-known logger, but over the last five or six years his mental health deteriorated and occasionally he suffers noisy "attacks of exuberance." He said the police have tried to get help for Ben, but so far have had no success.

A 49-year-old prison guard shot while grappling with an escaping convict is to receive Canada's highest award for bravery later this month. Gaston Langelier will be presented with the Cross of Valor by Gov.-Gen. Edward Schreyer in a ceremony at Government House Sept. 21. Langelier was shot twice in the head and once in the arm during an unsuccessful escape attempt by four inmates of maximum-security Laval Institute in July, 1978.

And finally, Disco diva Grace Jones is great with child — a pregnancy that has cost her half-a-million dollars in cancelled bookings — but there are compensations. Debbie Harry of the rock group Blondie, Glenn O'Brien of Interview magazine and fashion artist Antonio will host the world's first disco baby shower Sept. 24 on her behalf at New York's Paradise Garage. Grace isn't identifying the father — says only that "it's a fan's baby."

'Blobs' baffle boffins

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Two mysterious blobs found by a woman in her front lawn look like "chocolate pudding with BBs in it." They are defying analysis by scientists at the Johnson Space Centre.

The blobs, found last month, are purplish in color, about the size of a soup dish and contain crumbled bits of lead, said NASA spokesman Paul Redmond.

"We don't what it is at this point, but it is not radioactive," he said Friday. "It could be from space."

The mysterious hunks of jelly first turned up Aug. 10 in front of Sybil Christian's house in Frisco, a community north of Dallas, after a severe electrical storm.

"I punched one with a stick and it went in real easy," she said. "The inside seemed to be melted and it looked just like whipped cream, only it was deep rose in color."

'Holy' hijacking over

TEHRAN (CP) — Three hijackers, who seized an Italian airplane in a bid to publicize the disappearance of a Moslem holy man, surrendered after the plane landed in this Iranian capital today.

Iranian authorities, who had agreed to welcome the hijackers, refused permission for the Alitalia Italian DC-8 airliner they seized Friday to be refuelled.

But Interior Minister Hashem Sabaghian said a communique issued by the hijackers on the disappearance of Shiite spiritual leader Imam Musa Sadr a year ago will be read on Iranian state radio and television.

Sabaghian said the three hijackers, who took over the plane after it left Beirut on a stopover between Tehran and Rome, will be taken to an Islamic republic jail.

The plane arrived here from Rome with the three hijackers and 11 hostages on board.

Negotiations took place today between the interior minister, Deputy Premier Sadeq Tabatabai and one of the hijackers in the VIP Lounge of Tehran's Mehrabad Airport.

The bearded hijacker gave a victory-sign to reporters as he was driven to the airport building.

Sabaghian said the three men were armed with pistols.

The crew left the aircraft at the same time that the hijackers were detained.

The DC-8 was parked at the end of the runway and the airport was closed while negotiations went on.

The plane and the hostages were expected to return to Rome later today, an Alitalia spokesman said in Rome.

Before leaving Italy Friday night, the hijackers, identified as Lebanese members of the Shiite Moslem sect, said they would surrender to Khomeini's Shiite Moslem regime in Iran.

The plane left Italy after 12½ hours of tense negotiations between the hijackers and Italian authorities that led to the release of 174 of the plane's 175 passengers. One passenger stayed aboard voluntarily, along with 10 Alitalia crew members.

The gunmen seized the Alitalia DC-8 jet Friday morning after the Tehran-to-Rome flight stopped in Beirut, Lebanon. They released most of the passengers shortly after arrival in Rome, and allowed the remaining 35 to disembark as the plane's engines were warming up for take-off.

Passenger Robert Saliba remained aboard to help translate during negotiations with the Arabic-speaking gunmen.

Illegal pickets

It's high time that companies afflicted by the illegal picketing that accompanies so many of today's labor disputes pursued the matter in the courts.

Labor's strongest weapon is the picket. A person carrying a sign has the power to halt just about any endeavor undertaken by private or public enterprises.

In most disputes labor acts responsibly. During legal strikes it has wide power under the Labor Code not only to picket the employer but also to picket any place where the employer operates as long as another collective agreement isn't in force.

However, in many disputes some union members have a habit of using the picket as an illegal weapon. For example, two MacMillan Bloedel mills recently had to shut down for a day because of picketing by people on strike against one of the company's eastern affiliates. And just yesterday a few B.C. ferry employees picketed the Horseshoe Bay terminal and disrupted ferry service for several hours.

In both cases, and many like them, the company dutifully headed for the B.C. Labor Relations Board to seek a cease and desist order to halt the picketing. The union members, nine times out of ten, withdraw the pickets before or shortly after the order is issued.

By the time the order is given, a day or two may have passed. But in the interval, an employer can lose significant amounts of production. In other cases, the public can be seriously inconvenienced.

There are provisions under the Labor Code of British Columbia for an employer to take action. One section allows a court to award damages if the labor board has determined the conduct to be in contravention of the section of the act dealing with lockouts, strikes and pickets. A cease and desist order wouldn't have been issued if the action hadn't been deemed to be in contravention.

Before this type of action can be initiated the board must give its written consent.

Yet very few companies pursue the issue of illegal pickets beyond the cease and desist order. Perhaps it is not worth the legal expense or perhaps it not worth the risk of worsening already tenuous managment-labor relations.

But until companies begin to use legal avenues to recover damages from illegal strikes and pickets, there is little reason for unions to put a halt to the practice.

Whose ox?

In the It-All-Depends-Whose-Ox-Is-Being-Gored department comes a story from this week's convention of the Union of B.C. Municipalities.

It seems the delegates were asked to approve a resolution asking the provincial government to draw up regulations governing store openings on Sundays. A North Vancouver alderman pointed out, quite rightly, that merchants need some clear rules on the subject to prevent the sort of silliness that comes when Vancouver doesn't allow any Sunday store openings at all while Richmond, just across the river, allows unlimited Sunday opening.

The delegates rejected the resolution overwhelmingly. Several spoke emotionally of their opposition to any further government regulation in business affairs.

"If you don't believe in Sunday shopping, then don't shop, but don't ask the government to regulate it," said an alderman from Maple Ridge.

Fair enough. The delegates were, however, then asked to consider a second resolution that would not have the provincial government regulate store hours itself but rather would give the municipalities the power to do it.

And the delegates passed that resolution.

Presumably the regulation of Sunday shopping is unacceptable government interference in commerce when the provincial government does it, but reasonable maintenance of community standards when a local council does it.

Oh.

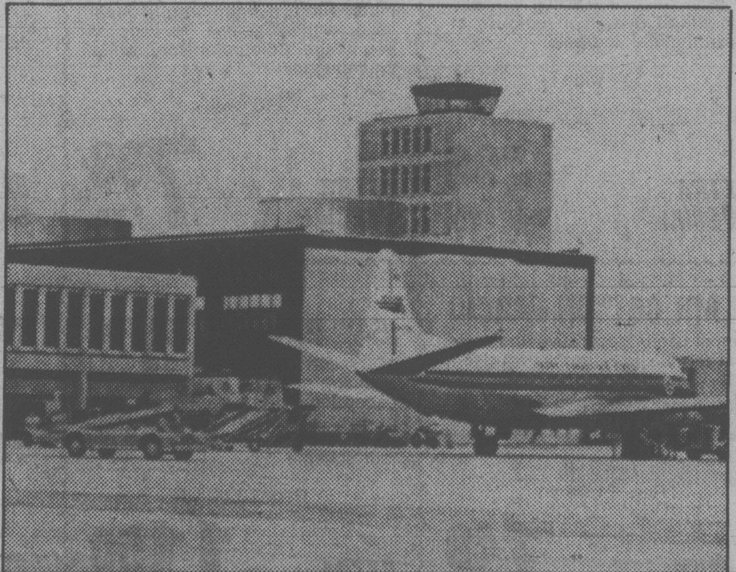
Muffle the noise

So you thought continual exposure to noise would only make you a candidate for a hearing-aid dog.

Not a bit of it. Health authorities in West Germany have positively identified noise as a high blood pressure hazard which heightens the risk of a heart attack. Another good reason not to neglect wearing those headphones in the workplace to deaden the decibels.

FRED CLEVERLEY

Move based on economics



Air Canada plans to increase its workforce at Winnipeg.

WINNIPEG — This past week seven Manitoba Conservative members of Parliament walked through the largely-unused, $15-million Air Canada overhaul hangar at the Winnipeg airport, then announced that they would fill the plant with workers.

One, Dan McKenzie, a long-time critic of Air Canada, said bluntly that the exodus of Air Canada overhaul work from Winnipeg in the late 1950s was due to the political influence of the Liberal party, and "now that we are in power, we are going to move it back."

Statements like this could easily aggravate the fears of Air Canada's union in Montreal, and block out the fact that, in the two decades since the bulk of Air Canada overhaul work moved from Winnipeg to Montreal, the volume has grown enough to provide expanded employment in both locations.

Civic anomosity

There is little doubt that politics played a significant part in Air Canada's decision to move its headquarters, and the majority of its overhaul employment, from Winnipeg to Montreal. The move created a civic animosity toward the national airline in Winnipeg that several generations of Winnipeg district managers were unable to overcome.

The bad feelings had a firm foundation. Reducing a work force of more than 800 to a skeleton staff of just over 100 is a bitter pill for any community to swallow.

The animosity about the move over-rode the effects of Air Canada's decision to locate its major computer centre in Winnipeg, and the fact that Air Canada employment in Winnipeg quickly grew, in other departments, to the point where the national airline had more employees in Winnipeg than it ever had when its maintenance base was located here.

Liberal politicians had a difficult time convincing Winnipeg that the computer centre was not simply a temporary resident. When James Richardson was minister of supply and services he often mentioned the fact that Air Canada had long-term leases in the Richardson building for its computer division, but the statements were often lost on people who chose to remember only that Air Canada had moved its headquarters and maintenance base away.

McKenzie and his fellow Conservatives will have to live with the fact that it was Liberal politics that are responsible for making it possible for the airline's maintenance work to return to Manitoba.

While it may not have been planned that way, it is the way things have worked out. Winnipeg has a massive Air Canada maintenance hangar because Richardson persuaded then Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau that the building, coupled with a promise of aerospace jobs here, would produce Liberal successes in the 1972 federal general election.

The promises of immediate overhaul work evaporated at a speed almost equal to the reluctance of Manitoba voters to elect Liberal candidates. But the hangar was built.

Because it was built, it could not be ignored. It appears now as if Richardson's original plan, to have the Winnipeg building become the centre of Air Canada's Boeing maintenance, while leaving the overhaul of the airline's Douglas and Lockheed fleets to Dorval, will become a fact.

The plan was sound, because it provided for Air Canada to service, on a contract basis, Boeing aircraft operated by other carriers. The Boeing short-range aircraft are used by major regional carriers, and even the armed forces has a requirement for service to its Boeing transport fleet.

Based on economics

Air Canada has announced that its work force in Winnipeg will be increased by several hundred employees, with the prospect of more in the future. The announcement was based on economics, not politics, and reflects the increased work load that has become part of the airline's life during the last 20 years.

The announcements touched off rumblings of discontent in Montreal, particularly among union members who feared that the transfer from Winnipeg to Montreal 20 years ago was about to be carried out in reverse.

Apart from minor adjustments, this is simply not the case. The jobs are coming to Winnipeg because there is more work to be done.

While it is understandable that members of the new Conservative government would like to take the credit, the results of the last election show that Conservatives have enough problems in Quebec without adding to them with statements that attempt to change economics into politics.

EDITOR'S NOTEBOOK

Provincial report cards: Looking at the cabinet

Returning this week to the editor's report cards, we offer an evaluation of the provincial cabinet — probably just a few days or weeks before it is revamped and shuffled. Since no major changes have been made to the cabinet since the May election, this report card is based on the performance of the ministers since the last shuffle in December.

Like all these report cards, the judgments herein are totally subjective, based on the observations of the editor and a few friendly spies. Criteria used include: administrative competence, political skills, creativity and innovation, and responsiveness to the public.

The grades are roughly equivalent to those of the school system: A = excellent; B = good; C = mediocre; D = unsatisfactory. Ministers are arranged roughly in order of merit.

Provincial Secretary Hugh Curtis: (A) — Curtis found his niche when he was moved to the Provincial Secretary's slot last December. His administrative skills, penchant for detail, and insistence on integrity are all put to good use in a ministry involving a wide range of programs and the distribution of many government funds.

Labor Minister Allan Williams: (B) — The relative peace on B.C.'s labor scene remains, in part, a tribute to Williams' skills and his determination to maintain as even a balance as possible between labor and management. He misses an A rating only because of the horrendous problems he has had with the Human Rights Commission he appointed.

Municipal Affairs Minister Bill Vander Zalm: (B) — The switch of Vander Zalm from human resources to municipal affairs was the best move Premier Bennett made in the last cabinet shuffle. Vander Zalm is applying his considerable creative, problem-solving abilities to the difficulties of regional districts, municipal planning and urban transit. He gets into trouble only when he sticks his nose into other ministries' business.

Education Minister Pat McGeer: (B) — McGeer now has his ministry running quite smoothly, which is no small achievement. However, he does not seem to have as much enthusiasm as he once did, and we don't hear much about new or exciting projects any more.

Premier Bill Bennett: (B) — Perhaps because it was an election year, Bennett seemed to fall back into many of the bad habits that he seemed to have abandoned — blatant attempts to buy the electorate, an over-concentration on "image", an emphasis on style to the detriment of content. Yet his administrative skills remain high, and his political skills continue to grow.

Environment Minister Rafe Mair: (B) — Mair began his stint in the environment ministry on a high plane, gaining respect from all sides in environmental conflicts. In recent months, however, his impatience has been getting the upper hand, and he has been losing much of that initial support through precipitous actions.

Transport Minister Alex Fraser: (B) — Fraser runs a steady, reliable department that rarely gets into trouble and rarely has an innovative or novel idea.

Human Resources Minister Grace McCarthy: (B) — Moving McCarthy to the human resources portfolio was another smart move on Bennett's part. In dealing with honest human problems about which she really cares, Mrs. McCarthy abandons her blatant political biases for more productive work.

Energy Minister Jim Hewitt: (C) — Hewitt still appears to be struggling to learn the complexities of the huge energy portfolio. He needs to make sure, however, that he does not come to take the word of the so-called "experts," especially those in the monolith of B.C. Hydro, as the gospel.

Attorney-General Garde Gardom: (C) — Gardom remains too nice to be a really effective cabinet minister. He does a good job as House leader, but otherwise spends too much time trying to satisfy absolutely everybody about absolutely every aspect of an issue before he makes a decision.

Forests Minister Tom Waterland: (C) — Waterland remains the cabinet's quietest, most colorless minister. The impression given is that in his ministry, all decisions are made by the civil servants.

Economic Development Minister Don Phillips: (C) — Phillips seems convinced that the role of a minister is to frustrate the opposition no matter what and ensure that nobody can find out what's going on in his ministry. He may be undertaking some interesting programs, but he certainly isn't telling anybody about them.

Lands Minister James Chabot: (C) — Chabot really doesn't seem to have done much with this portfolio yet. His only program has been to free up Crown land for housing — a program that at the beginning appeared to be going to provide enough houses to double the population of Canada but ended up as a streamlining of existing procedures.

Health Minister Bob McClelland: (C) — McClelland's constantly-changing, ham-handed programs to restrain hospital budgets showed a remarkable lack of perception about the feelings of the population about health care.

Consumer and Corporate Affairs Minister Jim Nielsen: (D) — In eight months, Nielsen has managed to lose several of his top staff, fumble about with decisions on liquor administration problems, and do very little else.

Finance and Deregulation Minister Evan Wolfe: (D) — The minister whose department was officially in charge of abolishing the Seaboard insurance company must automatically come at the bottom of the class. — B.McL.

Disposal problems

Regarding the letters "Disposing of waste" and "Dumping in the sun" (Times, Aug. 20 and 28 respectively) from Messrs. White & Napier:

White lifted my remarks out of context and used them as a sounding board for his own purpose. It clearly states in the publications he cites, that, far from having solved the problem of final disposition of nuclear wastes, the countries he mentions are still conducting research in this connection. Britain hopes to have a pilot plant in operation for the vitrification of wastes by 1981 with a full scale plant possible 10 years later. Numerous countries also have pilot plants while the United States and Canada lag far behind.

The authors of the paper admit that the de-vitrification of glass and ceramics are inevitable in cooling, also that the half-life of many of these byproducts extend to hundreds of years and that careful monitoring will be required.

When one reads of the various phases of the nuclear energy cycle where unacceptable levels of radiation are encountered from the tailing pond of a uranium mine to the byproducts of a nuclear power plant, the thought of a proliferation of nuclear power plants across the country becomes somewhat less than reassuring.

In the case of a recent accident at an Ontario Hydro nuclear plant, expert testimony at a later inquiry complained about slack inspection procedures and possible faulty workmanship. Admiral Rickover, the father of nuclear propulsion in the U.S. Navy, used to complain bitterly regarding faulty components and workmanship in the procedures used to construct naval vessels. It would appear therefore that we have some little distance to travel before the problems associated with nuclear power from uranium mine to final disposal of wastes are solved.

There is a vast difference between containment and disposal, which some people seem to feel are synonymous. When one reads of some of the leaks which have occurred at so called "disposal" sites in North America he begins to feel that perhaps the problem is more serious than it is given credit for. — W. A. Drummond, Duncan.

Bring a light

Take a flashlight if you intend visiting the Provincial Museum to see Fenwick Landowne's bird paintings.

The subdued lighting, which prevails throughout most of the display areas on the second floor, may provide a quiet, genteel atmosphere for viewing most of the exhibits, but the art lover ends up feeling rather cross-eyed.

Mr. Lansdowne is world famous for his exquisite painting style and the authenticity of the bird's physical characteristics and habitat, but to fully appreciate his beautiful works, one has to almost rub noses with the birds.

So be prepared to provide your own supply of that seemingly vulgar commodity — bright light. — Ruby A. Pearson, 2085 Avondale Road.

First priority

How nice of our church groups to go all out to help Viets plucked out of camps in Hong Kong. It would be gratifying if one knew all were truly people clinging to a boat. The church groups in their puritanical belief, deem their efforts the right thing to do.

What about our own honest-to-goodness poor, and yes, the hungry child put to bed at night (we all know what food costs these days) by a mother with a heavy heart, wishing she could do more for her loved one; the father who has given up hope of acquiring a decent job; the youth with no future because he or she does not have someone who gives a damn on how to help them acquire jobs. Ever been to Manpower? If not, go — you will see what I mean.

I almost regurgitated after reading that our government will medically assist these people upon their arrival, after claims of not enough monies to care for our sick people. Come, Mr. McClelland. Come on, church groups, use some of your clout to help the people who support you. If there is an Almighty above, he would not expect you should turn your backs on your own needy. Our people should have first priority to foreigners that are given handouts and housed in the best at give-away rents, after you get them jobs you should help get for our own. Shame on you too. — L. M. James, 50 Menzies Street.

Ellen Goodman

It's back to season of schedules and lists

She was in a post Labor Day funk.

September, the killjoy, had stepped on her summer and squashed it on the sidewalk.

She was back from the country to the city. Back from vacation to reality. The summer days that had been stretched out like a long taffy pull were being chopped up again into bite-sized pieces. They were wrapped, labelled and ready for delivery.

Again her time belonged to other people.

In August, she had vacated all the premises on which she normally lived — the minutes, the hours, the weekdays and weekends. The rhythms of the day had been dictated by the weather and daylight alone.

Now September had reappeared with its old efficiency, thrusting lists into her hand. Soon her head would be full of appointments and scheduled and agendas. Soon the days would be manufactured as artificially as minutes on the digital clock.

Usually she didn't mind. Usually she felt sharpened by September like an Eberhard No. 6 being readied for the first day of school. Usually she thought of new shoes and New Year's resolutions.

She was, after all, a person who lived by and within routines. She regarded structure the way her grandmother had regarded a corset: as a kind of moral armor, without which she would be appallingly flabby.

But today she felt cranky. She wanted to tell someone, some teacher, that she simply wasn't ready to begin again processing through the days.

For one thing, the woman, a mother, wasn't quite up to becoming a nag again. She felt, for once, put upon by the schools which appointed her their home monitor. She ran through her own ghastly morning dialogues with the small person in her life: "It's time to get up . . . Breakfast is ready . . . Do you have your homework? . . . It's five minutes of eight . . . You're going to be late . . . (and finally screamed down the street) You forgot your lunch money." She felt like an alarm clock attachment.

Nor was she up to the list of household items which were waiting to be raked up this fall like leaves. The paint was peeling. The fence was falling down. The refrigerator was empty, and also on the brink of breakdown.

"Time has no divisions to mark its passing," wrote Thomas Mann. "There is never a thunderstorm to announce the beginning of a new month or year." But, she thought, there is September, home from vacation September, back to school September, shifting gears September.

The woman, a confirmed New Englander, had always approved of the seasons, assuming that everyone needed weather to push them through each year. What on earth did they do in the tropics?

But during this short, short summer, she had slipped into neutral, as if it were a hammock. She liked it there. So, she was avoiding the moment when once again time would be something to get through, and each week would be an accomplishment.

She knew, rationally, that an endless summer would leave her longing for demands, for urgency, for pace, like a discontented retiree. But she wished there were some way to schedule less scheduling in their lives.

Wasn't it possible that parents and kids both needed more days to daydream and kick stones and be companions? Wasn't it possible that in the midst of routines — seven o'clock breakfasts and grade A nutritional dinners and half-hour piano practices — we needed more time not to worry about the time?

Soon, she knew, she would accept the new orders as crisply as they were given. She had already ordered a new academic year calendar and some fresh-lined paper for her lists and schedules.

But for the moment, just this brief threshold moment, she was wallowing in crankiness. She didn't want to let go of summer. She didn't want to let go of letting go.

The Boston Globe

The bar goes right

THE GLOBE AND MAIL
An Editorial

Does the Canadian Bar Association adequately reflect the attitudes of the Canadian bar? In the absence of any other voice that could be considered broadly representative of the profession, some people may answer that question affirmatively.

Reporters covering the association's convention at Calgary did emphasize that there was no formal system of selecting voting delegates to the annual meeting. Any member in good standing could go along and raise his hand in support of or opposition to the resolutions which define the bar's position on the great issues of the day.

What the public will assume, however, is that members who were interested in the association's credibility did their best to get to the meetings, members who were concerned about issues did their best to get to the debates.

Thus it is fair to say that the Canadian bar is continuing its move to the right. The association, which at other times has been in the vanguard of the human rights movement, is now more concerned with law and order. The association reinforces the Canadian mood; it does not seek to change it.

The resolution calling for a halt in police break-ins to plant electronic bugs was defeated. The motion expressing displeasure with criminal records being registered against people convicted of simple possession of pot was defeated. And so the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, under fire for break-ins disclosed by the McDonald Commisson, have found a powerful ally in their argument that the means of getting evidence matters not. The tens of thousands of Canadians who acquired criminal records last year for smoking marijuana got what the bar believes they deserved.

A good many lawyers will cry that the convention wasn't a fair forum for determining the consensus of the profession. That it was loaded with Calgary conservatives. That factors other than rights and liberties had to be taken into account in weighing the questions before the meeting. That the association itself is not in step with lawyers' thinking.

The fact remains, one voice of the bar has been heard. It cries 'status quo'.

STRAY FEATHERS

A hummingbird pauses to refuel

It wasn't the kind of place you'd expect to find a hummingbird. And yet, there it was — a Rufous Hummingbird — oblivious to the derelict cars, the grease-spattered rocks, the rusting railway tracks.

Hummingbirds were about as far from my mind as anything could be when I spotted the bird; I hadn't seen one in weeks. Besides, with September now well in control of the season, if I'd given hummingbirds — particularly Rufous Hummingbirds — any thought, it would have been that I wasn't likely to see one again this year.

And yet there she was, her greenish back and few red spots on her throat, marking her for what she was — a female Rufous Hummingbird.

As I made an inventory of the unlikely situation — a hummingbird in a junkyard beside a railway yard — she made it clear why she'd chosen that spot to rest awhile before continuing her journey south. Except for stops on a rusty pipe that stuck out from a pile of scrap, she was carefully working over the blossoms of a few spikes of fireweed.

That fireweed seemed to me almost as unlikely as the hummingbird. With the season as far on as it was, most fireweed was long past the best of its bloom. But there, among the rusting metal, were some that seemed — if the actions of the hummingbird were any indication — in their prime.

I got the impression the hummingbird was tired. She would probe the flowers for a minute or two, then rest for several minutes. Once she dropped to her perch, ruffled her feathers briefly, settled down, and then slept in the bright warm sun.

But it was a brief nap. An itinerant cloud blotted out the warmth of the sun momentarily and she was up again, checking the fireweed. Her quest for food was apparently productive, because she tarried longer at some flowers than others and where she tarried I could see her throat working like a tiny pump, sucking nectar.

I guess I watched her for about half an hour when, without any preliminaries, she dropped from her perch, sped low over the railway tracks and passed between two great piles of sawdust before heading out over the waters of the Outer Harbour.

I watched her as long as I could, but lost her against the gray-blue water as she set a course past the breakwater and south across the Strait of Juan de Fuca.

Obviously she hadn't been as tired as I thought, or those few shots of fireweed nectar had been enough to recharge her tiny batteries. At any rate, she was apparently off on the next leg of her great journey, which could have started in southern Alaska and which might not be over until she reached southern Mexico — a good 3,000 miles in all.

Of all the miles on that great journey, the 18 or 20 that lay immediately ahead of her would be among the most hazardous. For close to an hour she would be at the mercy of the elements before making a landfall on the Olympic Peninsula. Without cover for shelter, or a perch for rest, she would face all the dangers that can beset so small a bird on such a flight.

I couldn't help thinking, as I pictured her tiny form buzzing low over the sea, that she had chosen the perfect day for the crossing — a light northerly breeze to help her along and a slight chop on the water to make her all but invisible to a passing predator.

I wished her Bon Voyage!

'Both sides right in tuna war'

By GEOFFREY STEVENS

The Globe and Mail

The tuna war is an instance where both sides, Canada and the United States, are in the right.

The point has been made before that the Law of the Sea negotiations have brought a measure of order and common practice to the world's oceans. This has been achieved through consensus rather than formal agreement. The most striking consensus is that each of the world's 132 coastal nations has the right to exercise limited sovereignty over an exclusive economic zone extending 200 miles off its shores. The tuna war, however, reinforces the point that consensus is not a substitute for an international Law of the Sea treaty.

Sovereign rights

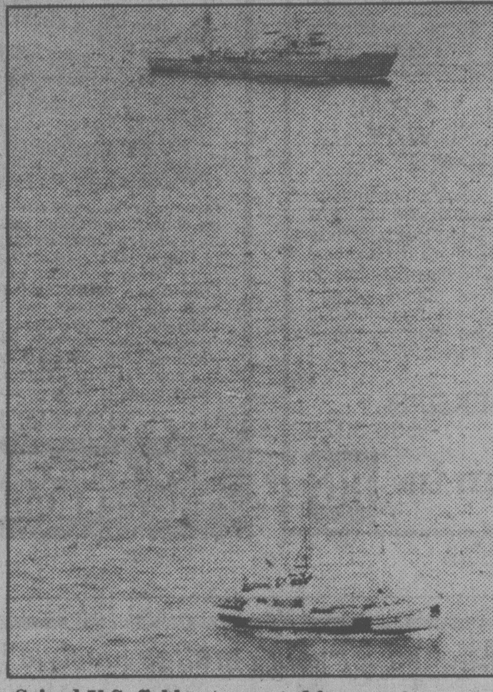
You have close at hand, no doubt, your copy of Revision One of the Informal Composite Negotiating Text (the latest version of the unofficial draft Law of the Sea treaty). Turning to Article 56, section 1, subsection (a), we read that, in its exclusive economic zone, the coastal state shall have "sovereign rights for the purpose of exploring and exploiting, conserving and managing the natural resources, whether living or non-living, of the seabed and subsoil and the superjacent waters . . ."

It was in the spirit of 56. 1(a) that Canada and the United States declared 200-mile fishing zones in 1977 — the U.S. by legislation, Canada by order-in-council.

Salmon excluded

But there is another provision worth noting in the negotiating text. Article 64 deals with "highly migratory species" (which include seven species of tuna, frigate mackerel, marlin, sailfish, swordfish, dolphin and oceanic sharks, among others). This article provides that the coastal state and foreign nations which fish for highly migratory species in its economic zone, "shall co-operate directly or through appropriate international organizations with a view to ensuring conservation and promoting the objectives of optimum utilization of such species throughout the region, both within and beyond the exclusive economic zone."

There are only three great commercial tuna fishing countries — the United States, Japan and Korea. The U.S. and Japan do not feel that the negotiating text affords adequate protection for their tuna industries. Canada felt much the same way about salmon (which is not classified as a highly migratory species). Ottawa lobbied strenuously and successfully for special provisions for the salmon in the negotiating text.



Seized U.S. fishboat escorted by patrol vessel Tanu

Because it feels the tuna must be under international, rather than national, jurisdiction, the U.S. specifically exempted highly migratory species from U.S. management authority in the Fishery Conservation and Management Act which created the U.S. 200-mile fishing zone. The U.S. act further provides that the United States will not recognize the 200-mile zone of any other country which fails to accept that highly migratory species fall under international jurisdiction. Canada, despite its support for Article 64, falls into this category.

The tuna war, I think, is a case where both countries are proceeding in good faith, but on divergent courses. The need for a global treaty to resolve such differences is obvious. The need will become dramatic if the United States, or any other country, jumps the gun and starts mining the international deep seabed for nickel and other minerals.

The corporate squeeze play

THE PROGRESSIVE

The Great American Corporate Squeeze Play continues. Statistics released late in March by the U.S. Department of Commerce showed that corporate profits increased by 26 per cent during the last quarter of 1978. Just days after these mind-boggling figures had been made available, the Department of Labor reported that the Consumer Price Index rose by 1.2 per cent in February, which would translate into an annual inflation rate of almost 15 per cent. The Department also reported that personal income rose only .3 per cent in February. In sum, while profits and prices continue to surge, the average American lost almost one per cent in real income in one month alone. If this process of income redistribution continues along present lines, the economic and political inequalities in our society will widen at a calamitous rate.

While calling the data on profits "almost as much of a catastrophe as the January wholesale price jump," Presidential adviser Alfred Kahn still expressed the hope that labor would show restraint in upcoming contract negotiations. Despite its protestations to the contrary, the Administration is obviously looking to labor to make the "sacrifices" that will bring a return to economic health. Wages are to be kept low through the "voluntary guideline" program, which will help employers resist labor demands, and through cuts in domestic social spending, which will promote sufficient levels of unemployment and hardship to force reluctant unions to settle for seven per cent wage increases. Price guidelines, which are extremely complex and lack even a monitoring mechanism, will serve largely to legitimize higher prices and profits.

Though the Administration complains about exorbitant profit rates, it asserts that arbitrary controls on profits are not appropriate. One day after blasting high corporate profits, Kahn argued that high profits are needed to increase capital investment and create jobs. Business Week reported that many business leaders are disturbed by the low level of profit on recent years. However understated and ambivalent the Adminstration's intentions, it is clearly following the corporate logic of squeezing labor to increase profit margins.

Unfortunately, we have travelled this route before. Last year, the steel industry persuaded the Carter Administration to guarantee it $900 million in added profits through favorable tax and tariff treatment. These increased steel profits have not been used, however, to stimulate the U.S. economy, instead, they have gone in large measure to raw material extraction and new steel mills in Third World nations. United States Steel is using some of its capital right now to build steel mills in Spain, and it will commit almost $2 billion in the next ten years for iron ore development in Brazil. Much of this raw material production will in turn be sold to foreign steel competitors. Heavy investments have also been made in South Africa, so that our multinational steel firms can take full advantage of the low-wage victims in apartheid.

It is an illusion, therefore — an illusion which our business leaders would like us to share — that "biting the bullet" now will lead to a rosy future somewhere down the road. But to combat the squeeze play will require more than simple opposition to the Carter program. Effective controls on prices, or even on profits, are not the answer. Relatively effective price control in such areas as gasoline have only led the energy conglomerates to stop building domestic refineries, creating a shortage of unleaded gasoline. The American Petroleum Institute, the industry's trade association, hints at the real corporate blackmail going on when it tells us that decontrol of oil would once again make refinery production profitable.

To keep major corporations from telling us how and when we will have the goods we need will require a program and a movement which insist that corporate investment decisions be made responsive to such social needs as full employment, environmental safety, and stable communities. Shifting corporate funds from such areas as military spending, real estate investment, and overseas expansion to such areas of social need as urban housing and mass transit could create more jobs and stable prices. Though full democratic control over corporate investment is not an achievable goal now, proposals for community development funds, credit allocation, and worker control over pension fund assets would be steps in the right direction.

If corporations planning to relocate were required to file social impact statements and hold public hearings, this would be another way to demonstrate graphically the impact of corporate investment decisions on all of us. Until we can effectively put on the public agenda the issue of how and for whom corporate decisions are made, the corporate squeeze play, aided and abetted by Jimmy Carter or any other president, will continue to be played at our expense.

All 3 die in B.C. plane crash

TERRACE (CP) — All three occupants of a Cessna 206 aircraft that was lost Wednesday were found dead Friday in the wreckage of their plane near here.

Dead are pilot Philip Hardin of San Jose, Ray MacDonald of Vallejo and Ron Bailard of San Rafael.

The three California men left Smithers bound for Victoria Wednesday when their single-engine plane crashed on Seven Sisters Mountain about 50 kilometres northeast of Terrace.

The plane was located in an alpine meadow just beside the valley it was supposed to be following to get to Terrace.

A search and rescue team from the Canadian Forces base at Comox on Vancouver Island co-ordinated the search and were aided by private fliers and off-duty RCMP.

Tax reduction hides a cost

VANCOUVER (CP) — A provincial proposal to reduce taxes on non-commercial farm land in the B.C. land reserves will mean increased taxes for residential and commercial property owners, warns an executive committee report to the Union of B.C. Municipalities.

The plan could also cause headaches for farmers who would have to either sell their land or get it into production when there are already surpluses of some farm products, said Langley District Alderman Bill Blair, a farmer and committee member.

Under the plan, owners of 100,000 parcels of land in the province, totalling 11 million acres, would by 1981 pay taxes on non-commercial farmland on 15 per cent of the assessed value of the property.

For example, if a property was valued at $100,000, the assessed value would be $15,000 for taxation purposes.

The committee provided some examples which showed that Langley District would lose over $923,000; Maple Ridge would lose $292,000 and Chilliwack would lose nearly $145,000.

Unless the province made up the losses, the municipalities would have to collect more from other residents, the committee said.

"Hi Neighbour! Come on down. We've got gasoline."

The United States is one pretty big country. There's so much to see, so much to do. And now we've got all the gas you need to get around.

So don't put off that driving vacation to the States any longer. Because if gas was your problem, then you've got no problem now.

The gasoline situation has recently improved. So much so that we at Inforoad USA want you to take your holiday here, now. Right now our summer roads aren't crowded and come the fall you can't beat our colour.

And we'll help make your vacation a great one. Drop us a note or give us a call—we've got State-By-State gas updates, all sorts of maps and brochures. It's all official and it's free—yours for the asking. So pack off your worries, pack up your bags and come on down.

Call us and drive U.S.

Nickel load drop forecast

TORONTO (CP) — W. G. Dahl, group president of Falconbridge Nickel Mines Ltd., of Toronto, says that, after a banner year in 1979, nickel shipments in non-Communist countries are expected to fall 10 to 12 per cent in 1980.

He said 1980 production of nickel in all forms is expected to increase 15 per cent, which would allow non-Communist producers to restore "depleted inventories to an estimated 390 million pounds by the end of 1980" compared with excessive inventories of 750 million pounds in 1977.

Dahl said producers shipped nickel at an annual rate of about 1.5 billion pounds during the first half of 1979, "a rate that considerably exceeds industry production."

The key factor affecting the health of the nickel industry during the next five years, he said, will be the level at which the industry operates relative to demand.

The industry in order to meet projected demands in the 1980-85 period will be required to reactivate some idle capacity, increasing utilization rates to 80 per cent from about 65 per cent.

HAYHURST ADVERTISING APPOINTMENT

BRIAN G. FOLLETT

Kenneth McK. Wright, Senior Vice-President and Western Manager of F.H. Hayhurst Advertising is pleased to announce the appointment of Brian G. Follett as Vice-President and Assistant Manager of the Vancouver Office of the Agency. Mr. Follett has an Honours B.A. Business Administration from the University of Western Ontario and joined Hayhurst Toronto over nine years ago as an Account Executive. Subsequently he became Account Supervisor on a number of major national accounts including General Foods, Bordens, Laura Secord and Holiday Inns. A graduate of the CAAP course in advertising practise from the Institute of Canadian Advertising, he brings to Hayhurst Vancouver clients an extensive experience in planning and providing a wide range of communications, marketing and advertising services. Mr. Follett's appointment was planned as one of a number of important new appointments to the Hayhurst Western Staff Groups in Vancouver, Edmonton and Calgary. These appointments are designed to meet the Agency's policy of maximizing its ability to provide the best possible advertising counsel for Hayhurst clients and mark the continuing growth of the Agency which last year celebrated its Fiftieth Anniversary.

F.H. Hayhurst Co. Limited, one of Canada's major national advertising agencies, was established in 1928. The Company maintains offices in Vancouver, Edmonton, Calgary, Toronto and Montreal and provides a wide range of marketing, advertising and communication services to leading Canadian and U.S. companies, associations and government departments.

Health shots priority when touring exotic land

By HEATHER WILSON

TORONTO — Few experiences enrich the senses more than discovering far-flung reaches of the globe. But the discovery should be preceded by preparations to meet any likelihood on your journey — including coming into contact with unusual and dangerous diseases.

Last year more than 39.1 million international trips were made by Canadians. And if the statistics on malaria are any indication, Canadians don't know how to safeguard their health while outside the country.

In 1970, five cases of malaria were diagnosed, says Dr. Jay Keystone, director of the tropical diseases unit at Toronto General Hospital and executive director of the Canadian Society of Tropical Medicine and International Health. Last year the reported cases climbed to 165.

Keystone and Dr. Vincent Marcolongo, founder of the International Association for Medical Assistance to Travellers, say the main problem is that neither the public nor the medical profession know much about tropical diseases.

It is the moral duty of travel agents to tell their clients how to protect their health in the countries they are visiting, the doctors say. But although agents are anxious to sell trips to exotic locations, they are less than eager to assume the role of disease counsellors.

Unfortunately, people assume that their agents will tell them everything they need to know, Keystone says. And unless they're going to Africa, Asia or South America, many travellers think they need only certain immunizations to stay healthy.

Yet Haiti, for example, is endemic with a fatal form of malaria which can cause flu-like symptoms and death within days if not treated.

Gerry Brander, president of the Tourism Industry Association of Canada, says it is unworkable and unfair to expect travel agents to become experts in all of the diseases found abroad.

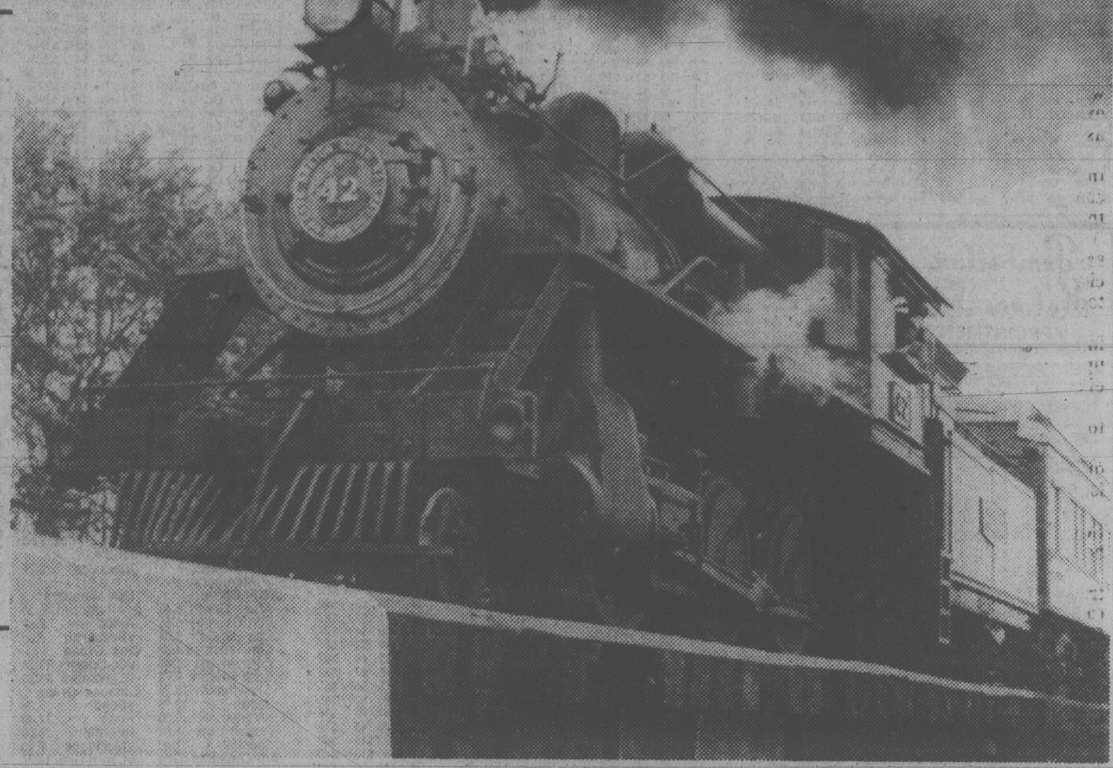
"Perhaps the customs and immigration people could be made responsible for releasing health information at border points," he suggests.

Dr. Duff Hicks of Health and Welfare Canada's medical services branch, says the government has considered restricting licences to those agents who agreed to convey health warnings to their clients.

The government distributes a weekly bulletin to medical and travel personnel containing up-to-date information collected by the World Health Organization, Hicks says.

"But can the government go so far as to legislate the health protection of the public?"

Billy still puffing



Back in her days on Sydney and Louisbourg Railway, No. 42 was just another "puffing billy", hauling coal from Cape Breton mineheads to shipping docks. Today the 80-year-old steam locomotive is on the business end of a restored tourist train operating between Glace Bay and Port Morien, N.S., usually with all seats sold.

Holidays by Wardair®

GO WHEN THE PRICE IS LOW LOW LOW

A November to remember...

A winter holiday is not beyond your budget. The secret is to go when the price is low. And Holidays by Wardair has a warm place for you to go this November, when prices are lowest — Hawaii.

In November, Hawaiian beaches are just as sandy and skies are just as blue. You can work on your tan and your Christmas shopping list at the same time. In fact, with the money you save, you can even get a good start on your Christmas shopping.

In November the only thing that changes is the price. You still get the same "Wardair Class" service our passengers enjoy all year round — delicious hot meals, individually served on china dinnerware, chateau wines, liqueurs, bar service, tea, coffee, juice, milk or soft drinks — all at no additional cost.

In November you still fly non-stop to Hawaii aboard one of our fleet of wide-bodied aircraft.

In November, you get more for your money. So ask Thomas Cook to help you plan a November to remember with Holidays by Wardair.

In November...
When you go with Holidays by Wardair you save because airfare and hotel accommodation cost less. Check out the savings in the chart below! Prices are based on Wardair ABC airfare from Vancouver plus 14 nights hotel accommodation at the Pacific Beach, Honolulu. Hotel rooms in Hawaii can be booked by Holidays by Wardair starting August 20, 1979.
Although hotel prices are quoted in Holidays by Wardair brochures in U.S. dollars, they have been converted to Canadian dollars for the purpose of this comparison at an exchange rate of $1.15 Cdn. = $1.00 U.S.

	SAVINGS PER COUPLE		PRICES PER PERSON NOV/DEC (1-11)	PRICES PER PERSON FEB/MAR (1-13)
HAWAII	14 NIGHTS save $444 PER COUPLE	HOTEL	$378	$580
		AIRFARE	279	299
		TOTAL	$657	$879

REMEMBER, ONLY ROUND TRIP AIRFARE CAN BE BOOKED AND YOU MUST BOOK AT LEAST 30 DAYS AHEAD.

Hotel accommodation in Hawaii can be booked by Holidays by Wardair starting August 20, 1979.

Prices quoted are per person in Canadian dollars. These Wardair flights depart from Vancouver International Airport and are chartered by International Vacations Ltd. (Intervac) under the Advance Booking Charter provisions of the Air Carrier Regulations and have been approved by the Air Transport Committee of the Canadian Transport Commission. A non-refundable deposit of $50 per person must be received by Intervac within 7 days of booking. Balance of fare payable no later than 42 days prior to departure or at time of booking. Not included: $8 Canadian Departure Tax (payable with balance of fare) and applicable foreign taxes. Fare Protection Insurance available from Intervac for $8 per person. Aircraft type subject to change without notice.
AMERICAN EXPRESS • VISA • MASTER CHARGE accepted.

Sweetheart deal offered in Orient

By PAUL MAJENDIE

HONG KONG — Hong Kong, the pearl of the Orient with a highly developed tourist industry, has offered its expertise to China, which has begun to regard tourism as a valuable foreign exchange earner.

With the capitalist welcome mat placed smack on the Communist doorstep, the two opposing ideologies can happily co-operate to get tourist dollars flowing to their mutual benefit.

"Hong Kong can act as the ideal gateway to China," says Han Pain, the Hong Kong Tourist Association chief who recently returned from talks with Chinese tourist officials in Peking.

China, once the exotic unknown that greeted only intrepid travellers like Marco Polo, is fast opening up in a bid to attract visitors and their most welcome foreign currency.

But Pain notes problems that the fledgling Chinese tourist industry faces.

"They are short of experience and very short of qualified people to select, construct and operate tourist facilities."

That's where Hong Kong can help, providing promotional expertise as well as joint ventures in tours and hotel construction.

"Hong Kong is certainly a good staging post for any trip to China," Pain says. "This applies to overseas Chinese who originate mainly from the three southern Chinese provinces and now are a big tourist growth market for us."

How specifically has Hong Kong offered to help?

"We are supplying them with all our marketing plans so they fit in with theirs and don't conflict. They have a detailed breakdown of our expenditure and the type of markets we are aiming for."

The last year has seen transport links set up between this tiny, packed metropolis and its giant neighbor. Hovercraft, faster trains and regular plane services now can speed you into China from Hong Kong.

But this British colony cannot sit back and count its new-found dollars as the visitors pour in. Hong Kong's tourist industry has fallen victim to its own success.

The number of new hotel rooms opening up cannot keep up with visitor demand. By the end of 1981, Hong Kong will have 62 hotels, but all will be fully booked.

More than two million tourists came here last year. This year's projected target is 15 per cent higher, and by 1985 that figure may top four million. Hotels are not going up fast enough to house them all.

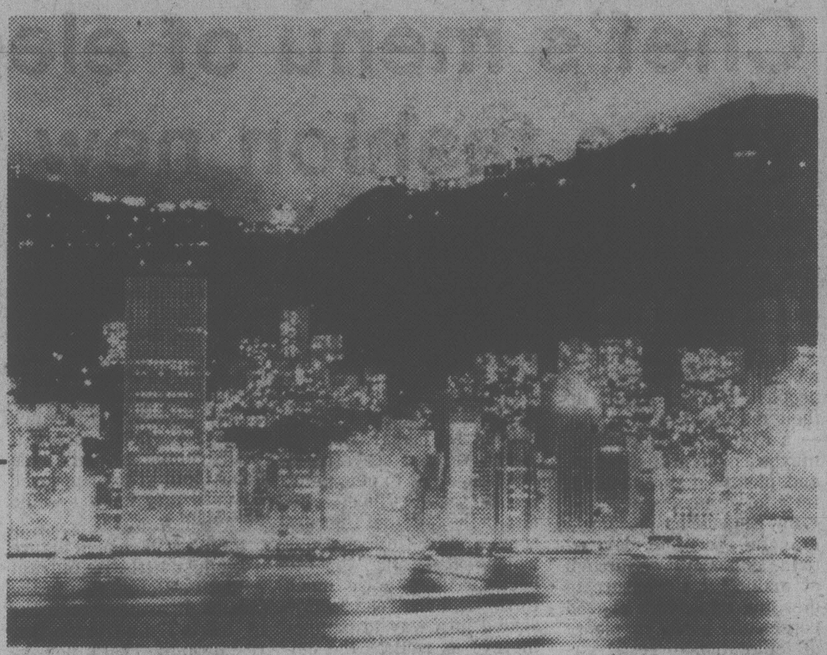
Another barrier to tourist expansion might come in the mid-1980s unless Hong Kong lays plans for a new airport. Kai Tak, built on a spit of reclaimed land in the harbor, could have reached saturation point by then.

But tourist officials are far from pessimistic here as they pursue quality not quantity in this shopper's paradise, where tourists spend most of their money on duty-free goods.

Hong Kong's tourist future may lie in attracting fat wallets. Today the rich visitors are the Japanese, but Pain notes a striking new regional trend:

"Southeast Asia is the big growth market and 80 per cent of these are ethnic Chinese. They have a lot of money and they are good spenders."

Hong Kong by day. View from The Peak, overlooking the island business district, the busy harbor and Kowloon with its shops and hotels, is one of most beautiful in the world.



Hong Kong by night. A wise man, speaking centuries ago, stated, "And across these waters a million lights shall glow." Exciting modern Hong Kong has proved this prediction to be true.

Christine and Michel Guerard at table in their three-star restaurant

Chef's menu of elegance gives fashion new flavor

EUGENIE-LES-BAINS, France — The 19th-century idea of a vacation "cure" has been revived with 20th-century efficient rigor in several European countries, as well as the United States, mostly devoted to reducing people's fat and toning up their muscles the hard way — a diet of lemon juice, maybe a bit of grated carrot, and plenty of pummelling, for a lot of money.

But Eugenie has become a graceful exception, devoted to the 19th-century approach of making it a pleasure to diet and trim, with a good conscience bonus of plenty of temptation to resist virtuously. It's all because Michel Guerard, a master chef, met and married a pretty girl who ran a hotel and then went on to decide that a man in his new position ought not to bulge.

THEY HAVE settled down now to run Les Pres et les Sources d'Eugenie, a hotel and restaurant that won its third Michelin star this year, next door to the modernized Spa where the Empress Eugenie bathed away her imperial vapors a century ago.

"We don't want to be fashionable," Guerard said, "I don't like people who come in blase, bothering the others, looking bored with everything and themselves too. For them, I spoil the kitchen, I ignore them. If they've come because it's fashionable, (and now it is,) they'll have to come back anyway to stay in fashion.

"AH, BUT the ones who come with gourmandise in their eyes, I see it right away. For them, we'd chop ourselves in four to please them, do anything they want, bring them the moon. If they only knew . . ."

Some do seem to know, or at any rate to guess enough to make this little village in the foothills of the Pyrenees, near Pau, an annual habit. The stars, of course, are for Guerard's grand menu gourmand, and a lot of people stop by for a day or two on a restaurant pilgrimage around France. But an equal attraction is the menu minceur, the strictly limited diet meals composed of a variety of the dishes in Guerard's best-selling cookbook La Cuisine Minceur which was published in America last winter.

IT IS A style of cooking without fat, sugar, flour or starch worked out after a great deal of experiment. But the secret of its effect is also in the fact that Guerard serves only tiny portions which satisfy the appetite because there is so much flavor and the food is presented in a way to pamper the eye as well as the palate.

"We eat it at least once a day," said Christine Guerard, the chef's svelte wife, a pale, raven-haired woman who looks as though she could have been the model for both Modigliani and Charles Addams.

"MICHEL worked it out because in 1973 he had to diet. He was quite chubby. But he said ordinary diet food was disgusting, too sad, and it made him bad humored, grumbling all the time which just isn't like him. He loves to eat. So do I."

He loves to cook, too, and to feed people. As a child, he said, he lived often with his grandmother in the village of Veteuil outside of Paris, an airy, leafy place where Claude Monet used to come and paint, sometimes using his grandmother as a model.

"I've always associated cooking and love," he said, "because my grandmother was a very good cook and she loved me very much. You can't cook for people you don't love, and the more you love them, the better you cook."

BUT HE didn't start out with that idea. "I wanted to be a priest, or rather a bishop or an archbishop. I liked the setting as much as the mystical side. But after all, the church seemed too austere, so I also wanted to be an actor, that's my temperament. I'm drawn to drama, humor, theatrical presentation. My parents said the theater wasn't serious, that I ought to learn a proper trade. So I chose cooking, it really combines what I liked about both. They approved because they knew I would do well."

He did well enough to turn a modest little restaurant called Le-Pot-au-Feu in the suburb of Asnieres into one of Paris's nine three-star restaurants. That's how he met Christine, too. Her father owns a string of spas in various parts of France. "We were three girls in the family," she said, "so I had to be the boy," taking over the management of what had become a run-down, delapidated hotel at Eugenie a decade ago.

HER YOUTHFUL ambition was to be a decorator, and she managed to indulge it on the side, restoring the place bit by bit into an unusually charming, cheerful country manor kind of establishment set in a fairy-tale park. "People who arrive for the first time at night often tell me it looks like Sleeping Beauty's castle," she said.

Still, she was responsible for the management, and five years ago she appealed to her friend Pierre Troisgros, another famous chef, to find her some good help for the kitchen because she was having trouble getting the quality of the food up to the level she wanted to set for the establishment.

HE TOLD her to drop in for a dinner he was planning with a group of friends and he'd see what he could do. And he invited his friend, Guerard, telling him about the spinster-manager who was coming. "This girl is not a tarte (which is the French equivalent for no cream-puff,) is the way he described me to Michel, so he expected somebody fiftyish with a big bun and spectacles. At first, Michel just didn't believe I was me.

She was not quite 30 then, and evidently was the ebullient, soft-mannered Guerard's dish, so that was that. Not long after, he had to abandon the Pot-au-Feu because the area was being torn down to build a superhighway feeder road. They started negotiations to buy Laurent, a formally elegant restaurant just off the Champs-Elysees, and then Maxim's, but neither one went through and finally they decided just to pack up Paris and establish themselves at Eugenie.

YUL BRYNNER, Danny Kaye, Sviatoslav Richter and Princess Paola of Belgium are among the international set who drop in to eat and-or diet, and assistant cooks of the courts of Iran, Belgium, Denmark and the White House have done internships in the kitchen.

People tend to sit around the swimming pool, play tennis or go for walks in the lovely woods nearby and retire early in the evening. "They're tired if they take the cure," Christine said, "it's very soporific and they just want to curl up and sleep a lot. That's the whole idea, to break the pattern of their usual life and really rest here. We did try arranging some little concerts in the evening (there's a delicious old-fashioned white circular bandstand in the gardens) but the guests didn't seem to want any entertainment."

On the other hand, the atmosphere is easy. Some people flash diamonds and silks at night, but other enthusiastic eaters who turn up in blue jeans or the kind of sports clothes campers wear are made just as comfortable and welcome.

For the 4th year running we are offering our popular series of 18 day tours to New Zealand. Our inclusive tour price from Victoria includes round trip airfare, hotel accommodation, meals, escorted coach tour of New Zealand's North and South Islands, extensive sightseeing, baggage handling, transfers, tips, etc.
New Zealand is often referred to as a "world in miniature". Nowhere else in the world will you find such a diverse selection of scenic masterpieces within such a compact and easily accessible area. New Zealand is home to thundering geysers, bubbling mud pools and thermal hot springs, deeply cleft fjords, magnificent mountain ranges, wide open grassy plains, tranqul lakes and hundreds of blue water bays. Meet the charming, friendly people of New Zealand, marvel at the magnificent Maori history and culture — the quaint fascination of English heritage and social structure implanted in Pacific soil.

Saba's Windwardside Village: spic-and-span houses under the palms

Netherlands jewel glows in lush Caribbean setting

By BUDDY BASCH

The Netherlands Antilles are a delight. When you arrive on St. Maarten, largest of the three, you immediately sense the friendship of the people as you are greeted with smiles. Even though they are Dutch, their native language is English. There's a soothing breeze blowing, and the temperature remains a year-round 75-85 degrees.

Phillipsburg, capital of St. Maarten, is a shopper's paradise. Walk the several-block length of Front Street where you can buy the goods of the world at bargain prices. Then take one of the little alleys to another set of shops on Back Street. Prices on anything you buy here equal or surpass the more publicized bargains of St. Thomas.

The beaches, boating, swimming and golfing are superb — as fine as any in the Caribbean.

There are accommodations for any budget. The best bargain and the most charming is the Pasanggrahan Guest House at the head of Front Street. You get three meals daily, served family style. You don't order, but are brought a tasty variety of nicely cooked foods. They may be American or Caribbean style specialties. The rooms are large, comfortable, bright and clean.

Restaurants abound with all sorts of food, and you can eat as reasonably or grandly as you wish. Twigs, a new restaurant, is relatively expensive, but the food and service are worth it.

Evenings are usually spent dancing at an alfresco discotheque or listening to a name attraction at one of the hotels or casinos.

It's worth taking a cab ride (or a bus) to the other half of the island, which is French and called St. Martin. It is less attractive, less clean, more expensive, and you won't be as well received. Ask the cabbie to stop a moment at the Border Monument and take a photo standing with two feet in different countries. That monument is the only clue you've left one side for the other.

St. Eustatius, or Statia to the natives, is a 20-minute plane ride from St. Maarten. Landing at Franklin D. Roosevelt Airport you can clear customs and get an endorsement in your passport, but nobody cares if you don't bother! This is the island that still calls itself "America's Childhood Friend."

Be sure to see Ft. Oranje, where the first salute to a U.S. ship was fired on Nov. 16, 1776. That act was the first recognition of the fledgling U.S. Navy and the country itself by any foreign country. The fort's original cannons are still there. The Yonkers Library in Oranjestad attests to the friendship New York City feels for the tiny island. Oranjestad is situated on a cliff, and you look down to Lower Town, now abandoned and ruined.

The island is starting to revive its economy with mining of large deposits of pumice. The now-vacant warehouse area is a relic of the days when Statia was the hub of commerce for the whole Caribbean. Just walk around and drink in the fresh, flower-scented air and warmth of this friendly eight-mile-square dot in the ocean.

Saba (pronounced say-buh) is a 15-minute flight from either St. Maarten or Statia. You fly in a STOL (short take off and landing) aircraft, and even the fearless should think twice about sitting in the cockpit. There's a postage stamp-sized landing strip, and you're sure you'll be plunged into the sea, but you pull up at Flat Point airport with room to spare.

Coming in you see the peak of 3,000-foot Mt. Scenery protruding through a fleecy cloud bank. From a distance Saba looks like a large green gumdrop. Actually it is a very large rock jutting out of the water, with one road leading around the five-mile-square island.

If the weather's clear, climb the nearly 1,000 steps to the top of Mt. Scenery, but don't forget you have to get back down! Saba reminds the visitor of San Francisco, at least topographically. There are steep hilly roads and houses built on hillsides.

There are four towns in Saba, and even the names are picturesque: Hell's Gate (at the lowest level), The Bottom (oddly located at the top), Windwardside, and St. John's. A single road winds past them all. There are no beaches and until recently there wasn't even a good harbor. White or red roofs are traditional on buildings. There are few wells so people collect rainwater in cisterns.

Small, pretty churches are present in every village and look rather like children's doll houses. The 976 inhabitants all know everyone on the island, and the visitor is greeted and politely asked about his home, how he likes their island, and whether or not he is staying.

Most travellers know better than to eat raw fruit when visiting outside North America, but hanging temptingly on trees are a profusion of luscious-looking island fruits. There are island cherries (with four pits), guava, breadfruit, sugar apple, and cashew. The latter has a fruit in addition to the nut, and the fruit can be eaten raw or stewed.

Saba has some other quite unusual flora. One is called "the tree that bites," and people brushing against it acquire a painless but colorful red rash.

If you stay in Saba try either Captain's Quarters or Scout's Place. Both are small, family-run, and have interesting views. If you'd like to have just a meal at one while visiting for the day have someone call and make arrangements, as reservations are needed. You'll probably be eating a piece of fresh fish that was hauled from nearby waters that morning by the proprietor or one of his family.

Masterpiece ties Russia to past

By DAVID WILLIS

KIZHI ISLAND, U.S.S.R. — Our racy hydrofoil, a red hammer and sickle painted on her gleaming white stern, leaned into a final turn . . . and suddenly we were gazing at one of the rarest scenes in the Soviet Union, a panorama virtually untouched since the days of Czar Peter the Great.

Rearing high above us, dark against the blue brilliance of a morning sky, was an immense wooden edifice, high as a modern 10-storey building. From its octagonal base soared a profusion of 22 domes, each standing out against the arched base of the one above it like "the head of a saint enclosed in a halo," as one writer has it.

THE EYE is pulled upward to the biggest dome of all at the top, surmounted by a wooden cross on which seagulls perch.

The axes and chisels of about 80 master craftsmen fashioned it here on Kizhi Island, in Lake Onega, 264 years ago. The domes and frame are held together without a single nail (although nails do secure the 60,000 aspen-wood shingles that cover the domes).

The Kizhi Church of the Transfiguration, together with a slightly smaller church and a belfry beside it, constitutes a masterpiece of ancient Russian wooden architecture, a sculpture of weathered pine that has defied rain and snow and lightning and fire for almost three centuries — a classic piece of the religious Russian past now preserved by the rulers of the atheistic Soviet present.

WHEN THE last piece had been fitted in 1714, Chief Carpenter Nestor (the only name that survives) is said to have hurled his axe into Lake Onega, the second-largest in Europe, with the words:

"There has never been, is not now, and never will be, a church to equal this one."

Perhaps the most breathtaking views are from the wooden belfry. Its octagonal tower, not built until 1870, opens out onto the big church, onto the nine domes of the adjoining Church of the Intercession, and onto vistas of low, green islands scattered across shining expanses of lake.

TODAY THE three buildings, together with a number of other historic wooden houses and churches gathered in a nearby open-air museum, attract tourists from all over the world. They also are being advertised as prime attractions for visitors to the 1980 Olympic Games.

How has something made of wood survived so long? The main enemy is rainwater dripping down the sides and rotting the logs. But Nestor and his men made sure that dozens of strategically placed spouts carried the rainwater clear of the walls.

ON THE SMALL church of the Intercession, built in 1764, two years after Catherine the Great took the throne, spouts are supported by a zigzag frame that circles the church below the domes like embroidery on the edge of a handkerchief.

The same kind of frame is to be seen farther north on the splendid, though smaller, Church of the Dormition, at Kondopoga, built in 1775.

Now Soviet authorities are spraying the Kizhi churches with special preservative compounds, which deaden the wood and lighten it in color.

TO CLIMB narrow ladders through small trapdoors to the top of the Kizhi belfry, and to stand looking out at the unparalleled scene on all sides, is a reminder of the time when this part of Lake Onega was a flourishing trade route, north from Novgorod in the 16th century and Moscow in the 18th.

This is Soviet Karelia, not far from the Finnish border. "Kizhi" itself means "field of games," from the time when the island was the administrative centre of a large surrounding area.

The 22-dome church was a meeting place and headquarters, as well as a place to worship. Hundreds of farmers used to gather on the wooden benches inside.

EARLY IN the 18th century Peter the Great began a series of victories over the Swedes that allowed him to establish St. Petersburg (now Leningrad), his "window on the West." Not far from Kizhi the royal fleets moved northward from the White Sea to the Baltic.

Yet life for the average farmer was hard. Winters are long and bitter here, summers short and mild.

THE CHURCH of the Transfiguration was a "summer" church — it lacked heating and could not be used in winter. The nearby Church of the Intercession is the "winter" church.

Like many jewels, this one needs to be sought out. The traveller from Moscow takes a plane or an overnight train north to Petrozavodsk, a city of about 200,000 people and founded by Peter the Great in 1703 to provide ammunition and weapons for his northern armies.

Each day white-painted hydrofoils or conventional passenger ferries leave the Petrozavodsk piers for the run to Kizhi. The hydrofoil trip takes only 75 minutes.

THE OLDER ferries also operate when the lake is rough in early spring and late autumn. The sea route closes altogether when the really cold weather begins in October.

Once on the island, the visitor hears guides explain the history of the churches. At the height of the season, 500 or more tourists can wait in line for a glimpse inside them.

Lunch is served in a floating restaurant by the main jetty. In the afternoon, visitors are free to wander around the island until the return hydrofoil (or ferry) arrives.

Union raid under way

WILLIAMS LAKE (CP) — The Union of Operating Engineers is attempting a membership raid on the established union at the Gibraltar Copper mine, north of here.

The 400 Gibraltar workers are members of the Canadian Association of Industrial, Mechanical and Allied Workers.

Association spokesman Terry O'Neil said his union's ranks have been infiltrated by the operating engineers

Indians win gas well fight

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Blueberry Indian Band Friday won a court injunction preventing a Calgary company from reopening its natural gas wells near the band's village in northeastern British Columbia.

The B. C. Supreme Court granted the injunction to the Union of B.C. Indian Chiefs, which acted for the band, after a leak of toxic hydrogen sulphide last month from a Kildonan Oil Co. natural gas well near Fort St. John.

The injunction said the company must return to the courts to obtain permission to reopen the wells if they decide to reactivate them at a future date.

$1,000 fine for creek damage

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Damage to the fish habitat of a creek 280 kilometres north of here cost a road-building company $1,000 in provincial court Friday.

Markland Road Builders Ltd. was fined after a company representative pleaded guilty to charges of destroying or altering fish habitat which carry a maximum fine of $5,000 under the Fisheries Act.

U.S. tuna boats sail for home

VANCOUVER (UPC) — The skippers of 11 U.S. tuna fishing boats involved in the international tuna war began sailing home Friday after each posted $5,000 bonds to secure the release of their vessels.

A spokesman at the U.S. consulate here said 11 posted the bonds Thursday; they will reappear in provincial court Nov. 20 to face trial on charges of illegal fishing and unlawful entry into Canadian territorial waters.

Williams Lake mill workers off job

WILLIAMS LAKE (CP) — About 250 workers were off the job at the Pinette and Therrien lumber mill here Friday in a dispute over disciplinary action taken against a plant chairman.

The workers are represented by the IWA.

Third person charged in death

RICHMOND (CP) — A third person was charged Friday with attempted murder and robbery in a burglary here earlier in the week that left one man dead.

RCMP said charges were laid against Donald Francis Stefanke, 19, of North Vancouver.

Police earlier charged Matthew Steven Brent, 25, and Colleen Agnes Sinclair, 20, both of Richmond. They will appear in provincial court Sept. 12.

Mortgage-fraud charges laid

VANCOUVER (CP) — RCMP have laid 14 fraud-related charges against two Vancouver men in a $250,000 mortgage fraud.

The charges follow a six-month investigation by the RCMP commercial crime squad and involve dealings between April, 1977, and April, 1978.

Charged with fraud, conspiracy to commit fraud, theft and conversion with the intent to commit fraud are Jack Colin Campbell and William Neil Smith.

Merritt man charged in stabbing

MERRITT (CP) — A 19-year-old Merritt man was charged Friday with attempted murder after a stabbing incident at a motel here earlier this week.

Melson Drynock was charged Friday at the Nicola Valley Regional Hospital, where he is recovering from a stab wound in the abdomen. RCMP said that a justice of the peace was taken to the hospital to officiate when the charge was laid.

John Gilbert Giannasi, 45, also of Merritt is in serious condition in Royal Inland Hospital, Kamloops, where he is being treated for seven stab wounds to his back and arm.

First aid changes by WCB

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Workers' Compensation Board announced Friday several amendments have been made to industrial first aid regulations in British Columbia.

The board said the changes were adopted following extensive input from employers, union officials and industrial first aid attendants.

Among the notable changes is clarification of the board's responsibility for examination and certification of industrial first aid attendants. Requirements are specified for first aid services in remote areas and supplementary services where workers are isolated from the main work site, the board said.

In addition, the amendments include more detailed specifications for first aid rooms, oxygen therapy equipment and industrial ambulances.

They also open an avenue of appeal to the board for attendants whose certificates have been suspended.

Clerk missed lively toddlers

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two small children and their mother were in hospital Friday after being saved from fatal drug overdoses by a hotel clerk who wondered why the lively boys were still in bed at noon.

The three were found unconscious Thursday in a downtown Vancouver hotel by a chambermaid who discovered pills spread all around the room. The boys were in serious condition in hospital while the mother was in good condition.

Police identified the children as three-year-old D. J. Hilton and five-year-old Allan Crawford Hilton. The mother is Nora Loraine Bob, 38.

Mike Rosse, chief desk clerk at the St. Helen's Hotel, went to check on the occupants but found their room quiet and asked the chambermaid to investigate.

Rosse said police told him it was a good thing he checked the room.

"In another half-hour the people in there would all have been dead."

Interest rates spurred again

ous administration," Crosbie said when told of the increase in a telephone interview from his St. John's, Nfld, home.

The rise is the ninth since March, 1978, and the second under the new government whose members were critical of previous increases while in opposition.

But Crosbie said Conservatives were critical not of the central bank but of the former Liberal government for putting Canada in a position where it had to match American bank rates.

Lorne Nystrom, a spokesman for the New Democratic Party, said "the Tories are doing exactly what Chretien was doing before." Jean Chretien was the Liberal finance minister.

Nystrom said he was shocked and outraged and that the increase isn't needed. It would worsen the unemployment picture since it would have a dampening effect on construction.

It also would take the shine off the Conservative promise to give tax relief on home mortages because any savings would be taken away by the high interest rates.

Herb Gray, the Liberal financial critic, said it was unfortunate that Parliament was not sitting so that Crosbie could be questioned about the need for the rate increase.

A committee of the Commons also could call the bank governor to have him explain why the action was taken.

Gray said the increase could cancel out any benefits to home owners under the Conservative plan to give income tax relief.

Bank governor Gerald Bouey said this increase and previous ones were necessary "to help deal with a resurgence of inflationary pressures from both external and internal sources."

Canadian interest rates must be high enough to continue to attract the inflow of funds needed to finance the "very large current account deficit in our international payments."

"Failure to maintain adequate incentives for such inflows as U.S. interest rates rise would increase the risk of a further significant decline in the exchange value of the Canadian dollar."

Camu resigns CRTC post

OTTAWA (CP) — Pierre Camu has resigned as chairman of the Canadian Radio-Television and Telecommunications Commission, Prime Minister Clark's office said Friday.

A spokesman said that Camus's resignation has been received and accepted. He did not know the reason for the resignation. Reports Thursday said that Camu wants to return to private life.

GOLD:

GIFT FROM THE SUN

Ancient man believed it was a gift from the sun. People have worshipped it since they first laid eyes on it. They have killed for it and nearly been killed trying to find it. I'm speaking of gold — the gleaming, rich yellow metal that has been so important in the social, political and cultural evolution of mankind.

Gold first caught man's eye because of its attractive gleam. It was used to decorate weapons and to honor tribal chiefs and the bravest warriors. It took the form of medallions of honor and royal crowns.

Gold was once used extensively for coins; then it shifted into the background as a back-up system for paper currency and less valuable metal coins. But gold no longer backs our currency. Today ours as well as most other world currencies are backed by credit.

Gold is known for its superior conductivity and reflectivity. As such, it has found its way into new technologies. The guidance systems that send men into space use gold. The astronaut's lifeline is coated with gold to reflect heat, and his visor is shaded with gold to protect his eyes.

When you wear gold jewelry, you are wearing a substance that has intrigued man for centuries, that has played important roles in many historical currents.

Gold is beautiful, spellbinding, awe-inspiring, and we will undoubtedly continue to cherish it long into the future.

Kidnap charges laid

EDMONTON (CP) — RCMP said Friday that Dennis McCullough, 38, of no fixed address has been charged with attempted murder and kidnapping in connection with an incident in which two young hitch-hikers were taken on a trip of terror.

RCMP said in August, Philip White and Dena Vinqvist, both 17 and of Victoria, were hitch-hiking back to Victoria when they were picked up by a motorist in Sudbury, Ont.

The youths wanted to stop over in Winnipeg but the man pulled out a knife and stabbed White, who lay in the back seat of the car for three or four days suffering from lung injuries.

When the car reached Quesnel, the driver tied White to a tree. He then took Miss Vinqvist with him, heading back to Alberta.

In Hinton, Alta., Miss Vinqvist managed to get to a service-station washroom where she wrote an SOS message on paper towels. Later, another user of the washroom found the message and notified police.

Black leaders vie in London

LONDON (Reuter) — Two of the main black contenders for power in Zimbabwe-Rhodesia arrived in London today saying they came to negotiate with the British government rather than each other.

Guerrilla leader Joshua Nkomo and Zimbabwe-Rhodesian Prime Minister Bishop Abel Muzorewa arrived at Heathrow Airport within minutes of each other and gave separate news conferences.

Nkomo called Prime Minister Muzorewa a bandit and discounted his presence at next week's British-sponsored Rhodesian constitutional conference.

"There is no government in Salisbury," he said, laughing. "There is a bunch of bandits and unfortunately the bishop has made himself one of the bandits."

Nkomo said Zimbabwe-Rhodesia is run by Lt.-Gen. Peter Walls, white commander of the armed forces, "representing the colonizing power, Britain."

A few minutes earlier, Bishop Muzorewa, flanked by black ministers from his bi-racial government, told reporters: "I came to negotiate with the British government because I do not believe anyone else can give us recognition."

While the wrangling went on in London, a military spokesman said today commandos from Zimbabwe-Rhodesia who struck deep into southern Mozambique in a sweep that reportedly killed some 300 black nationalist guerrillas and regular Mozambican army troops have returned to their bases.

"All troops have been recalled and have returned to base," the spokesman said as the black-led government wrapped up its largest reported foray into a neighboring black-ruled state of the seven-year guerrilla war.

And in Washington, the Carter administration says its decision to allow Zimbabwe-Rhodesia to send "one or two" government representatives to Washington does not mean the United States is recognizing that country's new black-majority government.

The doldrums are over as house prices soar

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

After years in the doldrums, Victoria's housing prices are rising at the rate of 12 per cent a year, one per cent a month, according to the Victoria Real Estate Board.

That means someone with a $100,000 house is gaining $1,000 a month, $12,000 a year. A $50,000 house, on average, is gaining $500 a month, $6,000 a year.

Collecting this profit is not easy, however. The only ways to translate it into cash is to sell the house and rent something or to move to a city where prices are lower and pocket the net gain.

Unfortunately, prices are lower in Victoria than in most major Canadian cities at this time and it is the other people who are making a profit by coming to Victoria.

For example, a Vancouver executive with a house worth $150,000 can sell it and buy the equivalent home in the Victoria area for $105,000, pocketing the $45,000 difference. And it's a tax-free gain.

A modest three-bedroom home in Toronto can be sold for $89,500 and the equivalent house bought here at $69,000, producing a tax-free cash gain of $20,500 by moving to Victoria.

A Calgarian would get $120,000 for a similar home and he could put a profit of $50,000 cash into the bank by moving to Victoria.

These facts are becoming generally known across Canada and as a result there is a surge of interest in Victoria real estate.

This buying pressure will send Victoria prices upwards, eventually eliminating the bargains.

One Alberta man recently paid $145,000 for a vacation home in the Saanich Peninsula. He will use it only two or three months a year but he probably will eventually move into it as a retirement home.

Another buyer from Ontario has just purchased an Oak Bay condominium and has rented it out for three years. Then he will retire and move into it himself.

"He's buying now while the price is a bargain. It is especially low by Toronto standards," Highton said.

This surge is just starting but the early action is impressive. There were 452 properties worth a total of $32 million sold in the Victoria area through the Multiple Listing Service in August, up from 290 units worth $18 million in the same month last year.

And a record 76 per cent of MLS listings were sold during August, up from 44 per cent the previous August.

Hopefully, Highton said, the supply of listings will continue to be large enough to meet the demand and keep the price increases orderly.

Rampant inflation in the housing market wouldn't help anyone, he said.

He expressed some concern about a likely surge in prices after details of the Conservative mortgage interest deductability are announced this fall.

Mortgage companies may raise their interest rates at the same time because buyers would be able to pay higher amounts, he warned.

(The Conservatives, as an election pledge, said up to $5,000 of mortgage interest paid in one year on the family home could be written off against taxes, plus up to $1,000 in municipal property taxes. For the average working person a $6,000 deduction is worth about $2,000 in cash. Nothing has been translated into law and the final plan may be considerably less than this).

Meanwhile, local real estate companies continue to be flooded with requests for information from potential out-of-town buyers.

Gordon Head is usually the first stop for these newcomers, Highton said.

"Gordon Head is the most popular residential area in the middle-price range. If they are looking for something special we take them to Ten Mile Point, The Uplands or Broadmead.

"We show them Gordon Head first and if they do not see what they are looking for we ask them whether they want to pay more or less. Gordon Head has become popular because of the good shopping centres, the abundance of schools and recreation facilities and the university.

"There is excellent bus service and the drive downtown is less than 15 minutes."

Highton said the short driving time is a big selling item, especially for buyers from Vancouver, Calgary or Toronto who often spend at least 40 minutes driving to work

The average price for a modern three-bedroom home in Gordon Head is about $69,000. Average prices are lower in most other areas of Saanich. But waterfront homes attract premium rates.

Highton rates Ten Mile Point as "probably the most interesting residential area" in the region because its houses are built among mature trees either on the waterfront or close to it. It has a rural atmosphere but is only about 20 minutes from downtown by car.

Waterfront mansions in Ten Mile Point sell at between $200,000 and $500,000. There are a few smaller homes away from the water under $100,000 but they sell quickly.

The Uplands has the most expensive homes in the Victoria area. The mansions along Beach Drive sell between $250,000 and $700,000 and a price tag of half a million is not uncommon. Highton said it may not be long before a residence goes for $1 million.

Oak Bay is another popular area, especially for prairie buyers, Highton said. It is close to good beaches and the houses, although old, are almost universally well-kept. Prices tend to be around $90,000 but there is a good mix.

The August selling price range of $45,000 to $107,000 is fairly typical. One year ago, the August selling price range in Oak Bay had been from $50,000 to $123,000.

Broadmead is a good area for large families because of the abundance of four-bedroom homes, Highton said. Prices tend to range from $100,000 to $200,000. It is one of the few homogeneous districts in Victoria and, as a result, there is almost nothing available under $100,000.

Victoria City has the greatest variety. There are expensive homes along Rockland and on the waterfront but they are quite close to areas of low-priced homes.

Fairfield and James Bay are popular residential areas because they are close to Beacon Hill Park and the waterfront and are within walking distance of downtown.

Saanich peninsula leads price parade

The Saanich peninsula, which has many expensive waterfront homes, recorded the highest average price for houses sold during August. Oak Bay ranked second and Saanich third.

One year ago, Oak Bay came first, Saanich Peninsula second and Saanich third.

Here are the ranges of houses sold in each district during August, followed by the average selling price. All figures are for the agreed selling price, not the asking price on the home.

DISTRICT	RANGE		AVERAGE
Saanich Peninsula	$34,000 to	$150,000	$69,295
Oak Bay	45,000 to	107,000	64,460
Saanich	31,000 to	145,000	62,737
Esquimalt	41,900 to	91,500	59,422
West Communities	34,000 to	109,000	58,212
Victoria City	35,000 to	152,000	58,000

Victoria 27th in Canada

Victoria ranks 27th out of 80 Canadian communities in house prices.

A survey by Royal Trust showed a modern three-bedroom home in Gordon Head would sell at $69,000, while in a similar area in Vancouver (Kerrisdale) it would cost $107,500.

Here are some other comparisons for the same three-bedroom home:

CITY	PRICE
Calgary	$120,000
Edmonton	110,000
Vancouver	107,500
Toronto	89,500
Red Deer	80,000

Royal Oak worries highways minister

Highways Minister Alex Fraser said Friday he's not sure he'll act on Provincial Secretary Hugh Curtis' objections to the Royal Oak industrial park, but he has some concerns of his own.

Fraser said he has inspected the site along with the highways ministry's chief engineer and isn't yet convinced the increased traffic created by the park would be compatible with the Pat Bay highway traffic flow.

"Our concern is its relationship to a major artery of the B.C. highways system," Fraser said. The ministry doesn't want an access to impede traffic on the Pat Bay highway.

He says he is waiting for the final opinion from the engineers and he'll wait to see what they say before making a decision.

Because of the Socred caucus meeting all next week in Delta, Fraser said he likely won't look into the matter again until the week following.

And Fraser said he wants to make it clear he is not working under any deadline for the decision.

"I understand others do, and I'm amused by it, but I have no deadlines," he said. "We can't operate that way."

Saanich council has said several times it expects to hear from the ministry by Sept. 10.

Curtis, who is the area MLA, has been outspoken in his criticism of the proposed industrial park. He feels a suitable industrial park already exists at Keating Cross Roads and there is now too much residential buildup around the Royal Oak site.

Enrolment surprises at UVic

University of Victoria enrolment this week totalled 7,101 undergraduates, up 367 from last year and a pleasant surprise for UVic officials.

With enrolment declining in the faculty of education, due to the surplus of teachers, little or no increase had been expected over last year.

UVic president Dr. Howard Petch said he could not explain the increase, although he noted it seemed to be centred on science courses.

This could be the result of UVic's co-op program that provides summer employment for top students as part of their science training, he said.

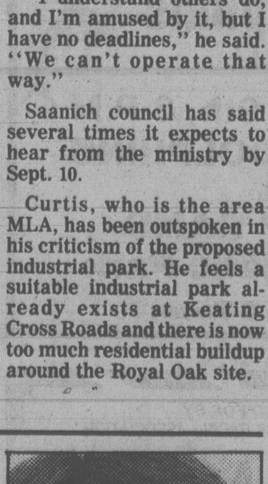
The arts and science faculty registered 296 more students than last year.

Meanwhile, there were 34 fewer students in the faculty of education, 94 less in social development and eight less in fine arts.

The law faculty continued to grow with 19 more students than last year.

In all there were 214 more full-time students than last year. In 1978 the increase had been only eight full-time students. In addition, there were 153 more part-time students, about the same as last year's increase of 148.

Candidate, 19, eyes council



TRAVIS
. . . facing an obstacle

The first candidate for this fall's Victoria civic election is almost certainly the youngest as well, 19-year-old Dermod Travis.

He is seeking one of the eight aldermanic vacancies.

Travis, of 402-1031 Burdett, is owner or partner in three business enterprises: a television production company, a retail firm specializing in communications equipment for the deaf and a downtown news stand.

Travis says his youth will be his main obstacle to getting elected and he will try to counter this by conducting a hand-shaking campaign.

Despite his business background, Travis said council should have a cross-section of people and must not be dominated by the merchant community.

Nor should it be dominated by the left wing, he said.

Bigger tourist bite on municipalities?

Victoria Visitors Information Centre president Ed Higgin announced today he will ask local municipalities for signficantly larger grants for tourist promotion work.

The municipalities will be asked to match private enterprise dollar for dollar, he said. For example municipal grants this year totalled only $40,000 or $110,000 less than funds contributed by Victoria businessmen through VIC membership dues.

If the VIC gets $200,000 from its members next year, it will ask local municipalities to make a matching $200,000 grant.

Higgin said the request likely would result in a fierce debate in council chambers.

"It sounds like a lot of money but it is no more than they are doing in Vancouver and Seattle and Edmonton and Calgary, where the municipalies, at the minimum, match dollar for dollar for tourist promotion work."

Higgin said Victoria's tourist promotion budget totalled $190,000 this year but should have been many times that amount.

"We are close to the time when we will be needing a million dollar budget. It is less than five years away. And half the money should come from the municipalities."

The tourist industry this year will be worth $250 million to the economy of the Victoria area and this will increase by about $30 million next year to $280 million, he said.

A tourist promotion budget of one per cent would be $2.8 million but that is probably an unreasonable figure, Higgin said.

The promotion funds would be used to attract additional visitors, especially from the Canadian prairies.

Victoria is becoming a prime tourist destination for people from Alberta and Saskatchewan and this must be encouraged further, he said.

Tourist revenues this year at $250 million will be 25 per cent above last year's total of $200 million. This surpasses the provincial increase of nine per cent to $1.65 billion.

Don Phillips, provincial minister in charge of tourism, announced the nine per cent increase Friday and added there should be an additional 10 per cent increase next year.

The 1980 tourist promotion for B.C. will carry the slogan Funfest '80, Phillips said, but gave no further details.

Man held in knifing incident

A 31-year-old man is in custody following a knifing incident in front of a food store at 819 Esquimalt Rd. at 2 a.m. today.

Arthur Joseph Jones, 1349 Lyall, appeared in provincial court charged with assault causing bodily harm to Patrick Alan Joynson, 20, of 310 Roberts. He was remanded to Monday for plea.

Joynson was released from Victoria General Hospital following treatment for cuts to his abdomen, hand, arm and scalp.

Q. Can you tell me if Gothic architecture originated in England? J.W.

A. No. It came into being in France around 1137. It was introduced into England in 1175 and quickly developed a style of its own.

Lightning zaps U.S. TV

B.C. Hydro crews were out most of the night repairing power outages caused by a wet and windy storm that swept across southern Vancouver Island overnight.

A bolt of lightning struck near the Victoria cablevision repeater station on Mt. Tolmie, causing an evening-long disruption in the signals bringing in American television stations.

No major damage was reported and most of the outages were minor except in the Duncan area where several lines were knocked down by falling trees.

The Pacific Rescue Centre had a flury of calls from boaters at the peak of the storm between 7 p.m. and 9 p.m. but no major problems developed.

A spokesman for the Weather Office at Victoria airport said winds were blowing at 32 km/h and gusting to 59 km/h.

The storm dumped 19.3 mm of rain, or more than half the average rainfall at the airport for the entire month of September. A further 5.8 mm of rain fell between midnight and 5 a.m. today.

The weatherman said 41.8 mm of rain has fallen since the beginning of the month. The average for the month is 36.6 mm although last year 58 mm was recorded.

Boyd sparks Rocks to third cup win

By BILL WALKER
Times Staff

"What do they need pickups for when they've got juniors like that?"

That was the reaction of Ben Floyd, coach of the Peterborough Red Oaks, referring to Jim Boyd and Tarey Pollock of Victoria Shamrocks following Friday's third game of the Mann Cup lacrosse final at Memorial Arena where the Oaks got blown down by the Rocks 23-11 and nearly blown right out of the series.

The Shamrocks lead the best-of-seven set 3-0 and can win the Mann Cup for the first time since 1957 tonight.

Boyd and Pollock, both Esquimalt juniors, were called on to fill in for Vancouver's Doug Hayes, who was unable to attend, and veteran Joe McCrea, who sat out with an injury; and they were something the Red Oaks didn't expect.

Both had helped the Rocks through their league playoffs and they fitted right in. For Boyd, in particular, it was a case of being an instant success. A standout, he scored four goals and had one assist while Pollock had two assists.

"I only wanted the chance," Boyd said. "I knew I could play against Peterbrough."

Floyd was reiterating a point he had made at the start of the series that the Shamrocks were strong enough without adding Hayes, Dan Wilson and Wayne Goss.

And, after Friday, it's doubtful if there were many in the crowd of 3,009 who weren't prepared to concede he had a point.

Boyd's first goal gave the Rocks the lead for the first time at 2-1 in the first period, while his second and third came when the Rocks ran in five unanswered goals in six minutes of the second period after Peterbrough had fought back for a 5-5 tie.

He got his fourth late in the game after passing up an earlier chance with the Peterborough goalie out of position. It was an uselfish play as he elected to retain possession rather than take a shot he wasn't set for.

Nobody was quite certain if it was a record for a junior in his first Mann Cup, but it will do until a better one is found. The next best part is that Boyd, who is eligible for the draft this year, wants to play in Victoria, nowhere else.

And, speaking of records, there could have been a new one — for assists, but the Irish bench wasn't aware it.

Ivan Thompson had eight assists as early as 7:53 of the third period and one more would have given him a new mark. But he didn't play that much later on. Thompson and Wilson each had eight assists in the opening game won by the Rocks 19-9 and share the record with Pat Differ of Vancouver. Shamrocks won the second game 12-10.

Thompson now leads all pointmakers with 25.

Otherwise, other Rocks made scoring news with a solid team effort.

Bob Cool also got four goals to run his series total to eight. He shares the series lead with Kevin Alexander. Jim Lynch also scored four. Wilson had three goals and four assists. Rick Baker, given his first shot at a regular shift, got three. Goss had two goals and five assists. Chris Hall had two and Bell a single.

Alexander didn't play after the first period when he had four assists. He was not feeling well.

Coach Bill Munroe used his full bench and it paid off, Floyd admitting his club was outrun. "I think they're in better shape than we are," he conceded.

The Rocks led 5-3 after one and 13-6 after two and the Red Oaks never came close after that one brief surge.

Larry Ferguson and J.J. Johnston each scored two for the Red Oaks while singles went to John Grant, Mike Collins, Tom Parnell, Guy Legault, Jim Wasson, Jim Johnston and Tom Patrick.

Shamrock goalkeeper Larry Smeltzer made 31 saves and Scott Marshall, who replaced him in the third period, made six. Tim Barrie stopped 22 drives for the Oaks and Les Teatro, who came on in the third period, made 10.

Fourth game goes tonight with Peterborough facing elimination.

Although downcast, Floyd wasn't giving up. "We'll make a game of it," he promised."

Game time is 8 p.m. with a fifth game, if necessary, set for Monday.

Bowler-of-week enters 17th year

Bowlers on southern Vancouver Island lanes have only three more weeks to practice before the start of the 17th annual Victoria Times' Bowler-of-the-Week contest.

The competition, which runs for 26 weeks with the exception of a Christmas break Dec. 22 to Jan. 4., gets under way Sept. 29.

Anyone bowling in a regular league in the Greater Victoria, Sidney, Duncan, Chemainus, Youbou or Lake Cowichan areas is eligible to compete.

Times change for Chrissie, Billie Jean

NEW YORK (AP) — It was 1971. The United States Open was played on grass then, at the picturesque West Side Tennis Club in Forest Hills. A blonde 16-year-old named Chris Evert was getting ready to play the reigning queen of tennis, Billie Jean King.

"Sure I remember," said Chrissie, now 24, the wife of British pro John Lloyd and aiming for a fifth straight U.S. Open championship.

"She was someone I'd heard so much about and seen on TV," Lloyd recalled. "She was my idol, in a way. I was a shy little 16-year-old and I felt intimidated. During the course of our match, I never felt that I could beat her."

And she couldn't, bowing meekly 6-3, 6-2.

But that was long, long ago, on a tennis court that seems far, far away from the new National Tennis Centre in Flushing Meadow, which became the Open's home last year. And Friday it was King who was no match for Lloyd, who pulverized her with stunning ease, 6-1, 6-0, in a 50-minute massacre in the semi-finals.

The other three semi-finals were scheduled for today. In the opening match, Martina Navratilova met Tracy Austin for the right to face Lloyd in Sunday's final. In the men's draw, defending champion Jimmy Connors met John McEnroe and Vitas Gerulaitis opposed Roscoe Tanner.

In another match Friday, the top-seeded team of McEnroe and Peter Fleming won the men's doubles title with a 6-2, 6-4 triumph over Bob Lutz and Stan Smith.

Lloyd now has beaten King in their last eight meetings and holds a 16-7 lifetime edge. None of those wins came more easily than Friday's.

"After the first couple of games, she didn't have the spark she usually has," said Lloyd. "I went out expecting a really rough match, mentally and physically, but I didn't get it. I can't remember ever beating her worse than that."

For the record, this only equalled their most lopsided match. Twice Lloyd had dropped just one game in beating King, but both those matcheswere played on clay, Lloyd's favorite surface. The Open is played on DecoTurf, a rubber-coated cement surface more suited to King's attacking game.

Lloyd, the No. 1 seed, won 54 points to just 24 for King, the 35-year-old No. 9 seed who won this title four times between 1967 and 1974 and had upset fourth-seeded Virginia Wade en route to the semi-finals.

After the match, King complained of a sore neck and was treated by the tournament physician. She did not appear at the post-match news conference but was healthy enough to play doubles later in the day, teaming with Martina Navratilova to beat Sherry Acker and Julie Anthony 6-2, 7-5 in a semi-final.

Sailors stalled again

SEATTLE (AP) — The 25-boat fleet in the world six-metre yacht championships sat becalmed for the second day in a row Friday, but the weekend sailing outlook was more promising.

A forecast of winds from 10 to 20 knots through Sunday prompted race officials to schedule two races today.

"If we can get in two Saturday and two Sunday we'll be right back on schedule," said Sunny Vynne, race committee chairman.

"We still have five days to get in the required five races."

Drag racer killed

EDMONTON (CP) — A 25-year-old drag racer died Friday night when his dragster smashed into a stalled car at Edmonton International Speedway.

His name was not released. He had just won a time trial, but failed to stop and struck the stalled car, 240 metres past the finish line.

He's Mr. Gerald to awed Dodgers

By The Canadian Press

"What's that guy's name?" is all Joe Morgan wanted to know.

In his first appearance of the baseball season after being recalled from the minors, Los Angeles Dodgers pitcher Gerald Hannahs struck out Morgan, Dave Concepcion and George Foster — all looking — to save a 6-5 National League victory for the Dodgers over Cincinnati Reds on Friday.

Elsewhere in the NL, St. Louis Cardinals downed Montreal Expos 5-4, East-leading Pittsburgh Pirates beat New York Mets 6-4 in 14 innings to move two games up on the pressing Canadian team; San Francisco Giants defeated Houston Astros 9-2; Chicago Cubs nipped Philadelphia Phillies 4-3 and San Diego Padres blanked Atlanta Braves 8-0.

"It's Gerald, not Gerry, and it's Hannahs with an 's'," an unexcited Hannahs told a barrage of reporters afterward.

Hannahs, who had 11-8, won-lost record for the Dodgers triple-A farm club at Albuquerque, was unimpressed with paralysing the heart of the Reds' batting order in an important game for pennant-contending Cincinnati.

Morgan watched a knuckle-curve for strike three, Concepcion did the same, and Foster watched a fastball.

"I really didn't give too much thought to who I was facing. I've never faced any of them before," said the 26-year-old, lefthanded Hannahs, who was acquired by trade from Montreal two years ago. "I was relaxed as I could be. They just struck out. It was just one of those days."

Montreal hasn't been making too many mistakes lately, so maybe it was time for one. And what a beauty it was, too.

Playing peerless baseball in a 10-game winning streak that thrust them into the thick of the NL's East race, the Expos literally threw away their game against St. Louis.

"It was a mental lapse for a second," said second baseman Dave Cash, who failed to cover second base when Tony Scott broke from first for the bag. As a result, catcher Gary Garter's throw sailed into center field and Ted Simmons sailed home from third with the go-ahead run.

Dave Parker's single drove home the tie-breaking run as Pittsburgh scored twice in the 14th inning to beat New York.

In the American League, California outfielder Dan Ford continued his torrid September hitting pace, driving in three runs to support Nolan Ryan's four-hitter as California Angels beat Milwauke Brewers 6-3.

The pennant-minded Angels have played seven games in this season's final month, and Ford has two doubles, three homers and nine runs batted in. Friday night, he smashed his 21st home run — a career high — and the three RBI raised his season's total to 88, another lifetime best.

In the other AL games, Toronto Blue Jays squandered an eight-run lead and lost to Cleveland Indians 9-8, Baltimore Orioles edged Boston Red Sox 2-1, Detroit Tigers blanked New York Yankees 6-0, Texas Rangers trimmed Minnesota Twins 5-4, Oakland A's nipped Chicago White Sox 4-3 in 10 innings and Kansas City Royals topped Seattle Mariners 6-2.

$65,000 price tag on under-agers

TORONTO (CP) — The National Hockey League has agreed to pay the Canadian Major Junior Hockey League up to $65,000 for every under-age player picked up in the recent pro draft.

The NHL agreed Friday to pay the CMJHL — composed of the Quebec, Ontario and Western major junior leagues — $40,000 if an under-age (19-year-old) player signs and stays with an NHL club for the entire 1978-79 season.

If the player stays less than a full season the compensation will be proportionately less.

"There's no doubt that losing the 19-year-olds, our star players who attract spectators, is a big blow to the junior teams," said Ed Chynoweth, chief negotiator for the CMJHL. "But this agreement gives us some compensation."

The NHL was reluctant to draft under-age players but had been warned by its lawyers that it faced a lawsuit if it deprived the players of the right to make a living at hockey.

The payments will be made in three installments, on Oct. 1, Dec. 1 and Feb. 1.

The NHL also agreed to the same formula for development fees for 20-year-olds that was in effect last year. Simply, if a player is drafted in the first round and plays a full NHL season, the CMJHL would collect an additional $25,000. The amount would decrease for players drafted in later rounds.

The entire agreement must be renegotiated next year because the NHL plans to draft 18-year-olds.

Camrose reigns

CAMROSE (CP) — Camrose Merchants became the Western Major Fastball League champions for the third time in three years, defeating Wetaskiwin Car Capitals 4-1 to take the best-of-nine final 5-2.

Cougar grads step up

Four former Cougars took another step forward along the hockey trail this week, signing with National Hockey League clubs.

Centre Gary Lupul 20, who paced the Cougars with 53 goals and 54 assists for 107 points in the Western Hockey League last season, signed with Vancouver Canucks; Geordie Robertson, another centre, has signed with Buffalo Sabres; winger Randy Irving of Lake Cowichan will try out with Colorado Rockies and winger Mike Shields has agreed to trial terms with New York Rangers.

All four were passed up in the summer draft but made it as free agents.

Lupul, 5-8 and 175 pounds, is a native of Powell River, where the Canucks and their 37 hopefuls open training camp Sept. 16.

As there will be about six or seven centres at the Vancouver camp, it is probable that Lupul would be destined for the Canucks' farm team in Dallas.

However, he says he is prepared to accept that.

Lupul also is looking forward to playing for the Canucks against Los Angeles Kings at Memorial Arena, Sept. 24, and with the Canuck rookies against the Cougars Sept. 27.

Robertson had 31 goals and 42 assists for 73 points in only 54 games for the Cougars last season as he twice was sidelined with injuries.

Also signed by the Canucks was Dirk Graham, 20, who patrolled right wing last season for Regina Pats, and six-five defenceman Rory Cava, a graduate of Ottawa 67s.

In other NHL happenings, Detroit Red Wings claimed Tom Webster from Hartford Whalers and Atlanta Flames signed two U.S.-born-and-trained prospects . . . Webster played with Detroit in 1970-71 and scored 30 goals before jumping to the now-defunct World Association . . . Left-winger Jimmy Bennett and defenceman Mike Mastrullo were the players signed by Atlanta . . . Both played at Brown University.

Little enjoys change

Times News Services

Sally Little, enjoying a three-stroke lead after one day of Ladies' Professional Golf Association competition in Denver, says her worst enemy used to be herself.

Now, said the South Africa native Friday after carding a six-under-par 66 that included eight birdies, she has conquered the enemy and gained two big allies — her putting and her 5-iron.

"I hate to say I'm a great putter," Little said. "But I think putting has helped me a lot . . . that's where you get the low number."

The "low numbers" — a 34 on the front nine and a blistering 32 on the back nine — gave Little a three-shot advantage over Amy Alcott and Cindy Hill.

U.S. Open champion Jerilyn Britz was four strokes off the pace, at 70, while defending champion Kathy Whitworth, former champion Judy Rankin and Cathy Sherk of Port Colborne, Ont., were among a large group at 71.

Dale Shaw off Victoria shot a 75.

Three share lead at Pleasant Valley

SUTTON, Mass. (AP) — Veteran Terry Diehl and two virtual unknowns, Ed Sabo and David Thore, fired five-under par 66s Friday for a share of the opening-round lead in the $250,000 Pleasant Valley golf tournament.

One stroke back after the first round of the rain-delayed, 72-hole event were Ben Crenshaw, Marty Fleckman and Bobby Baker. Seven players were at 68 as 39 players bettered par, 36-35—71, on the 7,119-yard course.

Diehl, 30, whose only tour victory was in the San Antonio Open in 1974, went out in two-under 34 and then blazed home with a 32 for his 66.

Two former Pleasant Valley champions, Ray Floyd and Lanny Wadkins, each shot four-over 75. After signing their cards, they withdrew and headed for home, irking tournament chairman Ted Mingolla, who said he felt they owed more to fans and sponsors of the tournament.

B.C. boys pour it on

BURNABY — British Columbia had little trouble in its first game of the Western Canada Youth (16-and-under) soccer championships at Swangard Stadium, Friday.

Mark Karpun scored four goals as B.C. walloped Manitoba 11-1. Paul Askew of Victoria scored two goals. Adam Keith is another Victorian playing on the provincial team.

Alberta defeated Saskatchewan 8-2 in the other opening-day game. The four-team, round-robin tournament concludes Sunday.

BIRDS GET MOLINARO

BALTIMORE (AP) — Baltimore Orioles of the American Baseball League have claimed outfielder Bob Molinaro on waivers from Chicago White Sox.

Yugoslavs shock U.S. hoop team

MEXICO CITY (CP) — Yugoslavia, which has yet to win a medal at the World University Games, is the latest country to ambush the United States in a sport that the Americans hoped to dominate.

The Yugoslav men's basketball team, trailing by 19 points early in the second half Friday night, caught fire and downed the U.S. team 79-73, leaving the Americans a game away from elimination.

To reach the semi-finals, the U.S. must win its two remaining second-round games against Bulgaria tonight and Canada Sunday.

The unbeaten Canadians disposed of Bulgaria 106-84 Friday night and face the Yugoslavs today.

Leo Rautins of Toronto was Canada's top scorer with 25 points, while Romel Raffin of Kitchener and Ross Quackenbush of Toronto had 15 apiece. Martin Riley of Winnipeg contributed 13 and Howard Kelsey of Vancouver had 10.

It was a rough day for the Americans, who won only one of four swimming finals to fall farther behind the leading Soviet Union in the gold medal standings. After five days of competition, the Russians had 19 golds to 10 for the U.S. and five for third-place Romania.

Canada won its first medal of any color when Helene Pelletier of Quebec City and Nick Mohtadi of Calgary gained a bronze in the mixed doubles of the tennis tournament with a 6-7, 6-2, 6-2 victory over Kathy Nelson and Ron Rice of the U.S.

The Canadian women's basketball team had an encouraging performance, winning 65-62 over previously unbeaten Bulgaria to atone for a 77-73 loss to Poland the night before.

The U.S. women also enjoyed a bit of revenge with a 105-74 decision over Cuba, the country that defeated them in the Pan-American Games final last July.

Honors were divided in the swimming finals as the U.S. men's team triumphed in the 4x100-metre medley relay, Sergei Roussine of the Soviet Union took the men's 400 freestyle.

Sue Mason of Halifax was fourth behind Maas and the foursome of Cam Henning of Edmonton, Claude Lachaine of Laval, Que., Tyler Cant of Vancouver and Denis Dufour of Quebec City placed fourth in the relay.

The Canadian men's volleyball team lost its first game in five starts to Cuba 15-9, 15-17, 13-15, 15-9, 15-3 and was eliminated from medal competition.

Borbon found guilty of assault

CINCINNATI (AP) — Baseball pitcher Pedro Borbon of the National League's San Francisco Giants was found guilty Friday of assault in connection with an incident earlier this year at a local disco. The jury deliberated 5½ hours over a two-day period before announcing its decision. Sentencing was delayed until Oct. 5 and Borbon remained free on his own recognizance.

Albertans surprise

CALGARY (CP) — Alberta Tomahawks played their best game of the tournament Friday to defeat Burnaby Cablevision 14-10 in a Minto Cup junior lacrosse game.

But the victory, Tomahawks' first after three losses in the three-team, round-robin national tournament, came too late. Burnaby and Peterborough had already clinched berths in today's championship final.

Jeff Metka paced Tomahawks with three goals while Paul Byrne, John Schneider and Doug Kirillo had two each. Greg Cook, Dean Sarnecki, Pete Mutch, Mark Bourett and Chris Skrobot added singles.

Mike O'Reilly and Dan McLenaghen each scored twice for Burnaby, with singles going to Gary Purdon, Paul Dalmonte, Wayne Hinada, Murray McRitchie, Lloyd Symons and Steve Laleune.

Golf winners

A policeman and a priest shared honors in the annual RCMP golf tournament at Royal Colwood Golf Club, Friday. Brian Wiseman of the Courtenay detachment took the low gross championship with an 83 while Father Willard O'Brien of Colwood captured handicap honors with a net 73.

Victoria rowers fourth

BLED, Yugoslavia (CP) — Canada dropped to the small finals in two semi-final events at the world rowing championships Saturday, while the Soviet Union finished first in a photo-finish in its effort to take away East Germany's coxed fours title.

Bruce Ford and Patrick Walter of Victoria placed fourth in the double sculls with a clocking of six minutes, 34.43 seconds, while Michael Evans and Timothy Britton-Foster of Woodstock, Ont., wound up sixth and last in the coxless pairs in 6:59.21.

The Soviet Union, which defeated the East Germans twice this year, won their semi-final heat in coxed fours by 0.06 seconds ahead of West Germany.

The East Germans, last year's world champions and rowing in the first heat of the day on Lake Bled, covered the 2,000 metres in 6:20.81 while the Soviet Union had a time of 6:26.29.

Spain, in third place in the Soviet Union's heat, also qualified for today's final along with East Germany, Bulgaria the United States.

Frank and Alf Hansen, Norway's world champions, won their double sculls semi-final heat in 6:27.36, with East Germany and Czechoslovakia winning final berths in the same heat.

East Germany was second in 6:30.30, followed by Czechoslovakia in 6:30.58, Canada, the U.S., and Austria. Bruno Saile and Jurg Weitnauer of Switzerland won the second heat in 6:32.03, followed by Britain, 6:32.61, and West Germany, 6:34.32.

In the coxless pairs, Youri and Nikolai Pimenov of the Soviet Union won their semi-final group in 6:51.54, ahead of Denmark, 6:52.26, and Britain, 6:52.48. The Netherlands was fourth, followed by Czechoslovakia and Canada. East German brothers Jorg and Bernd Landvoigt won the second heat ahead of West Germany, Switzerland and the U.S.

Point races close

Tight driver points battles should provide some exciting auto-racing action tonight at Western Speedway.

Only 38 points separate first-place Pete van de Mortel and fourth place in the stock car division while a mere 13 points separate leading Bruce Aldridge from runner-up Don Stewart in the jalopy class.

This will be the last race for each class of vehicle prior to the championship races Sept. 29.

Time trials get underway at 7 with racing scheduled at 8.

Sandown shows significant boost

The 65-day summer harness meeting comes to an end at Sandown Raceway this afternoon with moderate success assured and improvements planned for the years ahead designed to cater to racing patrons.

While there has been only a small increase in attendance, about two per cent, there has been a significant 22 per cent increase in the mutuel handle over the inaugural meeting of last year.

When the final dollar passes through the mutuels today, the daily average will be about $98,000, which is just about what general manager Jim Keeling Jr. predicted at the start of the meeting.

Last year's mutuel average was $80,706 and the per race average, $8,898.

Keeling says this shows a tremendous increase in the knowledge of the fans in harness racing and he feels that a long-term program of capital improvements is needed to bring Sandown facilities up to the standards that people demand today.

First will be improved wagering facilities with a computerized tote which will permit all types of wagering at all windows, including the Triactor, a popular feature at many tracks. Instantaneous odds and payoffs will be another feature.

Video equipment, which will show race reruns in color, an improvement in access roads, washrooms and lounge areas, the latter complete with mutuel facilities, are also included in the future book.

Highlight of the final day's program was the race for driver honors between Joe Hudon and Keith Linton.

Hudon had a five-point lead over Linton in the Universal Driving Rating competition for the CFAX Trophy after Friday's card. He scored with Kawartha Oshawa ($4.90) in the first while Linton only had one third-place finish in four races.

Today Hudon was named to drive seven horses while Linton was listed for eight.

The UDR system charges drivers with nine points for a drive and credits them with nine points for a win, five for place and three for show.

Pumfrey captures fifth seniors title

Gert Pumfrey of Gorge Vale Golf must feel right at home in the annual District One Vancouver Island Senior Ladies Golf Association tournament.

Pumfrey captured the Blair Paterson trophy for the fifth time Friday at Victoria Club with a low gross 88 in the 29th annual event.

Margaret McGowan took the Dolly Wilson Trophy for low net with a 68 and Margo Davison of Colwood the Ethel M. Todd Trophy for grandmothers with a low net of 74. Davison teamed with Joan McGlenen and Mickey Wescott to give Colwood the team championship with a 238 total.

Button winners, teams of two, were Freda Gardner and Phylis Walls of Gorge Vale. Clara Johnson of the Gorge was runner-up for low gross, Daima Mann of Victoria was low-net runner-up and Grace Retallack of Colwood the grandmothers' low-net runner-up.

Emily Medland of Colwood was elected president at the annual general meeting which followed the tournament. Alice Johnson of Gorge Vale was named vice-president; Carol Bradshaw of Prospect Lake, treasurer, and Joan McGlenen, secretary. Past president is Mrs. G. Gardner of Ardmore.

Messersmith out

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Los Angeles Dodgers have requested waivers on the contract of pitcher Andy Messersmith in order to give him his unconditional release.

Messersmith, 34, has been on the disabled list since June 4 because of arm problems. He underwent surgery to correct a damaged nerve earlier this month in San Francisco.

Craig Russell coming to Royal

Russell a la Streisand

It's just possible that Craig Russell may be one of the most talented female impersonators of all time. He's certainly the most acclaimed of the present day.

Victorians will be able to make up their own minds, for the sensational performer is coming here next week.

He will make a single appearance at the Royal Theatre, Wednesday, at 8 p.m. With him will be his own orchestra and musical director and keyboardist, Paul Hoffert.

Possessing a particularly pleasing voice with a good clear soprano quality and a well-proportioned compact body, he uses those physical attributes as well as the theatrical instincts and skill that brought him "best actor" award in the Canadian-based film, Outrageous, at the Berlin Film Festival.

A year ago he had a Carnegie Hall audience in an uproar with his brilliant impersonations of a whole range of glamorous ladies from Mae West and Bette Davis to Judy Garland, Billie Holiday, Marlene Dietrich, Janis Joplin and Barbra Streisand, to mention just a few.

Russell's non-stop show keeps the audience in hysterics, according to most reviewers. He changes stunning costumes and wigs in an off-stage dressing room while he draws breath between songs with electrifying speed. His sense of humor illuminates the whole show.

"In a way," says commentator Bob Grossweiner, "the Craig Russell Show is a trip down memory lane as he idolizes his stars. He weaves a cohesive fast-paced two-hour set and his numerous gossip sessions are marvelous."

Tickets for the Craig Russell show are at Memorial Arena and the Hillside Mall.

CBC brings talent to town

Something to titillate virtually every musical taste will be offered in a week-long celebration that will occupy Victoria's three major auditoriums this month.

Following a 10-year tradition, this province's CBC radio will present a fall festival of live music, setting it for the first time in Victoria.

Opening Sept.23 and continuing for eight days, the CBC Festival Victoria will be a 13-concert celebration offering Vancouver Island audiences a wide range of music. There will be six evening performances, five free noon-hour concerts and two afternoon performances.

Co-sponsors with the CBC are the McPherson Playhouse Foundation and the Universty of Victoria, the locations, plus the Royal Theatre, for festival events. The concert halls are being provided rent-free, but all proceeds from ticket sales will go to the McPherson Foundation and UVic.

The festival finale will also be the season's opening performances by the Victoria Symphony Orchestra with its new conductor, Paul Freeman.

To open the festival there will be a major choral performance, Sept.23, at University Centre Auditorium. The Vancouver Bach Choir and University Singers of Victoria will combine under the baton of George Corwin to perform the Requiem by Durufle. Other highlight concerts will include A Night at the Operetta, to be presented at the Royal Theatre on the evening of Sept.24.

Comprising highlights from the operettas of Lehar, Offenbach and Strauss, this will feature soprano Ingrid Suderman, tenor Glyn Evans and baritone Bernard Turgeon, with Timothy Vernon conducting the Victoria Symphony Orchestra.

The following night at McPherson Playhouse noted pianist Anton Kuerti will be presented in recital.

For jazz buffs there will be a concert in the McPherson Sept. 26 by the Don Thompson Trio. This marks the return to British Columbia of one of Canada's finest expatriate jazz pianist and bassist. On the same evening opera lovers will be enjoying a prestigious "first" at the University auditorium. This is the concert production (sung in English) of Rossini's comic masterpiece, Cinderella, conducted by Corwin with a distinguished cast of Canadian and American soloists. KCTS Nine cameras will be on hand and the occasion marks the first time for any Canadian university that a performance will be video-taped for broadcast on U.S. public television.

KUERTI
. . . recital

Country and folk music enters the evening spotlight with Canadian super-star Ian Tyson making a rare appearance in his home town, together with The Great Speckled Bird. The program will be shared by Shari Ulrich of Pied Pumpkin and Hometown Band fame. It takes place at University Centre Sept. 28.

And for high comedy there is Dr. Bundolo's Pandemonium Medicine Show at University Centre Sept.29.

Five noon-time concerts at McPherson Playhouse will present Victoria pianist Robin Wood in recital; guitarist Bob Hadley, the University of Victoria Faculty Ensemble, a recital by Canadian operatic mezzo soprano Judith Forst (appearing in the title role in Cinderella), and the innovative folk band, Pied Pear.

To mark the opening of the first CBC Festival Victoria, the national network music series, Mostly Music, will originate from British Columbia from Sept. 24 to 28. Host Howard Dyck and the Mostly Music production team will spend a week on the west coast recording programs, including the gala opening concert for broadcast on both CBC AM and CBC Stereo editions.

The afternoon show, Three's Company, will be originating live from Victoria Sept. 26-28. Hosts Anne Petrie and Patrick Munro plan three days of features and interviews from their broadcast location at the Provincial Museum. All concerts will be recorded for later broadcast on CBC national networks, both AM and Stereo.

Tickets for the special opening and all evening concerts, except the Victoria Symphony finale, are $3. Noon-hour concerts are free.

Symphony future looking up

By AUDREY JOHNSON

Victoria Symphony manager Bob McGifford and board president Dorothy Frost are not quite ready to proclaim that everything is coming up roses.

They are still looking at a $200,000 deficit as of the end of the 1978-79 season. But they are optimistic about the current stabilization of symphony affairs and the likelihood, thanks to a booming subscription campaign, of a break-even conclusion to the 1979-80 operation.

"Naturally we are concerned with means of cutting back that deficit," says McGifford, "but remember that we are no worse off and better than some among Canadian orchestras. In part the situation is the result of federal economies — grants are not keeping pace with inflation. This year, for instance, we have one of the better Canada Council increases; five per cent ($114,000) but inflation is up eight per cent."

Optimism on the part of Symphony officials, however, is certainly not unfounded.

In effect, what they are contemplating is a new beginning. And Frost hopes that a new board to be elected in October will participate in and enhance that feeling.

For openers the essential step was, of course, the appointment of Paul Freeman, the unanimous choice of musicians, public and jury. He is a dynamic, mature and widely experienced conductor whose astute mind has quickly encompassed the specific problems of the Victoria Symphony and the nature of the community.

Another scoop seems to have been achieved in McGifford's appointment as manager. Gifted symphony managers of substantial professional experience are about as scarce as four-leaf clovers in a hayfield.

The results obtained principally through these two new presences are striking.

The vividly colorful and easily read and understood season brochure — now being issued in a follow-up saturation mailing — supplemented by a well organized telephone campaign, have brought about a phenomenal renewal rate as well as new subscribers.

As the society enters the final phase of the campaign, current figures show a 48-per-cent increase over last year's total number of subscriptions. Altogether, renewals and new subscribers represent 75 per cent of capacity. Right now McGifford is looking for a 100 per cent sell-out well before the Sept. 30-Oct 1 pair of concerts opens the season.

It's a goal that has never been achieved by the Victoria Symphony and has only come within view less than half-a-dozen times in its 39 years.

In the meantime Freeman, between guest conducting appearances in Europe and the United States, has devoted many hours to familiarizing himself with all aspects of the city's musical climate, the Canadian scene and the special needs of the orchestra.

"It is a tremendous challenge," he says. "It's my responsibility to resolve specific difficulties, to promote confidence and enthusiasm among the musicians and create a thoroughly competent ensemble."

He explains that the core will consist of full contract players surrounded by players whose contracts guarantee them a minimum number of services during the season. Occasionally the special instrumentation of music programmed will require supplementary musicians engaged on a casual basis.

"It is essential to recognize the necessity of adequate remuneration for the musicians," says Freeman. "Maximum effort must be made to increase the security of musicians' employment. The present projection is 31 weeks of eight services (rehearsals and/or concerts) a week."

With the possibility of extended participation by the orchestra in next summer's Victoria International Festival, this projection will increase to something like 40 weeks or more. Such a period of employment naturally makes the Victoria Symphony a more attractive proposition to better musicians.

Freeman is dedicated to involvement of the symphony with all facets of the city's musical life, and especially in co-operative work with the University of Victoria school of music and the Conservatory of Music.

Auditioning musicians to fill vacancies in the orchestra is currently the new music director's main concern. At the moment he is conducting auditions in Edmonton and Toronto and on the east coast in a nationwide search for qualified string players.

For some years it has been well known that there is a dearth of good string players around the world. Freeman says we are lucky with what we have here, but the section needs building. In doing this however, he stresses, priority will definitely be given to resident players.

Among some of the newcomers will be principal bass player Mary Rannie from Thunder Bay, and a fine principal violist, Scott Lewis, lured from the Minneapolis Symphony.

The new principal bassoon is another woman, Nancy Hilborn, formerly of the London (Ont.) Symphony. She was the winner over three finalists. Freeman says the increase in female players in orchestras is noticeable everywhere.

He is strongly impressed with the quality of bassoon and bass players among Candian musicians: "In Toronto there are dozens of fine bassoons."

Freeman outlined some of the innovations he will introduce into rehearsal procedure.

"The first rehearsal for specific programs will be for the full orchestra," he explains. "At the second I will rehearse strings only for two-and-a-half hours and follow that with two-and-a-half hours of work with woodwinds, brass and percussion. Generally there will be five rehearsals for each concert.

"You will have noticed that each pair of string players at rehearsals and concerts shares one score. We have now, however, arranged for each player to have a copy of the music to take home so that he can work on it between rehearsals."

Another change relates to the bowing and will be an important time-saver. His plan is to have each principal in the string section do the bow markings for his section. The librarian will then copy the bow markings into all the scores. Formerly the players had to go to the symphony office to copy the bowing themselves or put it in at rehearsals.

Besides two regular pairs of concerts in October — the first will feature pianist Anton Kuerti and the second will be conducted by Canadian conductor Franz-Paul Decker, with violinist Dylana Jenson as soloist — there will occur the first of three "pops a la Boston" concerts. It will bring famed American conductor Carmen Dragon to the Royal Theatre on Oct. 10. American musical comedy soprano Kathy Knight and Victoria's Newcombe Singers and View Royal Community Choir (80 voices) will round out a versatile program.

Run your eye over the rest of the season and note such international luminaries as Gary Graffman, Leonard Rose, Liona Boyd, Robert Silverman, Hagood Hardy and Stanley Black; take into consideration those percentages quoted above, the three weeks that are left before "curtain-up" and the obviously whetted Victoria appetite for great music-making. It causes one to think.

Perhaps Victoria Symphony Society is about to hit a rare target with a pre-season sell-out.

If so, many of those who traditionally depend on picking up left-over tickets could find themselves out of luck this time round.

Dylan back on pulpit in his new album

By ROBERT HILBURN

The old Bob Dylan is back.

After insisting in interviews last year that he didn't want to be looked upon as a spokesman, the man whose songs articulate the idealism of American youth during the 1960s is back on the podium — pulpit? — again.

The key songs in Dylan's new Slow Train Coming album reflect the same social and moral concern that characterized such classic compositions as "Blowin' in the Wind" and "The Times They Are A-Changin'."

When he spits out these lines from the new album's title track, you can picture yourself back in the tumultuous '60s listening to Dylan's condemnation of social apathy and corruption:

All that foreign oil, controlling American soil.
Look around you, it's just bound to make you embarrassed.
Sheiks walking around like kings, wearing fancy jewels and nose rings:
Deciding America's future from Amsterdam and from Paris.

Later in the song, we get the moral outrage that Dylan used to pack into such songs as "The Death of Emmett Till" and "Only a Pawn in Their Game":

People starving and thirsting
Grain elevators are bursting
Oh, you know it costs more to store the food than to give it . . .
They talk about a life of brotherly love
Show me someone who knows how to live it.

But so much for the old Dylan.

It's the new Dylan that is going to make "Slow Train Coming" his most controversial. Do some of the songs — notably "When He Returns" — confirm the recent rumors that Jewish-born Dylan has become a "born-again" Christian? And, if so, how has it affected his music?

Until he clarifies things, the answer supplied by "Slow Train Coming" apparently is yes. There are even symbolic crosses on the album's front and back cover. But Dylan's religious feelings — although they may confuse some of his longtime fans — have not interfered with his art. This is a mainstream album of elegance and power. You don't have to adhere to a particular religious sect to appreciate it.

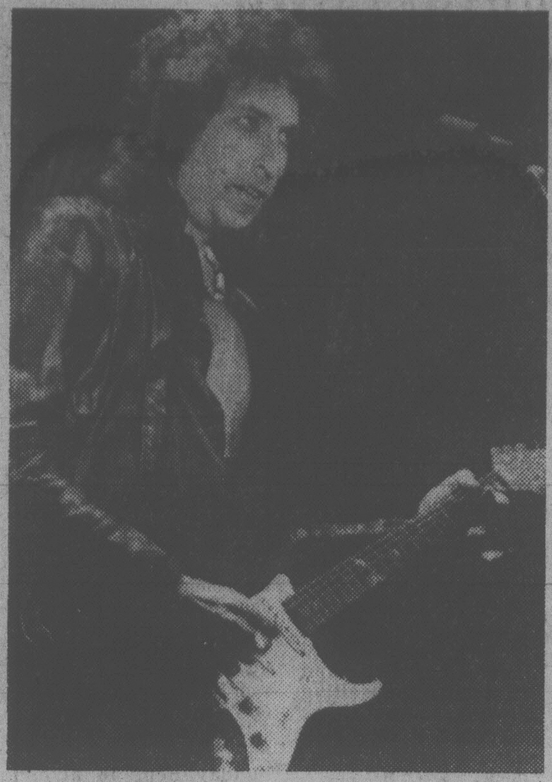
Besides, Dylan's music has always had a strong moral tone. Tunes like "Blowin' in the Wind" and "I'd Hate to Be You on That Dreadful Day" were as much religious statements as political ones. The difference this time is that all the songs are open to spiritual analysis and some have a specific Christian (as opposed to nondenominational) tinge.

From "When You Gonna Wake Up":

That's about all you got to do.

But there's danger in trying to read a person's mind through his lyrics. Dylan's imagery has always been broad enough for his songs to lend themselves to wide-ranging interpretation. That's one of his strengths.

More than most Dylan albums, "Slow Train Coming" requires a period of adjustment. When he turned out songs a decade ago that attacked social and moral decay, it was easy for a young, idealistic America to get behind him.



BOB DYLAN . . . a turn to religion?

The message in this album is more complex. For some, the "born-again" rumors will cloud their view of the music. Is the album self-indulgent? Is this Christian tinge simply another brief stop in the ever-changing Dylan persona? Is it anything more than a reflection of his fascination with American gospel music

Whatever Dylan's religious sentiments (now or in the future), the music is what remains. The LP's serene blues-gospel tone is short of the freewheeling dynamics of either the explosive "Highway 61 Revisited" or the spicy "Desire," but the music is stirring and elegantly designed. As both writer and singer he sounds more comfortable than in years.

AROUND THE GALLERIES

An exhibition of particular interest and fascination at Kyle's Gallery, 1545 Fort, features the recent acrylic paintings, graphite and pastel drawings of Montreal-born Catharine MacTavish. It opens officially Sunday at noon and will remain on view through Oct.4.

The acrylic paintings are of softly textured, serene window interiors; large all-over paintings with deep color undulations overlain by constellations of small whorls, cobwebs of bright colors and small ideographic markings. There are several meticulous pencil drawings.

Experiments with holograms using a laser beam on film, at York University and in San Francisco and Vancouver, finally led her to Egypt. Soon after she turned her attention to the graphic arts.

Back in Canada she studied lithography at the Banff School of Fine Arts and in 1977 moved to Vancouver to draw and paint. A one-woman show of graphite and ink drawings entitled Self-Centered was held at the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria in 1977.

In addition to the Turkish Miniatures show there will be opening this week at the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria an exhibition of English Delft from the 17th and 18th centuries, as well as Gallery Permanent Collection showings of British Watercolors and Old Master drawings.

The Delft is drawn mainly from one private collection and contains more than 150 pieces. Delft refers to heavy earthenware pottery which has been painted and glazed in a vigorous and bold style with a mixture of tin and lead glaze.

It first appeared in Europe at the time of the Moorish conquest of Spain, spread to Italy then to France and eventually to Antwerp and Delft in the Netherlands. By the mid-17th century tin-glazed earthenware was established in London.

This type of pottery was first used by apothecaries for storage and displayed on shelves around the shop. Drug jars, bleedig bowls, barber bowls, wine bottles, plates and dishes were just some of the forms more frequently manufactured in the London and Bristol factories.

From about 1640 to 1740 a characteristically English series of dishes, the "blue dash chargers" were manufactured. Later patterns were developed which were more unique to England — biblical scenes, portraits of English and European monarchs or highly imaginative "visions of Cathay". Examples of every type of subject matter will be found in the wares on display.

These shows will open mid-week at the gallery and remain on view to Oct.28 for the Delft and mid-October for the watercolors and drawings.

An intriguing two-artist show entitled Birds and Beasts will preview Tuesday, 7:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. at The Backroom Gallery, 2070 Oak Bay. On view will be etchings, mezzotints and woodcuts by Alistair Bell, and etchings, watercolors, charcoal and graphite drawings by Heather Cragg.

Bell's birds are imaginatively full of life and character. The artist has exhibited in many international graphics exhibitions throughout Canada, the United States and Britain.

Cragg has exhibited over the same area and, like Bell, has work included in many national, corporate and private collections. Her feeling and affinity for animals is strong and clear.

The exhibition continues through Sept. 22. Gallery hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday. Tuesday's preview takes place from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m.

Currently at the McPherson Playhouse Mezzanine Gallery there is an exhibition by the Esquimalt Arts and Crafts of paintings in oils, pastels, watercolors, acrylics and silkscreen. Works are available for purchase and will be on display through Sept. 28.

Bible books sales soar

The Canadian Bible Society reports that the 65 national Bible Societies of the world which are members of the United Bible Societies distributed 503,328,908 Bibles, Testaments, single books of the Bible and Scripture Selections in 150 countries and territories in 1978. This is an increase of 25.1 per cent over the previous year.

The largest increase was in Gospels for new literates which showed an increase of 89.8 per cent. Scriptures for new literates are available in more than 330 languages.

The most popular version in modern English is the Good News Bible (Today's English Version). In two and one half years, world distribution of the Good News Bible has exceeded six million copies and in the same time 325,000 have been distributed in Canada, which is a record for any book published in Canada. World distribution of the New Testament in the Today's English Version is now over 60 million copies.

Last year the Canadian Bible Society distributed eight million Bibles, Testaments, Gospels and Scripture Selections in 85 languages in Canada. This was the highest in history.

Christian Reformed pastor leaving

DeBRUYNE
. . . on to Ontario

Rev. Peter DeBruyne of the Christian Reformed Church has accepted a call extended to him by the Second Christian Reformed Church of Brampton, Ontario.

DeBruyne came to Victoria in the summer of 1971, after serving in churches at Edmonton and Regina.

DeBruyne was a member of the B.C. Council for the Family, a board member of the Island Pastoral Counselling Service, and an ardent supporter of the Christian Day School movement.

Since last September he and Rev. Dan Tigchelaar have been involved in a team ministry to meet the needs of a growing congregation at the church at 661 Agnes in Saanich.

DeBruyne and his family will be given a farewell by the congregation on Wednesday evening.

DeBruyne will preach his farewell sermon on Sunday, Sept. 16, at 7 p.m.

Action hours

The Victoria Ecumenical Action Office will be open from 9 a.m. to 12 noon, Monday to Friday at 643 Broughton. The phone number is 382-7122.

(The mailing address is 2148 McNeill, Victoria, V8S 2Y3.)

Single adults are invited to informal evenings for the sharing of common interests, starting today at 8 p.m.

The 30 Plus group will meet in Centennial United Church Lounge, 649 Gorge E. Norman Worsley, who is involved in community development, will lead the discussion.

The 50 Plus group will meet in St. Andrew's Kirk Hall Lounge, 680 Courtney Street. The program will be led by Mona and Roy Hundlesby, formerly with the Victoria Citizen's Counselling Centre.

Unitarian leader honored

Unitarianism has been active in Victoria since 1909. However, the church as it is today grew from a more recent Unitarian fellowship.

Members of this Unitarian fellowship, founded in 1950, attended monthly meetings, many of which were held in the offices of a then Victoria psychiatrist, Dr. Douglas Alcorn.

Alcorn was a prime mover in establishing Unitarianism in Victoria and he continued as a leader and active member of the present church until his death in 1968.

In honor of his life and work a newly-established church library will be dedicated at the 10:30 a.m. service Sunday. Mrs. Doreen Alcorn Windsor, widow of Alcorn, has donated his personal library to the Unitarian collection, which also contains over three hundred volumes donated by the Victoria Humanist Society.

The service and dedication will be conducted by Rev. Jack Kent, Unitarian minister from Vancouver.

Adult fall program outlined

Sacred Heart Roman Catholic church's adult education program this fall will consist of two series of study-discussions.

The first series of six sessions on The Child and the Family has been planned as a contribution by the Sacred Heart parish to the International Year of the Child.

The second series, the program for which is still tentative, has been organized at the request of Bishop Remi De Roo as a follow-up of the Institute on the Christian Initiation of Adults held in Victoria in July.

This program is intended for the benefit of the wider community of Victoria who could not attend the institute but are keen on participating actively in their respective parishes in the reorganized catechumenate as decreed by the Second Vatican Council.

The meetings will be held on Tuesdays from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. in the Pope John XXIII hall of the Sacred Heart Church on Nelthorpe in Saanich.

The programs are:

Series 1: The Child and The Family.

Sept. 18: The Child and the Family in Holy Scripture: Sister Clare Francis. Sept. 25: The Christian Education of Children: Dr. Edward Pires. Oct. 2: The Psychological Needs of the Growing Child: Sister Marguerite Lalonde. Oct. 9: The Moral and Spiritual Education of Children: Mrs. Leanne Smith. Oct. 16: Sex Education for Boys and Girls: Sister Teresa Doogan. Oct. 23: The Child in English Poetry: Mrs. Mary Carr Travis.

Series II: The Christian Initiation of Adults.

Oct. 30: The Rite of Christian Initiation of Adults: An Overview. Nov. 6: The Four Stages of the Catechumenate. Nov. 13: The RCIA as a Model for All Adult/Ecclesial Renewal. Nov. 20: The Conversion Experience. Nov. 27: Some Models of Catechesis. Dec. 4: Ministries in the Church and Catechemenal Ministries. Dec. 11: The Liturgies of the RCIA. Dec. 18: Developing a Pastoral Strategy for the RCIA.

Carter hosts world parley

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter said Thursday many wars have been fought and terrorism used under the banners of religious beliefs.

Carter hosted 275 participants of the Third Assembly of the World Conference on Religion and Peace. Ten of the world's major religions were represented by participants from 45 nations who had attended a convention at Princeton Theological Seminary.

Minister's installation set

Dr. Arthur Anderson will be installed as minister of visitation at First United Church, Quadra at Balmoral, at the 11 a.m. service Sunday.

A luncheon reception will follow in the fellowship hall. At the same time the congregation will consider a recommendation from the board that it sponsor a refugee family.

Church chronicles

THE MEN'S Club of the Truth Centre meets Monday, Sept. 17 at 8 p.m. The Ladies' Club meets Thursday, Sept. 20 at 2:30 p.m.

THE ANNUAL picnic of Church of the Nazarene, 886 Craigflower, is set for today at Gorge Park, starting at 2 p.m. Races, games and prizes are scheduled. Part of the plan is for everyone to bring some kind of food and all to share it. The church is providing plates, cups, cutlery, cold drinks and ice cream.

FULL Gospel Businessmen's Fellowship's speaker at the September supper will be Dwayne Jacobson, an architectural consultant from Vancouver, with a powerful testimony of what Christ has accomplished for him and his family.

Persons interested should phone in early to: Ross 477-7466, George 383-2049 or Rob 479-1319 before the evening of Sept. 16.

BILL Skinner, executive director of the Victoria YM-YWCA, will speak about the work of the Y in Victoria at the fellowship lunch of the Greater Victoria Council of Churches at noon Friday at the Y, 880 Courtney.

The lunches are open to all interested parishioners, lay or clergy, and an inspection tour of the facilities has been arranged.

A MEETING of the Victoria Presbytery of the United Church will be held at 7:30 p.m. Sunday at Fairfield United Church to induct Rev. Joseph Price as minister of the Fairfield pastoral charge.

THE CHILDREN'S Church of the Golden Key will resume activity 11 a.m. this Sunday at Victoria Truth Centre, 1201 Fort Street. All children are welcome.

The junior young people of the Truth Centre also resume activities Sunday. This is for children ages 14 and 15.

THE FIRST Christ Church Cathedral Anglican Church Women's meeting of the fall season will be held Tuesday at 2 p.m. in the parish hall lounge.

VICTORIA branch of the British Israel World Federation will welcome the newly-appointed world president, Rev. John Shenton of London, England, on Sunday at St. John Ambulance hall, 941 Pandora.

Shenton has been lecturing on British Israel for nearly 50 years in other places of the Commonwealth.

Undenominational, open to all believers, British Israel (which means Covenant man), states that the nation Israel was trained to be an example and to teach other nations God's plan for all mankind.

Perspectives

A few weeks ago, while rummaging in some files, I came across some sermon notes I had made about 20 years ago from a book then recently published, Dr. Joost A. M. Meerloo's Mental Seduction and Menticide. I recently made use of some of the notes in my preaching, and I feel that much of what Meerloo reported is in no way dated.

That word "menticide" is found in only some of the more recent dictionaries; it was coined to designate the destruction of the minds of persons. Meerloo, a psychiatrist from the Netherlands who had been in the U.S.A. since shortly after the end of the Second World War, worked clinically with some of the American soldiers who had been taken prisoner in the Korean War and had been subjected to what came to be called "brainwashing."

Meerloo concluded that very few people can stand up to the methods of brainwashing if they are applied with sufficient skill and ruthlessness. He said that infantile guilt feelings—which can never for any of us be completely eliminated—are the raw material for brainwashing; when they are probed and brought up to the surface on consciousness the process of personality and character destruction can be begun. He added that these feelings are unlikely to develop to a potentially dangerous degree in a person who has had a stable and secure environment as infant and child.

Meerloo also examined conditions and forces in ordinary society which can have effects similar to brainwashing—generally mild brainwashing, but brainwashing nevertheless.

He said that these can go damagingly to work on many of us because the ideals and ideas and beliefs which help determine the quality of personhood do not have time to become clear and to mature.

He contended—and this comes out of his work in psychiatry—that without time for reflection and contemplation, without time for honest self-examination, without time for inner conversation with oneself, a person is unlikely to achieve a healthy degree of fulfilment.

He warned that the excessive stimulations of life in our time deprive us of much of the rest and quiet and privacy which are necessary for the stabilizing and strengthening of personality and character. (Marshall McLuhan pointed up the nature of this condition when he said, "Everything descends upon us from everywhere all at once.")

Meerloo went on from his analysis of brainwashing to a discussion of methods of protection against it. He reported that in his investigations he discovered that the brainwashers find it very difficult to do their dreadful work on persons who have an active, realistic faith in God.

The conclusion here, then, is that personality and character can be strengthened and protected by faith. Some expressions of faith, some approaches in religion, are, of course, in some ways exercises in brainwashing and can be destructive of personality and character.

There is evidence that the playing on infantile guilt feelings—according to Meerloo, the raw material for brainwashing—helps make for the damaging rigidities of religious fanaticism.

But other approaches in religion—such as the way of liberation biblical faith as expressed in Judaism and Christianity when they are true to their foundations—are creative and life-affirming, making for strength of personality and character.

Food crisis 'still remains'

OTTAWA (CP) — Delegates to the World Food Council wound up their annual ministerial conference Friday satisfied that some progress had been made toward providing food for one billion people in need.

But officials agreed that translating commitments into action would require a new test of will by governments in a world that has seen three of every five children die from malnutrition before the age of five.

"No we're not satisfied," said executive director Maurice Williams when asked about the council's efforts since its creation five years ago. "But we're satisfied that progress is being made."

Council president Arturo R. Tanco, agriculture minister of The Philippines, said the group's four-day meeting saw general agreement for the first time that food production has to be given top priority in developing countries.

There was also widespread agreement that a new food aid convention providing for at least 10 million tons of grain should be negotiated quickly, without waiting for roadblocks in the way of a new international wheat agreement to be overcome.

The 36-member council oversees the world food situation for the United Nations and seeks solutions to the problems of hunger and malnutrition.

"No right is more fundamental than the right to food and no goal more urgent than the goal of overcoming the hunger of a billion people," the council declared.

A typical strategy would cover problems as diverse as farm credit and nutrition and would focus administrative and political efforts on improving every aspect of the food cycle from farmer to consumer.

Chinese archives opened

The Chinese Consolidated Benevolent Association is organizing an exhibition of Chinese archives and photos to be held Oct 20 to 29.

The exhibition is one of the programs marking the 95th anniversary of the association and the 70th anniversary of the Chinese Public School.

It also marks the International Archives Week in Canada (Nov.4-7) and celebrates Heritage Canada's annual meeting, to be held in Victoria Oct. 17-21.

The exhibition will be financially assisted by the Ministry of State Multiculturalism.

Dr. David Lai of the University of Victoria will be homorary consultant in charge of organizing the exhibit. T. Low, R. Dang and A. Ku have been engaged to help in the organization.

People who have archival materials or photographs concerning Chinese in Canada and wish to give, lend or sell them to the association should comtact association president Peter Lou Poy or Lai.

NICKEL AND DIME phone is now a relic, as B.C. Tel replaces its pay phones with single-slot models. But the refurbished, three-slotted phones are available as home models as part of the company's sale of shell program where the customer buys the outer housing of the phone and the company retains responsibility for the inner workings of the equipment. The sets have been modified so coins aren't required to make a call, but the bells still ring if a coin is dropped in. However, to have a nickel and dime phone of one's own costs more than nickels and dimes — $99, to be exact.

Woodstock reunion set

BROOKHAVEN, N.Y. (UPI) — About 2,000 people — the vanguard of an expected throng of 40,000 — began gathering early today in a Suffolk County glen to attend a "mini" rock concert and rekindle their decade-old memories of the Woodstock Festival.

The Reunion Concert, billed by promoters as a celebration of the 10th anniversary of Woodstock, is expected to draw about 40,000 sentimental rock aficionados to Parr Meadow in Brookhaven, Long Island, to hear 10 of the top-billed groups that played the heralded "happening" in 1969.

Police said carloads of people began streaming into the area about 2 a.m., and for a while had caused a major traffic tie-up on William Floyd Parkway in Brookhaven, the sole road leading to the meadow.

Police and concert promoters described the crowd as extremely well behaved.

"They're very peaceful and beautiful — just sleeping in the woods and getting ready to celebrate."

Merry Wives opera here

An Elizabethan comedy of intrigue, flirtation, true love and buffoonery is the stuff of Carl Otto Nicolai's farcical opera, The Merry Wives of Windsor. Of course its source is the incomparable play of the same name in which Shakespeare created that immortal fat knight, Sir John Falstaff.

Performances of Merry Wives will be given by the Pacific Opera Association next week at McPherson Playhouse, Sept. 13 through 16. The opera is being staged and conducted by Timothy Vernon.

The opera's story line remains true to the play with the two wives, Mistress Page and Mistress Ford, consorting together to befool Falstaff, who is courting both of them while imagining that neither one knows of his overtures to the other. The two husbands are also embroiled in the plotting.

The thread of true romance is woven by Page's daughter Anne, whose father plans to betroth her to a rich suitor, ignoring the fact that she is in love with a poor young man.

Throughout the score Nicolai's music reflects the melodic charm and spirit of the overture, which is familiar to most symphony-goers.

Vernon, whose gifted and authoritative conducting of Pacific Opera's 1978 success, The Bartered Bride, brought him an engagement to conduct the work for the Vancouver Opera Association, is currently principal tour conductor for the Canadian Opera Company. He has conducted performances of Rossini's La Cenerentola and other works in Toronto, and was chosen by the VOA to conduct their production of Traviata in Vancouver last spring.

West coast-born and Victoria-raised, Vernon is undoubtedly a major Canadian talent. Trained in Europe at Vienna where he had a distinguished student career, and in Italy, Vernon's strong dramatic gifts, which surfaced in his early teens, undoubtedly have some bearing on his pronounced success in the field of opera.

The Victoria Symphony Orchestra core will accompany the opera.

Before the judge

Two of three men charged with trafficking in marijuana were denied bail Friday in Victoria provincial court by Judge Fred Giles.

Richard John Earl and Darrell Robert Lalonde, both 19 and both of 1322 Blanshard, were ordered detained in custody while 25-year-old Kim Frederick Beith of Prince Rupert was released on $100 cash deposit.

They were charged in connection with the sale of two baggies of marijuana to an undercover police officer for $50 Wednesday.

All three were remanded until next Friday for election of their trial method.

* * *

Also denied bail was 34-year-old Lawrence Stanley Shisler, 2316 Belaire.

Shisler is charged with possession of a stolen ring valued at $4,550.

Defence lawyer Douglas Christie elected trial by judge and jury and a preliminary hearing date of Sept. 19 was set.

Judge Blake Allan fined a 56-year-old sport fisherman $500 and said he considered sending the man to jail.

Robert Archibald Simpson, 2697 Peat, pleaded guilty Monday to selling three salmon caught for sport and resisting a fisheries officer.

Crown counsel John Savage told Allan that fisheries officers began surveillance of Simpson in August after information was received from Tahsis that he was selling fish commercially.

On Aug. 19, officers checked seven fish which Simpson had and secretly marked them with ultra violet material. They followed him the next day to Oakland Fisheries Ltd., 630 Montreal, where he sold three of the fish for $218.60 after giving someone else's commercial licence number.

He was apprehended after the sale but refused to surrender his one-ton truck to the fisheries officers, leading to the second charge.

Savage said the offence of selling sport fish commercially was an extremely difficult one to detect and required surveillance from the moment the fish is caught to the moment it is sold.

Allan delayed sentencing until Friday so that defence lawyer Malcolm McMicken could prepare a submission concerning Simpson's background.

McMicken said his client was the father of nine children, two of whom still resided at home, and had an income of $560 a month. He said Simpson held a "C" commercial fishing licence for groundfish and crabs but lost 42 crab traps in 1978 and 20 more this year near Tofino. Each trap was worth $50, McMicken said.

"This is something which cannot be allowed," Allan said, referring to sports fishermen selling their catch commercially.

He said he would have fined Simpson at least $1,000 if he were a younger man and not in the financial position he was in.

"Mr. Simpson, the court ought to make an example of you," Allan said before levying a $400 fine on the first count and an additional $100 for resisting the officer.

The judge also ordered the forfeiture of the fish but declined to confiscate Simpson's truck as requested by Savage.

Frank Peter Ellis was given a six-month prison term by Giles.

Ellis, 60, pleaded guilty to causing a disturbance by using obscene language on Douglas Street on Thursday.

Crown counsel Don Laughton said Ellis drew a large crowd in the 1600-block by swearing at a passing Victoria police vehicle.

Ellis has a nine-page criminal history including five previous convictions for the same offence this year. He last appeared in court July 31 before Judge William Ostler, who handed him a 45-day jail term.

Laughton suggested the maximum six-month sentence under the Summary Convictions Act to allow Ellis to spend Christmas in jail and "have a warm and comfortable place for the winter."

Two drinking drivers were given six-month jail terms. Neville Hendry Brydges, 48, of 716 Haliburton, and Garry George Brown, 42, of 1776 Old Island Highway, were given the prison terms, Brydges for his sixth drinking-driving conviction since 1967 and second this month and Brown for his fourth since 1971. Brown was also given a two-month, concurrent sentence for failing to appear for court Aug. 14 on other impaired charges.

Fines for drinking driving were David Lindsay Hunt, 29, of 1051 Colville, $500, and Christina Ann Shaw, 20, of 2535 Cranmore, $200. In addition, Hunt was fined $200 for refusing a breath test damand.

Convicted car thief given another chance

A 23-year-old man, whose lawyer asked that he be given a chance to prove he has changed, was given the opportunity Friday by county court Judge F.A. Melvin.

Stuart McLeod Thomson was convicted by a jury of attempted theft of a car worth less than $200 after one hour and 25 minutes deliberation. He had been charged with attempted theft of a car worth more than $200.

Defence counsel Barry Mah Ming said Thomson now lives at home, has a job and has stopped drinking. Crown counsel Robert Mulligan made no submission on sentence.

Judge Melvin suspended sentence and placed Thomson on 12 months probation saying he hoped it would not turn out to be unwarranted.

He directed the prosecution to bring Thomson back before him for sentence if there is a violation of probation or if a new offence is committed.

Thomson was found in an older model station wagon parked beside the Trans-Canada Highway July 27, 1978, in Langford. In his left rear pocket were two pieces of wire which the prosecution suggested were to be used to hot wire the ignition.

A condition of the probation order is that Thomson not drink.

Campers fight youth quota

PENTICTON (CP) — The British Columbia Human Rights Branch is trying to resolve a conflict between the Human Rights Code and restrictions local campground operators have put on the number of young, single persons on their premises.

Representatives of the branch met with operators and RCMP Inspector William Donahue here Thursday to discuss the issue. The restrictions have led to a number of complaints from persons refused admittance to campsites in the Penticton area.

Graham Hope, a branch spokesman, said Friday the meeting helped the two sides gain a better understanding of the problem.

Maurice Guilbault, acting branch director, has promised to review the facts and submit a position paper on behalf of the human rights branch to the campground owners, Hope said.

Hope said campground owners don't want to exclude young, single persons completely but want to limit them to a manageable number.

BERKELEY REPEATS

By John Peters

For the second year in a row, the Berkeley Riots were named champions of the National Chess League. They defeated the Los Angeles Stauntons 4-2 in the final match of the season earlier this summer.

The National Chess League is a unique concept. Twelve cities, each represented by a six-player team, compete by telephone. The inevitable delay in transmitting the moves slows down the games. Good chess is possible, but there is a little difference between National Chess League play and normal tournament chess. For example, if each player uses one hour, the game usually lasts not two hours, but four hours. This is because of time "wasted" in transmitting the moves back and forth. To each of the players it appears that, while he is playing his moves rapidly and using only one hour, his opponent is dawdling and consuming three hours! Success comes to those who curb their impatience and plan ahead on their opponents' time.

The Riots fully deserved their victory. Despite an early-season loss to the Martin Mariettas of Cleveland, they shared first place in the Western Division with Los Angles after six preliminary matches. Then they defeated the Washington Plumbers, the 1976 champions, as Los Angeles eliminated Boston, the other qualifier from the Eastern Division. That set up the final victory over their intra-state rival. Boston beat Washington in a consolation match for third place.

Guards facing napping raps

PAVIA, Italy (AP) — Two policemen who fell asleep while guarding the residence of Interior Minister Virginio Rognoni have been charged with negligence, authorities said.

Police said a passing patrol discovered Giuseppe Dori, 23, and Vincenzo Di Leo, 24, sleeping in their car while they were supposed to be alert for terrorists. The officers said they were relaxed because the minister was not home.

Fall's fashions get varied reviews

MONTREAL (CP) — "I'm not aware that I'm influenced by the past. I don't think about it but feel my clothes are 1979."

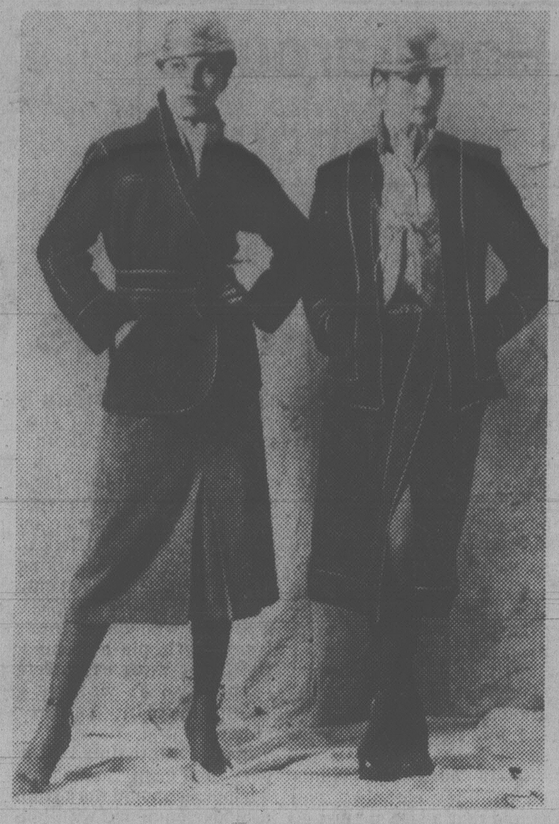
That's Montreal fashion designer John Warden, explaining how he interprets the new looks for fall that have sent the whole industry into a frenzy of either loving or hating them.

Warden is intent on creating clothes that are "lady-like and elegant but not nostalgic."

At recent shows by Canadian fashion designers interpretations of the fall looks differed greatly.

For instance, Toronto designer Hugh Garber favored a lean silhouette and lines that slim the figure. On the other hand, Francois Guenet, Montreal, showed vertical lines in rich fabrics.

Garbriel Levy of Vancouver decided on a casual 1979 flair added to the rigid conservative look of the 1940s.



SUEDE, LEATHER AND TWEED combine in these ensembles. Burgundy suede suit, right, by John Warden has a wrap skirt and cardigan style jacket. Shawl-collared jacket, left, is also burgundy suede and worn with a blending tweed skirt. Hats are gold kid with tiny rolled brims and wispy feathers.

Prime Time series

Prime Time, a Victoria organization for middle-aged women, has developed a series of five educational courses designed for the needs of that age group.

The courses, developed with the help of local education institutions, will help women between 35 and 60 years of age cope with challenges and changes.

Camosun College is offering two courses for women whose children are grown and who find that less of their time is needed at home.

One is called Shifting Gears in Middle Years and offers eight afternoon sessions. The other course, called Change By Choice, is twice weekly seminar-type meetings at a downtown location to plan new directions.

Camosun will also offer evening lectures in financial consciousness-raising and a course on leadership training.

The YM-YWCA will hold a weekly discussion group called A Woman's Middle Years where women can meet and talk about common problems and goals.

For more information call the YWCA, 386-7511 or Camosun, 592-1281. Prime Time will provide financial assistance for women who can't afford the registration fee.

Art of quilting preserved

By MAY E. MAC LEAN

I am always interested in meeting people who are doing craft work even while I am on vacation, and recently I came across a group of ladies who had literally stitched together a patchwork industry that turns out quilts, pillows, clothes and toys.

They call their organization The Appalachian Craftsmen and many of them live in the hills surrounding Huntingdon, West Virginia. Their sewing skills learned as part of a way of life, combined with some impressive marketing techniques, have kept alive a craft as old as their country.

Most of them would be considered as senior citizens and the organization has helped to raise the income level of most of them. As one said, "For many of us, and we are about 130, this is our sole means of support. Few of us can leave home to work, and this is a means of putting butter on our bread."

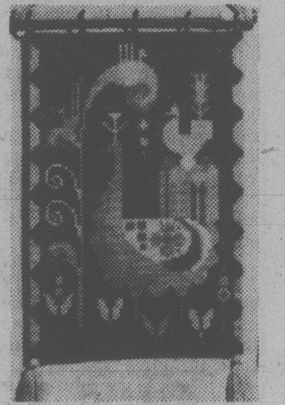
The organization began in 1970 when the Junior League of Huntingdon learned through a community action group about the mountain women who wanted to sell their handmade products and for four years the Junior League helped and supported the group. Today the Appalachian Craftsmen is a non-profit, self-help organization guided by a 15-member board of directors composed of seven craftsmen and eight community representatives.

A variety of beautiful quilts was displayed in both traditional and modern colours, along with skirts and stuffed animals. I found their prices most reasonable for professional hand-done sewing, and everything was fashioned from new fabric.

They also hope to add and to renew their ranks with more sewers, and if a lady would like to join the group and her sewing is not up to their standards, they will work with them until it is.

Many young mothers in the 30-40 age group, I learned, had graduated from these classes and joined the ranks of the craftsmen. As the lady who was showing me around summed it up, "It was a great pity to let the art of quilting die, our aim is to preserve this traditional craft of the mountain women and to extend it's influence."

This week's pattern is a traditional art too, of Norway! Straight stitches on canvas worked over four threads of the canvas, you'll find this type of embroidery work with wool will work up quite quickly, and I think you'll be pleasantly surprised with the ease of it also.



Week's pattern

The colour chart and directions are all on the one leaflet with complete instructions on the finishing also. With the Christmas season not all that far away, perhaps you should be thinking of making a few of your gifts this year.

Doing the Town

With DOROTHY FRASER

Wilson's have BETTER duffles than ever before! . . .

We'd been hearing about the new duffle coats being made for Wilson's here in Canada by L'Elephant Rouge, of Montreal . . . and could hardly wait to see them, and how they compared with the English Gloveralls we're all so familiar with . . . Well, they've arrived at Wilson's now . . . and after seeing them, we've no hesitation in telling you these have everything else beaten by a mile . . . No wonder Wilson's consider them the best on the market! . . . Not to keep you in suspense any longer, these duffles . . . for men as well as women . . . are styled very much like Gloveralls but are of much softer and finer cloth (80% wool and 20% nylon, with the Woolblend mark) . . . beautifully finished and taped inside . . . with zipper closing under the toggles so the front edges won't rub and show signs of wear! . . . Ladies' coats come in either regular or full length . . . the latter length in grey, camel and blue with matching color and white check lining . . . sizes 6 to 16 . . . tagged at $195 . . . The short coats come in the same colors, plus loden green, with green and camel checks inside . . . Sizes go up to 18, and they're priced at $175 . . . Excellent fit, and oh, so warm and cozy! . . . The duffles for men run from 36 to 46 in size . . . come in camel, grey, blue and loden, and cost $180 . . . For the BEST in duffles, see these new ones at . . . W & J Wilson Limited, 1221 Government St., 383-7177 and 1210 Newport Ave., 592-2821.

Fall fashions with a flair! . . .

For weeks now the latest fall fashions have been pouring into Miss Frith's just about every day . . . So if you'd like to have a comprehensive view of what's what for the smartly-dressed woman this new season . . . pay an early visit to Miss Frith's and feast your eyes on the lovely clothes in all categories! . . . You know, of course, that dresses are very important this year . . . so Miss Frith's have bought dresses to suit women of every age . . . for every occasion . . . We were browsing around their stock room the other day watching new merchandise being unpacked . . . Pretty heady experience, we assure you! . . . Noticed a goodly number of those very versatile jacket dresses . . . many in printed triple sheers which look so soft and feminine . . . Whip off the jacket and you've a short-sleeved dress to take you anywhere! . . . We very much admired a wool/polyester jersey dress with a flattering draped neckline and a soft, leather-like belt . . . expensive-looking simplicity, in scarlet or bright blue . . . Another versatile outfit which caught our eye was a 2-pce black ribbon polyester . . . also with a draped neck and gold and black braided belt which you could replace with a tailored one when you wanted to dress it down . . . We love an unusual, all-over pleated wrap dress in either beige with grey-tipped pleating . . . or blue with darker blue . . . Washable, too! . . . Go see the latest at . . . Miss Frith Fashions, 1619 Douglas St., 383-7181.

Foot-flattering Bandolino boots . . .

Boots seem to be getting smarter and smarter every fall . . . as witness the new shipment of Bandolino boots which arrived at Munday's last week . . . The Western influence shows itself in two chic styles . . . "Misty", a deep taupe suede boot with high stacked heel, peaked top and stitched detailing . . . Also in rust calf . . . $100 . . . And "Minta" . . . same heel height but longer in the leg . . . This one comes in saddle calf and rustica, priced at $125 . . . A dressy, ankle-high boot with wide cuff is named "Lotus" . . . It has a high, slender heel and is available in either taupe or dark brown calf at $110 . . . "Renta" is a smart-looking boot, mid-calf cuffed top, high heel and side zipper . . . In taupe suede, chestnut and black calf . . . Also priced at $110 . . . "Largo" is the name of a dressy suede boot with high heel and drawstring at the scalloped top . . . A pull-on boot, it comes in wine, taupe, dark drown, and black suede, at an even $100 . . . All of the above are new patterns this year, and exemplify the latest trends in boot fashions . . . styled and crafted with all the Italian finesse Bandolino is famous for . . . There's one other style called "Nikki" which Munday's have had before, but which is now up-dated with more slender toe . . . It's a high boot with side zipper and gored top . . . mid-heel . . . A good basic boot, smart without being extreme . . . In deep brown and black calf, at $110 . . . Munday's, 1203 Douglas St., 383-2211.

New arrivals from Jaeger . . .

For as many years as we remember, the name "Jaeger" has been synonymous with high quality and impeccable tailoring in British sportswear . . . It used to be just wool . . . but the Jaeger label now appears on garments made of top quality cottons as well as 100% wools! . . . Last week the first of what is to be a large Jaeger shipment from Britain arrived at Eaton's Signature Shop . . . Cotton velveteen jackets . . . single-breasted with two front flap pockets . . . Matching skirts, buttoned down the side and fully lined . . . and blouses to co-ordinate in a fine silky cotton floral print with little round collars and narrow cuffs . . . Colors for all these co-ordinates are olive green, wine and black . . . There are matching 100% wool pants too . . . nice to wear with the velveteen jacket . . . Also from Jaeger, a couple of camel hair suits with shorter belted jacket and straight skirt . . . These are proportioned to be especially good on a shorter figure . . . And a group of 100% cotton corduroys . . . Blazer jacket and button-down-the-front skirt . . . in wine, beige, or green . . . Separate camel hair/wool skirts are slightly A-line . . . From Georges Rech, of Paris, we saw a couple of stunning outfits . . . Black and teal check wool skirt and solid teal wool Chanel-type jacket, in a size 12 . . . Same suit in fuchsia and black would look smashing on a size 10 . . . Beautiful separates by Mondi of West Germany . . . Sweaters and skirts with a really different look! . . . Eaton's Signature Shop, 382-7141, loc. 242.

Every type of lighting at Beston's . . .

When we visited Beston's Lighting Exclusive last week we found a lot of new lamps and fixtures to admire . . . even though Mrs. Beston told us the bulk of their fall merchandise had not yet been put on display . . . There's a really nice selection of early American colonial lamps . . . many with hand-painted designs . . . And Canadian-made ones which are extremely well priced . . . For you people who yearn for a nostalgic look . . . Beston's have solid brass REAL oil lamps with double wicks . . . Fill them with a scented oil and your room will have a delightful aroma as well as a conversation-making source of mood lighting . . . (Great for when the Hydro fails, too!) . . . Create the 30's look with one of the Tiffany-style lamps which are such good take-offs of the sort of lamps people used in their living rooms and dens half a century ago! . . . Coming back to today's world . . . we saw two very pretty off-white ceramic lamps with brass-finished bases and shirred silk shades . . . Two different sizes, suitable for any style decor . . . As far as fixtures are concerned, we thought an antiqued brass chandelier with clear glass brandy snifter shades was truly elegant . . . the sort of thing you can live with for a long time and thoroughly enjoy . . . And for anyone moving into an apartment with smaller scale furniture there's a lovely olive wood chandelier . . . antiqued beige with gold leaf . . . This is an Italian import, and priced at only $195 . . . Beston's Lighting Exclusive, Hillside Shopping Centre, 595-0332.

Head south this winter . . .

Shouldn't be surprised if we were the first person in Victoria to see New Horizon's 1979-80 brochure of fall and winter holidays by air . . . because the postman dropped a package of them off at Paulin's while we were sitting there on Tuesday asking "What's new in tours?" and before they even got a chance to look at it themselves, Paulin's told us what a good firm New Horizons is, and how it's been noted for years for its fine travel programs . . . These fall and winter holidays all head south . . . to Hawaii, Mexico, Nassau, Tahiti, Fiji, Disneyland, Phoenix and Portugal . . . and include cruises to the Caribbean on Norwegian, American, Cunard and Holland America steamship lines . . . There's a good choice of hotels and apartments at whatever destination you choose . . . at prices ranging from budget to de luxe . . . You get all sorts of extras like sight-seeing, entertainment, some meals . . . The brochure contains the dates of departure for these various holiday trips . . . describes the places you're going to, and tells you everything you want to know . . . without having to ask! . . . Just a few random "for instances" re New Horizons holidays . . . Two weeks in Nassau . . . Two weeks in Puerto Vallarta . . . Ditto Waikiki, or Waikiki and Maui . . . or your choice of another island . . . even "Waikiki on a Budget"! . . . Get a brochure from Paulin's and pick your winter holiday NOW . . . Paulin Travel, 532 Broughton St., 382-9168.

It's a wise bride who registers at Eaton's . . .

The more we see and hear of weddings . . . the more impressed we are with the type of service being meted out by Eaton's Bridal Registry . . . and the time and effort it saves everybody concerned in planning for the Big Day . . . So our advice to every girl who hears wedding bells in the offing . . . is to hie herself to the Bridal Consultants' little salon located in the china dept. of Eaton's . . . and there talk over her plans, needs and tastes with one of the consultants who are thoroughly conversant with everything pertaining to weddings . . . and will happily dispense invaluable advice! . . . There, sitting down in privacy and comfort, you can choose your invitations, thank you cards, serviettes, matches, etc. Eaton's will take care of the printing . . . Another thing you should do is register . . . indicate your taste in silver, china, crystal, linens . . . even furniture . . . One of the consultants will help you decide what and how much you need of what . . . even showing you how various patterns look together! . . . Then let word get out among family and friends . . . They'll bless you for your consideration . . . and you, in turn, will rejoice at getting gifts you really want . . . without duplications . . . (not like a friend of ours who received six carving sets, but nary a tumbler!) . . . Eaton's Bridal Registry, 382-7141, loc. 373.

Hand around the house

Insulation not likely the cause of ailments

By A. J. HAND

Q—My neighbors had urea-formaldehyde foam insulation pumped into the walls of their cement block home, about a year ago. Now their two small children have a respiratory infection that has been going on for months. Their pediatrician treats it, but it still persists with stopped up noses and coughing. Could this be connected with the foam? It is thick cement in the walls, and we have never noticed an odor from the foam.—J.R., Clearwater, Fla.

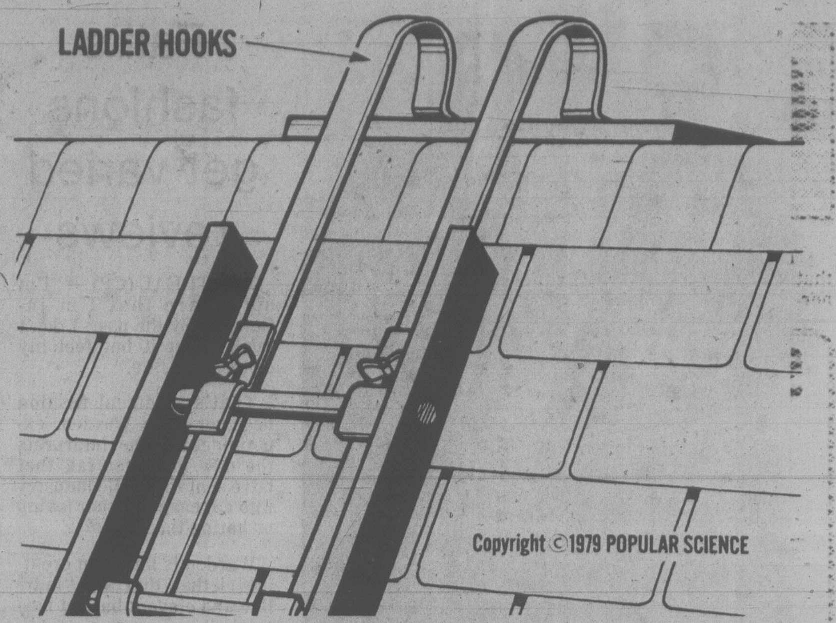
A—I am certainly in no position to diagnose health problems. But I would guess the foam is not to blame. True, U-F foam has caused some problems. But according to the evidence I know of, the trouble occurs when the foam is improperly installed. In that case, the distinctive odor of formaldehyde pervades the home, and in some instances, chemical bronchitis can result.

But since your neighbor can detect no odor, the respiratory problems most likely have another cause. Still, it would be wise of your neighbor to explain her situation to the pediatrician if she has not already done so.

Q—In your recent column on chimney cleaning, you stated that a sweep must go up on the roof. The one sweep I called said he wouldn't go up on my roof because it is slate. What do you suggest?—L.A., New Brunswick, N.J.

A—The main reason for a sweep working from the roof is that it allows him to inspect the chimney. He can clean it very well working from below. If you are only concerned with cleaning, use a sweep who only works from the fireplace opening. But if you want a complete inspection as well as a sweeping, find another sweep.

Since slate roofing is slippery, and easily broken underfoot, he should work from a ladder equipped with ladder hooks as shown in the sketch. That will protect him and your slate roofing.



Copyright ©1979 POPULAR SCIENCE

Q—I bought one of those kits to increase the insulation around my water tank. Now I've heard that adding extra insulation can be dangerous. True or false?—H.W., Boston.

A—Extra insulation can be hazardous, if it is applied incorrectly. According to the Underwriters Labs, the extra insulation may trap enough heat to raise the temperature around electrical components and wiring inside the heater jacket, and around house wiring boxes mounted on the heater. If the heat gets high enough, it can damage insulation.

To prevent this possibility, U.L. says that insulation should not be applied over access covers to water heater controls, or over house wiring terminal boxes. The installion instructions for water heater insulation kits that I have seen warn against covering access plates and boxes, so if you followed your instructions, you should be safe. Better check your work to make sure, however.

A bad twist with pretzels

By DR. FRANK MILLER

DEAR DR. MILLER: Whenever I eat pretzels, I give some to my dog because she is crazy about then, too. Mother says that salt in pretzels is bad for a dog. Why is this.?

—C.R.

DEAR C.R.: Your mother is right. Too much salt is bad for a dog and pretzels make a rather poor dog food anyway, even unsalted ones. Still, dogs do require some salt (more, actually, for their body weight than humans do), so the salt on a pretzel or two for an average- sized healthy dog (without a heart condition, salt may be dangerous in that case) would do no harm. Any salt may be dangerous for a dog with a heart condition.

* * *

DEAR DR. MILLER: Bionic, my rooster, never made it big. That's because he never grew up. He was still very small when the hamstring tendon on the back of his leg slipped and he got so crippled we had to put him to sleep. I had been trying to take extra good care of him. I had even kept him penned up so the cat wouldn't get him. I know he couldn't have gotten injured, so what could I have done to keep this from happening to him? I'd like to know because I'm not sure but my mother might let me get another rooster sometime.

—W.E.

DEAR W.E.: Probably perosis, which is a slippage of the Achilles tendon, was the problem. This is an all-too-common crippling disease of chickens and other domestic fowl. The specific cause is not yet determined but the stronger the legs are, the less likely the condition is to occur. Hence, exercise is important and you would want to figure some way for your next rooster to get plenty of daily exercise — not including being chased by the cat, however. Exercise not only improves the strength of the legs, but it tends to keep the weight down slightly and thus reduced the load they have to carry. That food should, of course, be of good quality and properly balanced.

* * *

DEAR DR. MILLER: Why does a grown cat, Apache in this case, get along so well with other cats, strange ones, and yet he's absolutely terrified of any person other than me. He will run and hide any and every time there is anyone else in the house.

—H.H.

DEAR H.H.: Apache's avoidance of humans would, most likely, indicate he hadn't had any contact, or at least any desirable contact, with humans during his early and important socialization period. If between six and 16 weeks he learned to cope only with cats, he would have great difficulty the rest of his life coping with humans. Some change (modification) in his behavior probably could be achieved with great effort, especially by concentrating on one more human over a period of time. This may not be necessary or even worth the effort, though, since such an acceptance of someone else could be quite tenuous. Any sudden stress would immediately cause Apache to revert to his old isolationism.

Dear Abby

by Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Why is it that if a mother is a tramp, her kids have all kind of respect for her but if she's a good Christian mother they couldn't care less. I've seen it often.

In my case, we have a daughter in college who attended summer school. All the years she was growing up, her father was "too busy" to attend a PTA meeting of any of her school activities. He was in her grade school only once, never in her junior high, and in her senior high school (field house) once — for her graduation.

On the other hand, I've done all the things a "good mother" should do. I attended PTA, was a Brownie leader, made costumes, took her to all the school activities, baked cookies for classroom parties, etc., yet she shows more respect for her father than she does for me.

Although her weekends were free, she didn't come home for Mother's Day until late Sunday afternoon. She had written earlier that she was bringing me a gift. I don't care about the gift; it's just the way things turned out that hurts me. She came home empty-handed, saying "I'm sorry, I didn't have time to buy you anything."

I said. "That's all right, Honey, having you home is all the gift I want."

Then she said, "Well, that's good, because that's all you're going to get."

Father's Day weekend she arrived on Saturday, bringing her Dad a beautiful dress shirt and matching tie!

I ask you Abby, why is it that when I have done so much for her, and her father did so little, she treats him so much better than she treats me?

HURT

DEAR HURT: Perhaps it's because you've always been around and she has taken you for granted. On the other hand, because her father gave so little of himself, and she saw him so seldom, she still considers him a "special treat" and is thrilled by his presence. I'm not justifying her attitude; only attempting to analyze it.

DEAR ABBY: Everyone in our family is bugged about our big-shot brother who is better off financially than any of us.

Three years ago he was asked to contribute equally to our mother's support in a nursing home.

"Oh, sure," he said. "That's peanuts . . . in fact, I'll probably send more than that!"

To date, he has sent exactly zilch! He was reminded twice, and both times he said, "I've been so busy with business it must have slipped my mind." Consequently, the rest of us have upped our share to make up for his, and nobody has asked him for anything since. I say, "Let's call him on it." The rest say, "He knows what he should do. Let him live with it."

Abby, I'm tired of letting him get away with it. What do you think? I'd like to see this in print. Maybe this situation exists in other families, too.

PUZZLED

DEAR PUZZLED: I vote with you. Send Big-Shot Brother a bill every month for his share. He appears to be the kind of person who could "live with it" comfortably and indefinitely.

Here's how to beat anesthesiaphobia

I'm going to have a back operation in about two months. I'm considered an emotionally stable person. Still my greatest fear is not about the operation, but about the anesthesia. Are other people fearful in this way? — Mr. H.D.

Dear Mr. D.:

I have, on a number of occasions, written about the strides made in modern anesthesia that should obliterate fears such as yours. You are not alone in your anxiety. For the fear of the prospect of anesthesia is often greater than the fear of the pain of the operation itself.

Many patients are frightened by the fact that they will be unable to exercise any control during the unconscious period. Others ask, "How will they know that I'm asleep before the operation.?" "Will I die under anesthesia?" "Will I awake too soon?"

These are but a few of the apprehensions of patients who have not had the benefit of today's well-trained, psychologicaly oriented, doctor-anesthesiologist.

The science of anesthesiology has greatly expanded its horizons during the past 30 years. An important part of the finely detailed training of the modern anesthesiologist centers on the emotional need of the patient prior to and after surgery.

Dr. Irving Berlin, head of the Department of Anesthesiology at the Manhattan Eye, Ear and Throat Hospital in New York City, says, "Doctors can readily lend courage to their patients by their understanding and by their caring support during the hours before an operation. The effectiveness of their contribution is evidenced by the calmness with which a patient takes an anesthesia. Armed with a sense of trust and security, the patient falls asleep free from overwhelming anxiety. The post operative period reflects well on the consideration given to a patient prior to surgery."

Let me assure you that along with psychological understanding have come the greatest advances in the safety of the anesthetic drugs that are used. Today's safety record of anesthesia is unparalleled. Many of the gases, such as ether, that used to cause post-operative nausea, have now been replaced by drugs that are more easily tolerated.

During anesthesia, the patient is under the complete control of the anesthesiologist. Surrounded by monitoring devices, the heart, the lungs and the entire vascular system is visualized throughout every moment of the operation.

You would do well to express your anxiety to your surgeon. Through him an appointment might be made with the hospital anesthesiologists who would further add to the sense of security that you seem to need. Fortified with such security, patients can more easily accept their hospital and surgical experience.

My husband thinks I bother him too much about the fact that he is overweight. I agree that sometimes I begin to nag because I'm sure that at his age, 54, his heart could be affected. I know he is worried too because his father was overweight and he died of heart disease when he was 62. Since he reads your column every day maybe you can convince him of the importance of losing weight. — Mrs. G.W.B.

Dear Mrs. B.:

Let's try. No one any longer doubts that loss of weight, physical fitness, well-regulated exercise the absence of tobacco and control of high blood pressure (if it's present) can markedly reduce the occurence of coronary heart disease. A sensible dietary regime aimed at losing weight brings with it the additional benefit in the reduction of cholesterol in the bloodstream, a recognized culprit in causing heart disease.

The impending psychological threat that your husband will not live beyond the age of 62 adds immeasurably to his emotional stress. Perhaps we can convine him that, even at his age, there are a number of important factors that can minimize this possibility so he can live a long, healthy life.

It is astonishing how often mature people will resent the pressure of good advice, even though they are fully aware of how well-motivated it is. To much pressure, or too much nagging, may actually make your husband more resistant to your suggestion. Chances are, however, that when the time becomes ripe, your husband will of his own accord take the first important steps that will undoubtedly prolong his life.

Life expectancy higher for women

Since 1900, a woman's life expectancy at birth has increased 28.8 years, while a man's has risen 23 years in the United States, says the American Council of Life Insurance.

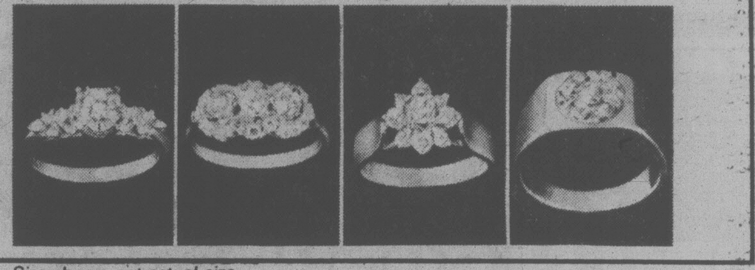
EATON'S
The 4 C's of buying a diamond



Size shown not actual size

Eaton's selection of diamond jewellery is a sparkling experience. But you want to know a bit abut diamonds before you buy one. Here are four important factors. We call them The 4 C's:

The Carat is the term used in weighing a diamond.
There are 100 points to a carat.

The Cut is very important. Properly cut, a diamond captures light and emits "fire".

The Color should be studied too. The closer a diamond is to being colorless, the more valuable it is.

The Clarity should not be forgotten. A diamond with very few natural imperfections is more precious.

The 4 C's . . . Eaton's way of helping you choose the right diamond.

Diamonds, Eaton's Main Floor.

Fine points of pruning

GARDENING

Jack Beastall

A recent column stating that shrubs and trees in local gardens are not pruned in fall (or autumn) because of our climate, has brought requests for articles on the pruning of shrubs mentioned by name.

Most of the plants named in these requests will fall into one or the other group outlined in the previous article, but some of the flowering evergreens are never pruned because the next year's flower growths are immediately below the flowers which have faded.

In the group of deciduous shrubs which are pruned are those which flower before the end of June. These are pruned when most of the blooms have faded and before the new growths appear which will ripen during summer and bear the flowers the following year.

Shrubs which flower in summer are pruned in late winter to early spring, making new growths during the spring and early summer which will carry the flowers for that year.

To follow these instructions we must agree on the exact start and finish of the different seasons which make up the calendar year. All work on plants is based on the seasons and to do it at the wrong season could be detrimental to the plants.

At the start of this week we heard local radio announcers, and the CBC staff in Vancouver, saying "Well, the summer is over, the kids are back at school, and we are settling down to our fall work," apparently not recognizing the fact that the first 22 days of September are the last days of summer.

In all horticultural and agricultural references, winter extends from the Winter Solstice on the 22 December to the Vernal, or Spring, Equinox on the 21 March. Many of our so-called 'early spring' sowings of hardy vegetables are made in March, the end of winter.

Spring follows from the 21 March until the Summer Solstice on June 21, then summer from June 21 until the Autumn Equinox September 22. This leaves the period from September 22 until the Winter Solstice, December 22, as Fall or Autumn, whichever you prefer.

Although the seasons change on these calendar dates, the prevailing weather may continue for a week or more into the next season and prevent the home gardener from doing scheduled work. For this reason the terms 'late winter to early spring' and 'late summer to early fall' are the nearest we can come to a specific time.

PRUNING CLIMBING ROSES: The pruning of climbing roses is a job done in late summer to early fall, that is, from September 15 to 30.

This is a little confusing to some because the shrub roses are pruned during the first three weeks of spring, March 21 to April 15, not in the late summer.

The pruning of the roses which most home gardeners refer to as 'climbers' is often difficult to understand because the varietal names of the roses being grown and the group to which they belong is unknown.

These so-called climbers include two types of Rambler roses, each needing a little different treatment; the climbing sports of the hybrid Tea (HT) bush roses; and the plants referred to as true climbers which are divided according to vigor.

Group 1 includes the true Ramblers which are hybrids of Rosa wichuriana, such as Dorothy Perkins. Pruning of these is not too involved.

It is simply a matter of cutting to ground level all the previous season's growth which has borne flowers. The new growths made in the past summer are retained full length and tied into place to bear flowers next year.

If through dryness at the roots — or adverse growing weather — there is not a good supply of new growths, it is advisable to keep some of the older growths and cut back the laterals to leave two or three eyes at their base.

An explanation of the terms used in pruning may not be out of place at this point.

An "eye" is a dormant growth bud on a main stem, or on any part of a plant. A "lateral" is a side growth from a main stem, and a 'sub-lateral' is a side growth from a lateral.

Group 2 includes Paul's Scarlet and the Alberic Barbier type which make fewer growths from the base of the plant, and a lot of new growths from older wood higher on the plant.

To fill in the base of these plants and get growth lower down, one or two stems may occasionally be reduced to a strong dormant eye 12 to 18 inches above soil level. On the upper parts, old wood is cut back to a strong, new growth and the short laterals reduced to two or three eyes from their base.

Group 3, the vigorous climbers and the climbing sports of the HT bush roses, such as used for walls, pergolas, fences, arches, retain all new growths except when damaged. Prune only to keep within allotted space. Old and exhausted wood is cut out; laterals are trimmed back to a few eyes. No pruning on these the first year after planting.

Group 4 are the least vigorous, used mainly for training on posts and pillars, or to form large, free-standing bushes. These have dead, old, and exhausted wood removed, otherwise only general shaping to keep within bounds. These also must not be pruned the first year after planting because a severe shock can cause them to revert to a dwarf form.

There we have the basics for pruning our so-called climbing roses, simle if you know your plants. If not, a book or two from the public library published by one of the national rose societies will give you these groups and a lot more information on rose pruning.

Of course, you can try to fit your roses into one of these groups according to their habit of growth, then experiment with the pruning and making careful notes on the work done and the effects next year.

When flowers do not materialize the pruning was incorrect, but the plant will compensate for your error and make flowering wood for the year that follows.

All the time you are working on your climbers, remember that the bush and shrub roses are not pruned until late March into early April next year.

Work for week

If changes are planned in arrangement of plants this fall or in general design of garden, make a plan now of the garden as it is before leaf-fall. You will have better idea of where shadows fall.

Water is likely needed at roots of shrubs at foundation of house or other buildings or fences. Check for moisture in soil just below surface which may be lightly dampened by recent showers.

Don't neglect use of vegetables just because weather is cooler and soil may be damp. Late peas and the beans need picking on alternate days to be sure you get maximum benefit from late sowings. Summer squash also must be checked daily for using while in very young stage.

Onions should have been lifted when first rain threatened. If left in, the onions will still be usable but will not keep in storage for winter.

Repot houseplants if they need it, at time of bringing indoors. Some may need only fresh soil, others one size larger pot.

Berry fruit canes are cut down to root level as crop finishes. Keep new canes to be tied in for next year.

James Bay Community School,
140 Oswego Street
Victoria, B.C.
(Activity Room)

The Public is invited to come and present their views on the local school programme — Such questions as:—

1. Why are a significant number of students in our schools "dropping out" either mentally or physically, and consequently trying to enter the adult world unprepared to meet its demands?
2. Should the school system maintain the present scope and quality of its programmes, despite the decline in enrolment?
3. Is there a place for parental participation in the programmes of the schools, in an auxiliary or advisory capacity?
4. If we were to return to the basics, just what are they?

The Globe going national, via satellite

By ROB WILSON
Written for United Press Canada

For decades — even before it amalgamated with the Mail and Empire — the Globe called itself Canada's national newspaper.

"We have been national," says executive editor Cameron Smith, "in the sense that that's how we write it. Our problem has been how to get it to the people."

That problem could be no more, starting in early 1980, when the Globe and Mail introduces satellite transmission to regional printing and distribution centres and launches a truly national edition.

Plans call for a national edition to be transmitted by satellite to Calgary, starting in late spring. From there, the newspaper will be distributed through Alberta and B.C., and possibly east to Winnipeg, to reach subscribers by early morning.

The Calgary operation is expected to be followed by a regional printing plant in the east, about one year later. Ottawa and Montreal are the two eastern sites being considered.

The scheme has yet to go before the board of directors of FP Publications, owners of the Globe, but they are expected to give their approval.

Transmitting the Globe via satellite to regional printing plants has been in the newspaper's plans for some time, notably since Roy Megarry took over as publisher. On Oct. 25, 1978, the Globe published page one of Corriere Della Sera, Milan, in an experiment that saw the two morning papers exchange front pages via satellite. Montreal's La Presse also took part in the experiment, publishing the front page of Le Figaro of Paris.

At that time, Megarry said the Globe was studying the potential of domestic satellite transmission "because it is consistent with what we want to do as a national newspaper."

Using satellite transmission is expected to be a benefit in dollar terms, too. Distributing the Globe nationally (the "bulldog" edition, which is also available on Toronto streets early in the evening) has been one of the newspaper's greatest problems. Even without delayed airline flights or problems with the post office, some parts of the country don't get the paper until well into the afternoon.

With the satellite system, distribution will be faster, and the increased circulation it is expected to bring should make it more cost efficient.

According to Smith, the satellite system to Calgary will cost $500,000 to $1 million to start up. Upwards of $500,000 will be needed annually to operate earth stations and pay for transmission time.

Megarry continues: "I hope there's something more here than dollars. It's much more than solving the telecommunications problem, much more than solving the post office problem — it goes right to the heart and essence of the newspaper. It really is going to usher in a new era for the Globe. For the first time in our history, the circulation will be truly national."

In the short term, the newspaper hopes to increase its Alberta and B.C. circulation to 50,000 within the next few years. Currently the Globe sells 6,000 copies in the area, plus another 16,000 of the Report on Business.

Transmission of the national edition will be done in late evening, Smith says, and will take about one hour. The newspaper will be between 30 and 40 pages, two sections, including RoB on most days, three sections when there is a tabloid sports section.

Negotiations are still under way with printers, but it would appear the Calgary Herald will be producing the newspaper, Smith says. The reason for going with the Southam-owned Herald, rather than FP's Albertan, is mechanical: the Albertan's presses are designed to handle a narrower paper. Distribution will be handled by the Globe, possibly with some help from the Albertan.

The national edition will also be distributed in eastern Canada, from Toronto.

Smith says, "We're looking for a national edition to be out this fall. We'd like to set it up prior to the satellite system. But it would still have to have the bulldog edition's early deadline to catch aeroplanes .... I don't know if we can mechanically get a national edition out this fall. If we can we will — then, boom, in the spring."

Rob Wilson covers the media beat for Marketing Magazine.

Obscene caller hit

PORTLAND, ORE. (AP) — A man who admitted making between 2,000 and 3,000 obscene telephone calls to women in the Portland area was sentenced on Thursday to five years in prison.

Lloyd Blowers, 22, of Portland, said he made the calls during a two-year period ending in May.

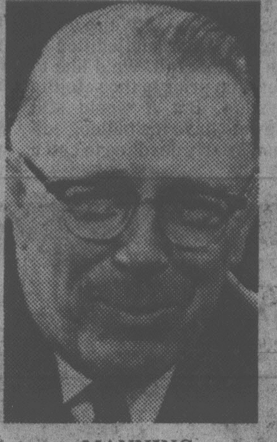
Original station drops Bible program



MANNING

CALGARY (CP) — The Back to the Bible Hour, the Sunday-morning religious radio program that first provided a platform for two of Alberta's political giants, William Aberhart and Ernest Manning, went quietly off the air on its original station recently after 54 years.

Station CFCN in Calgary broadcast the program for the last time Aug. 26, because of a disagreement over its time slot.

The Back to the Bible Corp. wanted it to remain at its traditional 7:30 a.m. Sunday time, but the station's operators wanted to bump it back an hour to make way for a music and information program which it was felt would attract a larger audience. Unable to accept the change, the corporation decided not to renew its contract option.

The program, however, still is being broadcast across Western Canada through syndication on 49 other stations. Corporation chairman Orvis Kennedy said in an interview from Edmonton the organization is casting about for another station in the city.

Back to the Bible first went on the air in the fall of 1925 when Aberhart, a Calgary school teacher, convinced his friend W. W. Grant, who operated CFCN, that the young medium of radio should be used for spreading the gospel.

"Bible Bill" Aberhart not only conducted Bible studies but began to use the program as a platform for spellbinding attacks on big business that formed the basis for the provincial Social Credit movement which came to power in 1935.

Aberhart, who became the province's first Social Credit premier, continued on the show until his death in 1943, when his spot, both behind the mike and in the premier's office, was taken by his protege Ernest Manning.

Manning, who resigned as premier in 1968 and was named to the Senate in 1970, continues as the program's host after 36 years.

Kennedy said little has changed on the Back to Bible Hour since its inception.

Manning, said Kennedy, uses his experiences in politics and world affairs to add relevance to his analysis of the Bible.

Vern Rombough, CFCN program manager, said the show's audience ratings have been "continually declining, especially among older people between the ages of 50 to 64."

Contract out for cowboys

CALGARY (CP) — The Calgary Exhibition and Stampede Board has ratified a two-year contract with the North American Finals Rodeo Commission to supply cowboys for the annual event.

Stampede director Marshall Copithorne said the contract is similar to the letter of agreement signed this year, when the rodeo commission took over the contract from the Canadian Rodeo Cowboys' Association. The association, a longtime supplier for the Stampede, failed to reach a contract agreement.

The rodeo commission, based in Billings, Mont., has until Sept. 30 to make its views on the contract known to the Stampede board.

The Prairies

Letter aired

SASKATOON (CP) — City council has made public a letter from a citizen who said he would shoot city policemen if they went on strike during last month's labor dispute with the city.

City prosecutor Ben Wolff is studying implications of the letter, dated Aug. 18, in which the man said he would form vigilante committees to maintain law and order.

Games backing

CALGARY (CP) — Despite initial reservations, the provincial government has endorsed a plan by the Calgary Olympic Development Association to bring the 1988 Winter Games to Calgary, Bob Nivens, the group's vice-president said.

Blamed in death

THOMPSON, Man. (CP) — Aurora Quarrying Ltd. has been fined $1,000 in connection with a mining accident which took the life of Jean Guy Dugas, 26, Feb. 1, 1977.

Provincial Judge Neil MacPhie, at a recent court session, found the company guilty "in law and in fact" for failing to maintain a raise climber in safe operating condition. The charge was laid under a section of the Manitoba Mines Act.

Park on perk

SWIFT CURRENT, Sask. (CP) — The federal government has agreed in principle to develop Grasslands National Park in the Val Marie-Killdeer area south of here, says Zachary Douglas, executive assistant to Reg Gross, Saskatchewan minister of tourism and renewable resources.

Killed father

BATTLEFORD, Sask. (CP) — Ernest Russell Antoine, 20, of the Poundmaker reserve was sentenced in Court of Queen's Bench to two years less a day in jail for the beating-death of his father.

Antoine had pleaded guilty to a charge of manslaughter after Louis Antoine, 63, was killed last April 12 in the Antoine home on the reserve.

'Harassment'

WINNIPEG (CP) — Sexual harassment of working women by their bosses appears to be widespread in Winnipeg, concludes a federally-funded study by Women Against Sexual Harassment.

A spokesperson for the group, Debbie Wuziak, says 25 women were interviewed during the 13-week study.

"The majority of the women interviewed had at least one experience where they were harassed by either male co-workers or a male boss," Wuziak said.

Nix on annex!

ST. ALBERT, Alta. (CP) — St. Albert would support a metro government for the Edmonton region, but will fight a bid to be annexed by Edmonton, St. Albert Mayor Ron Harvey says.

"There is no crisis that supports annexation," said Harvey, whose community of 25,000 lies just northwest of here.

Thanks to Elmer

REGINA (CP) — The University of Regina has received a bequest of $75,500 from the estate of Elmer Shaw, an Abernethy, Sask., district farmer, the university said in a news release.

The money will be used for bursaries.

Post for Baron

REGINA (CP) — Don Baron, a former editor of Country Guide and a director of CBC TV agriculture and resouces reporting, is the new executive director of the Palliser Wheat Growers Association, the association announced.

Rat-a-tat-tat!

De WINTON, Alta. (CP) — Alberta's status as a rat-free province is being theatened by sightings of what authorities suspect might be domesticated laboratory rats set free in this area in early summer.

Twelve predominantly white rats have been killed by municipal exterminators, rifle-toting farmers and dogs in what one official said is the worst rat infestation in the Alberta interior this year.

"There could still be more in the area," warned Bill Jackson, an agricultural fieldman with the Municipal District of Foothills.

Rats found just south of De Winton, about 20 kilometres south of Calgary, were of the Chester Beady Hooded variety, a strain of the Norway rat common in scientific research.

Sod is still being laid on and around Brandon's new school

Students gopher class underground

BRANDON, Man. (CP) — After their first day in Brandon's new underground school, teachers and students say it's really no different from going to school anywhere else.

"It's so bright that I just don't think about it being underground," says Diana Cruise, a grade 4 and 5 teacher in the new Riverheights school.

The school has been built into the hillside of a growing Brandon subdivision. Its design — 75-per-cent underground — is expected to conserve energy and eliminate vandalism and heavy weathering.

Teacher Russ Roney says that when most people think of underground they imagine mines and tunnels. But the new school, with its vibrant yellow walls and rows of fluorescent lighting, is far from a darkened cave.

Principal Harold Stewart says, "You'll never get a sense of claustrophobia in the building."

Many of the school's students agree, although some say being underground is different.

"You feel lower . . . you don't feel as high," says Grade 7 pupil Denis Gauthier.

Classmate Laura Lehmann says she misses being able to look out windows to see if it's raining.

But she is pleased to be part of a school with such notoriety.

"I like it since they say it's the only underground school in Canada," she says.

The school has partial classroom walls with huge circular windows. A person standing in the centre of the school can look through windows in three consecutive walls and see the other end of the building or look straight up at a skylight.

It can accommodate 725 students, but at present 435 from kindergarten to Grade 9 are enrolled.

The underground, or "low profile" design also saves land, although saving land is not crucial in this instance. The school is surrounded by about seven acres of park.

Atop the school there will be an acre of playground. Some doorways and corners stand about 2.5 metres above ground.

The National Research Council is monitoring the building to determine how much energy it will save.

The building has other energy-conserving features, such as timers that turn off electrical features such as heating and parking-lot plugs when the building isn't in use.

The school initially was to be completed in the fall of 1978, but was delayed because of a construction strike last summer.

Sod is still being laid outside and some construction is going on inside. Stewart says he expects all classrooms to be finished by the end of the week and the rest of the school by the end of next month.

Manitoba students' car wins international prize

WINNIPEG (CP) — A team of engineering students who won an international competition for innovative automobile design and operation was honored Friday by the Manitoba government.

Finance Minister Don Craik congratulated the students at a special news conference at the University of Manitoba.

Craik, honorary team chairman, said the victory was "a most impressive accomplishment." The province contributed more than 15 per cent of the funds for the $62,000 project.

Winning was especially sweet for the students because they didn't get a chance to test drive the car before the competition, said technical director Jim Horner.

Last-minute complications caused delays which forced the students to forego the road test if they were to reach the competition site at Milford, Mich., on time.

On arrival, the team worked around the clock for three days to get the diesel-powered car into top shape, Horner said.

"By the fourth day, things were going well. We had all the little hitches ironed out. But, over-all, we didn't get much sleep."

The University of Manitoba team is the first Canadian entry to win at the biennial student competitions on relevant engineering in seven years, Horner said. A University of British Columbia entry won in 1972.

Alps-to-Rockies help?

EDMONTON (CP) — The West German state of Bavaria can help Alberta establish a strong base of high-technology industry, Anton Jaumann, Bavarian state minister for economics and transport, said.

Jaumann, visiting here to promote trade between Alberta and Bavaria, said his country's expertise in such areas as electronics and engineering could boost Alberta exports. Last year, Alberta exported $5.8 million worth of goods to the Federal Republic of Germany.

City, Indians woo minister

PRINCE ALBERT (CP) — Mayor Mac Pereverzoff recently met with Indian Affairs Minister Jake Epp regarding the possible location of an Indian reserve within city limits.

The Peter Ballantyne band is negotiating with the federal government for title to the 49-acre site, but the city has maintained it will accept a reserve within city limits only if the reserve is subject to municipal laws. The band says reserve must be subject to band law only.

A prepared statement released by the Peter Ballantyne band and the council of the Prince Albert District chiefs includes a copy of a letter dated June 25 in which Epp acknowledged receiving "detailed briefing notes" prepared by the band.

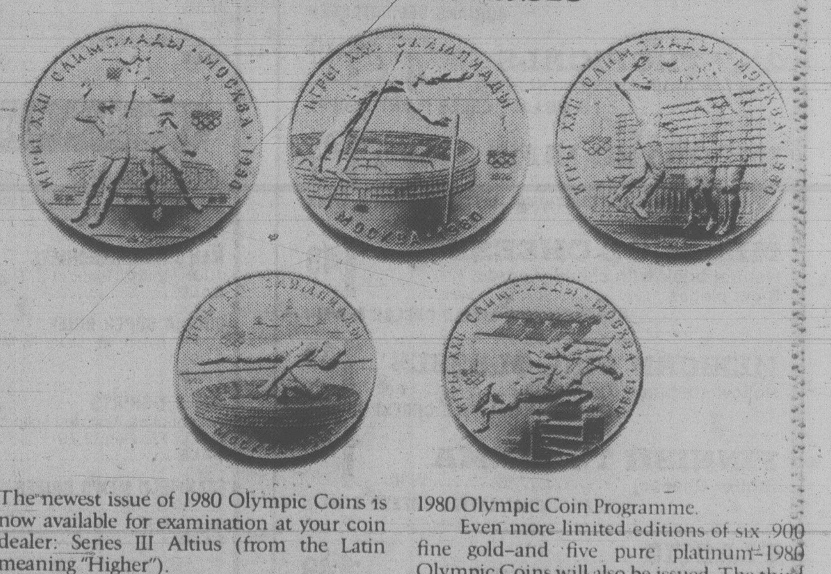
Series III-the latest limited issue of solid silver 1980 Olympic Coins-is now available



The newest issue of 1980 Olympic Coins is now available for examination at your coin dealer: Series III Altius (from the Latin meaning "Higher").

- These Coins commemorate the first Olympic Games ever held in the USSR.
- These are the first silver Rouble Coins minted in over half a century.
- They are legal tender in the Soviet Union, backed by the Government of the USSR for their full face value established by the prevailing official rate of exchange in the Soviet Union for use as is authorized by Acts of the Soviet Authorities.
- These beautiful .900 fine silver Coins are being minted in such limited quantity that only a fraction of 1976 Canadian Olympic Coin collectors will be able to own them.

A small number of Series II Citius Coins may still be obtained. If your dealer is out of stock, ask him to contact the Moscow 1980 Olympic Coin Programme.

Even more limited editions of six .900 fine gold–and five pure platinum–1980 Olympic Coins will also be issued. The third gold–and the second platinum–Coin are now available.

These are the first platinum Olympic Coins ever minted, and the first matched Collection of gold Olympic Coins ever issued by the Government of a host country.

Be sure to examine these issues at your coin dealer now–while supplies last.

Stutter trials finally over

Justice was finally served Friday as far as a 30-year-old Salford, England, man is concerned.

Graham Charles Eardley was given a nominal one-day jail sentence by Judge Fred Giles in Victoria provincial court after a bizarre account of what happened was related.

Eardley's nightmare, which included a four-day stay in jail, began Monday morning about 2:20 a.m. when he became involved in an accident on Metchosin Road.

When Colwood RCMP arrived at the scene, they found Eardley in what they described as an "almost incoherent" state.

Duty legal aid lawyer Brian MacKenzie explained to the court that the officers thought Eardley was incoherent because he was drunk when in fact his incoherency was also due to a serious speech impediment.

Police had so much trouble communicating the breath test demand to Eardley that they thought he was being unco-operative and charged him with refusing the demand as well as impaired driving.

To make matters much worse, Eardley was hauled before a justice of the peace later Monday morning because it was a holiday and court was not in session.

Because of his stutter and lack of knowledge about Canadian law and criminal proceedings, he failed to understand what it meant when the justice released him on a $500 cash deposit — a sum he didn't have.

The end result was that he spent four days in custody.

MacKenzie asked Giles to take that into consideration after a guilty plea was entered to the impaired driving charge.

Crown counsel Don Laughton had no opposition to a lenient sentence and asked that the charge of refusing a breath test demand be withdrawn.

NDP firm on saving Petro-Can

HAMILTON (CP) — NDP Leader Ed Broadbent restated Friday his party's intention to bring down the Conservative government and force another federal election to prevent the dissolution of Petro-Canada.

He told students at Hamilton Collegiate Institute his party did not want to provoke another expensive election but was committed to saving the government-owned oil company.

Broadbent also said smoking marijuana should not be an offence under the Criminal Code and he spoke against the government's plans to allow deduction of mortgage interest from income tax.

The NDP leader told the students he favored easing penalties for marijuana use but he did not want to encourage use of the drug.

As someone who enjoys a cigar and the occasional drink of liquor, he said it would be hypocritical to preach against something that is widely-used by members of a younger generation.

Medicare system in danger - Douglas

MOOSE JAW (CP) — Canada's medicare system is in danger, says T. C. Douglas, who as the premier of Saskatchewan introduced Canada's first medicare program.

Douglas, also a former federal NDP leader, told an NDP dinner Friday night that today's medicare is costing too much money and governments are afraid of it. He said many doctors are demanding the right to bill their patients extra.

He called on party supporters to help save medicare.

"You either solve the problem now so it can continue or see the program deterioriate gradually and that would be a tragedy."

Douglas said preventive medicine should receive more attention.

"It is better and cheaper to keep people well than to patch them up after they're half-dead."

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological Forecast for Sunday, September 9, 1979
By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (Mar. 21-Apr. 19): Accent on getting rid of losing proposition. Finish what had been started, then sidetracked. Cycle is favorable for money, adding to possessions, collections. Another Aries is in picture. Close transaction. It would be an error to drag out negotiations.

TAURUS (Apr. 20-May 20): Lunar cycle high — get going, trust judgment, intuitive intellect. Stress independence, originality. New starts succeed; you make valuable contacts. Display originality, creativity. One you care for reciprocates.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Intuition, extrasensory perception are active. Emphasis on mystery, security, temporary confinement. Cancer, Leo, Aquarius persons figure prominently. You learn a secret. Be discreet, play cards close to chest. You will learn in which direction to proceed.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Good lunar aspect coincides now with ability to gain allies, get necessary backing and to transform wishes into realities. Gemini, Sagittarius persons play key roles. Elements of luck and timing ride with you.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Define goals — regain sense of direction. There is room for you at top — and you'll know it. Check details, protect your own interests. Aquarius, Scorpio natives figure in key roles. Be persistent. You are going to be vindicated!

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Accent on desire, language, ability to publish, advertise and promote. Gemini, Sagittarius and another Virgo could figure prominently. Pursue project which enables you to express views in meaningful fashion.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Payments, remodeling, making surroundings more pleasant — these command attention. Taurus, Scorpio and another Libran could play key roles. Reach agreement with close associate, partner or mate. Leave no loose ends. Be positive concerning legal rights.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Obtain hint by reading Libra message. Check fine print, special permissions, loopholes. Accent on joint efforts, partnership, emotional commitment — and marital status. Define terms. See situation as it really exists. Patience now is your ally.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Push ahead with practical affairs. Promote and produce, be ready for additional responsibility, more authority and money. Relationship heats up — nothing is likely to occur halfway. Make a dicision to accept challenge.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Moon aspect coincides with change, variety, creativity, adventure, speculation and children. Aries, Libra natives figure in scenario. Finish what you start. Read Sagittarius message. You receive "notification" which actually adds up to good news.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Obstacle should be regarded as healthy challenge. Make new start, exercise independence of thought and action. You can hammer out agreement which does much for basic security. Leo native can help show the way.

PISCES (Feb. 19-Mar. 20): Accent on relatives, visits, short trips. Cancer, Leo, Aquarius persons figure prominently. Be selective. Ideas are plantiful; select quality. One close to you has hunch that is on target. Be receptive. You will learn by teaching.

IF SEPTEMBER 9 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY . . . You understand trends, polls, cycles. You sense pulse of public. You have wide appeal. People are drawn to you with their problems. September could be your most important month of 1979, a year of challenge, responsibility, financial reward. If single, marriage is in picture. If married, there could be an addition to family. Married or single, you are more independently active in business. Aries, Libra persons play significant roles in your life. You have way of expressing yourself in meaningful, dramatic fashion. You are a humanitarian, but you can be aggressive enough to fight when you feel the cause is right.

Astrological Forecast for Monday, September 10, 1979
By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (Mar. 21-Apr. 19): New approach brings profitable results. Take lead, display courage of convictions. Accent on getting what you need, successfully utilizing material at hand. Leo, Aquarius individuals play key roles. You're due to strike pay dirt.

TAURUS (Apr. 20-May 20): You rise above red tape. Cycle is such that you "win" despite dire predictions. Follow through on intuitive feeling. One who aided you in past will reappear. Know it and be optimistic. You'll have second chance to prove a major point.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Your best qualities surge to forefront. You are provided with special information — clandestine meeting proves beneficial. Highlight humor, versatility, willingness to experiment. Give full play to intellectual curiosity. A call from relative boosts morale.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): A relationship is solidified. Emphasis on fulfillment of desires. If thorough, you locate what had been lost or stolen. Member of opposite sex does care and you'll know it. The number 4 could play key role. Aquarian could make significant contribution.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): If analytical, you discover opening which makes room for you at top. Superior relays message which requires special scrutiny. Gemini, Virgo, Sagittarius natives figure prominently. Be ready for change, opportunity for travel and a variety of sensations.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Accent on special studies, long-range porjects, and a reunion with family member. Taurus, Libra, Scorpio persons figure prominently. Be diplomatic, avoid direct confrontation. You have chance to recoup financial loss.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Give logic equal time with emotions. Accent on money in connection with one close to you, including partner or mate. Steer clear of self-deception, get-rich-quick schemes. Aura of mystery and the occult could prevail.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Gain valuable hint by reading Libra message. Defer to judgment of one who recently proved loyalty. Maintain low profile. Emphasis on production, intensified relationship, possible partnership and legal ramifications of agreement.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Finish rather than initiate project. Take personal survey to obtain pulse of public. Long-range view is essential for ultimate success. Accent on employment, basic services, enlightenment concerning nutrition and health. The number 9 figures prominently.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Creative juices are stimulated. Imprint style, make changes and welcome chance to express love. Young persons play vigorous roles in scenario. You break free from recent confinement. Leo, Aquarius natives figure prominently.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Accent on home, domestic situation, property and special appraisal. Stick with proven material. Older family member is willing to lend benefit of experience. Be receptive, don't permit pride to block progress. You could "wake up" with answers.

PISCES (Feb. 19-Mar. 20): Emphasis on short journey, change of plans due to additional information. Gemini and another Pisces play significant roles. Question of body image is magnified. One who asks many questions may be wasting your time. Be perceptive, selective and conserve energy.

IF SEPTEMBER 10 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY . . . You recently met challenge and proved unique capabilities. You make valuable new contact in October. You are creative, stubborn, independent and an original thinker. You seldom do things halfway — with you, it is all or nothing. Members of opposite sex find you attractive and exasperating. Leo, Aquarius persons play important roles in your life. You are on brink of taking cold plunge into future. Let go of "security blanket."

Toned-up do re me wave of the future?

WINNIPEG (CP) — Two University of Manitoba professors predict that music composers and interpreters will one day be using a 19-tone harmonic scale instead of the traditional 12-tone scale.

Dr. Glenn Swift and Dr. Maurice Yunik say they plan to prove 19-tone music is more logical than either the traditional scale or scales which have as many as 46 tones.

In the hands and minds of gifted composers, the 19-tone system will bring about "far more beautiful music than we have ever known," says Swift.

Gregorian chants and much of the music of the Middle Ages were based on a seven-tone scale, while ancient Greek tunes were based on only five pitches per octave.

Musical systems using 19, 22, 31, 34, 41, or 46 tones, have been investigated by scientists since early this century, the professors say.

In recent years, compositions in 17 or 34 tones have been written in California.

The professors believe 19-tone music is an inevitable and logical course of cultural history.

"But it will take about a century. Much of the time lag will have to do with the fact that we have all grown up with one system and are so used to hearing it."

Just as 12-tone music depended on technological advances a few centuries ago, present-day instruments will have to be modified, Swift says.

To demonstrate possible new technological directions, he and Yunik have devised a trumpet and an electric organ capable of playing the new scales.

They also have turned to computers to help show scientifically how logical 19-tone music is.

"One thing I wanted to do at the beginning is show mathematically why the present 12-tone system came about — that is, why it didn't develop into an 11-tone or 15-tone system from what we had before," Swift says.

A computer expert was assigned to work out a complicated program to check out all possibilities from two tones an octave to 60 tones.

Intricate computer tests bore out the results of a handful of experimenters who had played with the idea through the years — that the 19-tone scale is far and away the best scale.

Bottle standards absurd - designer

TORONTO (CP) — Federal standards proposed to determine the safety of 1.5-litre soft-drink bottles are unreasonable and cannot be met by common pickle jars and drinking glasses, says plastics designer Barclay Livingstone.

Livingstone, who developed a plastic ring to prevent large Coca-Cola bottles from exploding when tipped over, said nobody expects a glass container not to break when dropped onto a hard floor.

"At some point it isn't the industry's concern any more," he said. "It's up to the consumer to try not to drop bottles."

He urged an end to government controls until a study of accidents caused by exploding bottles is done.

Reports of exploding 1.5-litre bottles recently prompted the federal ministry of consumer and corporate affairs to ban the bottles.

The proposed new safety standards, unveiled last Monday, are far stricter than those in Japan, where most research in the field has been done, Livingstone said.

To pass inspection, the fragments of a bottle dropped from a height of 90 centimetres, in the horizontal position, would have to remain within a rectangle covering one-quarter of a square metre.

Livingstone said Japan has the toughest regulations in the world and requires 95 per cent of the fragments to remain within a circle covering three square metres.

"Putting it in a rectangle rather than a circle makes no sense either," Livingstone said.

He demonstrated at a news conference that ketchup bottles, pickle bottles and other common containers would fail the proposed drop test.

A break-proof plastic-coated container could pass the test, Livingstone said, but it would add 20 or 30 cents to the cost of a bottle of ketchup.

"Consumers should have some say about whether they think it's worth it," he said.

"Complaints suggest you're getting one cut person per one million uses of a pop bottle. Your chances in a car are one in 4,000."

Jury must decide if suicide linked

TORONTO (CP) — An Ontario Supreme Court jury is faced with the task of deciding whether a man killed in a 1975 automobile accident is responsible for the subsequent suicide of the man who drove the other car.

Filomena Cotic, 30, of Toronto, widow of Nediljko (Ned) Cotic, a construction worker and subcontractor who hanged himself in his basement 16 months after the car accident, has brought civil action against the estate of Jose Isquierdo.

Isquierdo and his son were killed in the collision.

At issue is whether Cotic, described in psychiatric evidence during the four-day trial as a depressive and manic depressive, killed himself out of guilt over the deaths of the Isquierdos.

Quebec offers jail alternative

QUEBEC (CP) — Starting in November, some minor criminal offences in Quebec will be punishable by periods of enforced community service rather than jail terms, Justice Minister Marc-Andre Bedard announced Friday.

Bedard said an experiment conducted in six regions of the province between April, 1977, and June, 1978, showed that community service "is a workable and promising penal measure which meets a real need where sentencing is concerned."

He said that the option of community service sentences will be available throughout Quebec by next April.

Rather than hand out jail terms for crimes for which the law specifies no minimum sentence, a judge will be able to place individuals who pose no danger to society on probation and order them to perform between 20 and 120 hours of unpaid work for a non-profit organization.

Bedard said the work could consist of taking meals to bed-ridden people, taping books for the blind, cleaning up the environment, and looking after youth recreation or senior citizens.

He said community service will mean a reduction in prison costs and allow delinquents to make amends in a positive way for the harm they have done to society.

Awards given

MONTREAL (CP) — Seventeen persons were honored for distinction in the arts here at the opening of the International Arts Festival, an exhibition of painting and sculpture. Among the recipients on hand were Quebec painter Jean-Paul Lemieux and singer Ginette Reno. Awards were presented in absentia to sculptor Henry Moore, singer Maureen Forrester, skater Toller Cranston and photographer Yousuf Karsh.

Weddings

Anctil — Moore

June 30th at 6 p.m. in St. Aidan's United Church was the scene of a beautiful double-ring ceremony in which Brenda Louise, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Moore exchanged wedding vows with Guy Andre, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Andre Anctil. The ceremony was performed by Reverend J. Rae Allen, who on that day was celebrating his 30th wedding anniversary.

The radiant bride was given in marriage by her father. She was attended by Miss Donna James as maid of honour. Raynette Shafto and Holly Hansen were bridesmaids. Best man was Dr. Dale Doughty and Derek Pocock and Lee Wall were groomsmen. Ushers were Wayne Hall and the groom's brother Daniel Anctil who sang a beautiful song, written by himself especially for the bride and groom on their wedding day. Friends and relatives arrived from various places in Canada, U.S.A. and Mexico.

A reception and dance followed at the Strawberry Vale Hall where Mrs. Celine Taylor gave the toast to the bride. Following a trip to Harrison Hot Springs, Mr and Mrs. Anctil are now residing in Victoria.

Compton — Bird

On August 11, 1979 at 4 p.m. in the Foursquare Gospel Church, Reverend Ron Wallis officiated at a double-ring ceremony between Kimberley Anne, youngest daughter of Pat and Fred Compton of Victoria, and John Robert, son of Helen and Owen Bird of Arnprior, Ontario.

Kim, given in marriage by her father was radiant wearing her mother's white wedding gown and veil of chantilly lace and tulle. The veil was accented with pink and white silk roses, to match those on the marriage bible which she carried. At the collar of her gown, Kim wore a family antique amethyst pin, a gift from her mother and was given a silver pendant to wear by John at the completion of their vows.

Kim was attended by Kelly Chamberlain of Comox, B.C. as maid of honour, and bridesmaids were Yvonne Salter and bride's sister Debbie Lee, both of Victoria. They wore identical floor length pale blue gowns with matching jackets and hats. They carried bouquets of white silk daisies and blue carnations.

John was attended by Jan Huus of Arnprior, Ontario as best man, with Marc Reid of Packenham, Ontario and Ken Keepence of Victoria as ushers. John and his attendants wore tuxedos of pale blue. John wearing a white silk rose and the others wearing white daisy boutonniers.

John's sister-in-law, Lillianne Bird, flutist with the Ottawa Symphony, played during the signing of the register.

Following the ceremony a dinner reception was held at the Esquimalt Curling Club. Toast to the bride was made by Mr. Frank Seddon.

Grandparents who attended the wedding were Mrs. Areta Compton of Calgary, Alberta, and Mr. William Neilson of Victoria. Out of town relatives and friends came from Ottawa, Arnprior and Packenham, Ontario, Viking, Calgary and Carbon, Alberta and Seattle, Washington.

39 PERSONALS

IF YOU ARE PLANNING TO BE married early in 1980 and you would like your wedding to be 'the talk of the town', we would like to hear from you. A unique opportunity to receive an expense paid wedding on stage...from invitations to the reception to the honeymoon! Selection by a panel of judges; wedding to take place January 20, 1980. Please send name, address and photo of bride and groom to Box 1220, Victoria, V8W2S5.

39 PERSONALS

WOULD LIKE TO MEET AN ATtractive, unattached, quiet sensitive nonsmoking girl, midtwenties, who is intelligent, possess a good sense of humour, and takes pride in her personal appearance and physical condition. I'm a gentle person, reasonably attractive. University educated, and in late twenties. I avoid loud aggresive people and am not overly concerned with money. I prefer quiet moments engaged in constructive conversation to wild parties, excessive drinking and dancing. I believe in the phylosophy of deserada and teachings of the Bible but am not a fanatical evangelist or church goer. I no longer believe in pre-martial sex and don't wish to date anyone with an overly promiscuous past, but realize we all make mistakes which can build character. I believe a relationship should be based on mutual love, trust, and respect and problems should be quietly discussed. If you would like to date a person who possess these qualities, please send a photo, honest letter and address to Victoria Press Box 197. I will send you same, and if agreeable we will meet for dinner. Matrimony eventual object if compatable.

INUIT/ESKIMO ART STORE
Soapstone carvings, prints and handicrafts of the Inuit have been recognized as prized possessions. The lack of knowledge of this culture has not produced retail stores south of 60 that have marketed Inuit Arts and Crafts to the most potential. I have recently returned from the N.W.T., where for the past 18 months I have worked with the Inuit Co-operatives in marketing their Arts and Crafts. I have the management and direct sales experience, as well as appraising and personal contact with these native producers, to guarantee unlimited supply of product. I require capital to establish a retail operation in Victoria, to market the Arts and Crafts of the Inuit. This would be an exclusive retail operation offering excellent return on investment. Cash requirment for inventory-100M. Personal resume and further information on request. P. Bateman, Box 343, Sooke, B.C. V0S 1N0. 642-5644 (leave message).

SEMI RETIRED? ROOM FOR GUESTS

Just what out-of-towners dream of in a West Coast country residence. A large, cedar-siding home blended into natural surroundings. Almost 14 acres of trees, rock, springs and meadow. Present owners supervised all construction and built the home with energy conservation in mind. All thermo windows, heatilator fireplace, heavy insulation and a Fisher air-tight stove. Using wood cut on the property, it was not necessary to turn on the heat during last winter! However, the house is fully wired with enough power for a physician or dentist to have a home and office combined. Separate hot water tank and waste disposal serve the lower floor to perfectly lend itself to home occupations. The main floor is quality in every respect, from Moffat eye-level oven to Citation cabinetry. Only 25 minutes from downtown this property must be inspected at the asking price of $160,000.

308 CARDS OF THANKS

With deepest appreciation we wish to express our thanks to all our relatives and friends in the loss of our beloved husband, father, and grandfather, Walter Davis. A special thanks to Dr. Wilson and the nurses at the Cowichan Valley Hospital and the nurses of the Home Care for their assistance and compassion. A special thanks to Reverend P. Ross for a beautiful service. Dorothy Davis and family.

309 IN MEMORIAM

BROOKS - In cherished memory of Lamont, my dearly loved only son, who died as the result of an accident, on September 8, 1968. No one can ever take his place in my heart.

Mother

THEY SHALL GROW NOT OLD AS WE WHO ARE LEFT GROW OLD, AGE SHALL NOT WEARY THEM, NOR THE YEARS CONDEMN, AT THE GOING DOWN OF THE SUN, AND IN THE MORNING, WE WILL REMEMBER THEM.
WITH GRATITUDE, SANDS

The Lord is my Shepherd
I shall not want
He maketh me to lie down in green pastures
He leadeth me beside the still waters
He restoreth my soul
He leadeth me in the path of righteousness for his name sake
Yea though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death
I will fear no evil
For thou art with me, thy rod and thy staff they comfort me
Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies.
Thou anointest my head with oil
My cup runneth over
Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life and I will dwell in the House of the Lord forever.

Vancouver's blunt coroner quits

VANCOUVER (CP) — For the last quarter-century, about 1,000 people have visited Glen McDonald's offices every year, but none of them wanted to.

But none complained about his work.

McDonald, 60, Vancouver's coroner since 1954, has spent his time answering perhaps the most important question of those peoples' lifetimes: why did they die?

Now, he's leaving his Vancouver post for a year overseeing coroners courts in the Okanagan before retiring.

He is proud of the work he has performed, but content to see it end, he said in an interview at the coroner's court near the city's skid road.

"The homicides, the calls at 3 and 4 in the morning (of) 'Get the coroner out.' Going to the rubbie coffee shops. It's been a long time. I don't want to do it anymore.

"I don't want to die here. I don't think coroners should die on the job."

A fully-qualified captain in the merchant marine, McDonald graduated from the University of British Columbia law school after the Second World War and joined the coroner's department. He was named chief Vancouver coroner in 1954.

He was appointed supervising coroner for B.C. in 1969, a post he now will vacate.

Since then he has operated out of his offices adjacent to the Main Street police station. The same building also houses the city morgue — antiseptic tiled rooms which can hold a total of 45 bodies in their refrigerated compartments.

But even that is changing. The city coroner now will operate out of offices in the Pacific Centre tower, and the morgue will split into two departments, McDonald said.

Once the move is completed, homicide and serious crime cases will be handled in a morgue unit at the University of B.C., with other cases handled at Shaughnessy Hospital.

McDonald's job has been to find out what has caused the death of a person, to answer that question for people who cared about the deceased, and in hopes of averting similar deaths in the future.

He's angered many people while uncovering that information, taking them to task from his coroner's court bench.

— The then-department of transport suffered his wrath in 1967 after several tug and fishing boat sinkings.

— The National Parole Board was criticized in 1968 for its treatment of Amelio Joseph Albertini, a 55-year-old prisoner at the Agassiz Mountain Prison who asked for clemency after discovering he was dying of cancer. The request was not granted for two months — Albertini had died a prisoner three days earlier, MacDonald found.

— Psychiatrists were accused of practising "pill parole" in 1972 when a Vancouver psychiatrist was shot and killed in front of her office by a former patient who then killed himself.

— The city police department was criticized in 1973 for spending too much time "searching for stolen bicycles" instead of solving murders. McDonald backed up his claim by offering a $500 reward from his own pocket for the capture of a taxi-driver killer.

—The city council and Fire Chief Armand Konig were hit in 1974 for not enforcing fire regulations.

—And Vancouver General Hospital heard from him last year. People would have to be "blind, deaf and dumb" not to know there were troubles at the hospital, McDonald said.

"You don't win, you merely get the facts out," he said.

A major aspect of the coroner's duties is to make recommendations following an unnatural death, McDonald said. About 33 per cent of the recommendations are later acted on, he said.

Although the recently-adopted Coroners Act instructs coroners juries not to place blame in deaths, McDonald said that once the facts of a case are brought to light, there is no need to attach blame.

"If you say that the death occurred when the man was driving at a 120 miles an hour or had a blood alcohol count of .55, what more do you need to say?" he asked.

Some of McDonald's past recommendations include instituting a system of fines for people who don't use their seatbelts—a practice he argued for in 1964 and which was began more than 10 years later.

He also asked aloud why automobile insurance companies did not pay for driver training courses in 1969. This was adopted in part a few years later.

His 1963 recommendation that the courts set a blood-alcohol reading to combat drinking drivers was also adopted, but McDonald is not pleased with the .08 limit now imposed.

"The level of .08 is an insult to the fact of impairment. There are people who wake up at .15 and drink till they're .25 and go to bed."

A system which proves that the driver is actually impaired enough to hinder his driving ability should be developed, he said.

Severe crisis at blood bank

Worse-than-normal summertime shortages of blood — particularly O group blood — has created a crisis for the Victoria city and district branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society.

The severe shortage has forced postponement of many surgical operations.

Red Cross officials are worried about what will happen should there be a single day of increased demand or one bad attendance at any clinic.

The society has described the need as "great" and "urgent."

In an effort to gain a slight edge on the situation, a beefed-up blood donor team will conduct clinics in Victoria next week.

The team will be at Red Cross House, 2:30-8 p.m. Monday; Victoria City Hall, 10 a.m.-4 p.m. Tuesday; Royal Jubilee Hospital Nurses' Residence, 11 a.m.-5 p.m. Wednesday, and Camosun Interurban Campus, 9:30 a.m.-3:30 p.m. Thursday.

It is hoped that the larger team will be able to keep waiting lines to a minimum.

Anyone needing more information on the clinics should call 382-2213.

Loto pact delayed

B.C. is still a month away from reaching an agreement with Ottawa on the takeover of Loto Canada despite the fact both Alberta and Ontario have signed deals.

Without going into details, Provincial Secretary Hugh Curtis said Friday that there are "some nuances" in B.C.'s position that Ottawa would want to study before an agreement is ratified.

Now that the costly Montreal Olympics debt is paid off, the Conservative government has agreed to turn lotteries over to the provinces.

Curtis said B.C.'s agreement with Ottawa will likely be signed early next month when Minister of State Steven Paproski visits the province.

A national lottery will be continued in some form with proceeds going to the provinces. And it will be administered by the provinces.

Tax dodging fines rise

VANCOUVER (CP) — Revenue officials are chasing an estimated 15,000 British Columbians who have not filed income tax returns, says a one-time policeman who now heads the taxroll identification and compliance unit of the federal taxation branch.

Larry Nicolay says the revenue department is trying to change its approach to delinquent taxpayers by starting fewer prosecutions but trying for big convictions.

"We are particularly after the hard-core delinquent non-filers — those who owe us money but haven't filed a tax return for years, if ever," says Nicolay.

He said there used to be about 50 to 75 prosecutions a year in B.C. but the fines handed out were not enough to be a deterrent.

"Now, you can expect no more than a dozen prosecutions a year — but they will be big ones."

Under the law, if persons owing tax do not file a return and are caught, they could end paying all the tax owed, interest on the money and a penalty of up to half the back taxes. The law also provides for jail terms.

Nicolay said in the past offenders who owed $10,000 in taxes were fined only $250 for not filing. Now revenue officials will be seeking fines of $5,000 and, if fines are not paid, a prison sentence.

An alternative is for the department to arbitrarily decide how much delinquents owe in taxes and order them to pay that amount plus a penalty.

Nicolay says since April, his 14-member B.C. unit has checked through 4,000 files, assessed 72 penalties and laid three charges.

Ferry mishap report near

The results of the Ministry of Transport's informal inquiry into last month's grounding of the Queen of Alberni will be released early next week, Transport Minister Alex Fraser said Friday.

Fraser said findings of the B.C. Ferry Corp.'s internal investigation won't be released until the MoT's report is made public.

The MoT may decide a full formal inquiry is needed, stalling the release of the Ferry Corp.'s report even further.

Fraser said he has talked with federal Transport Minister Don Mazanowski several times on the telephone.

He indicated he knows what Mazanowski's position will be both on the grounding and on the future of boat traffic in Active Pass.

He wouldn't comment further, but hinted the federal position may not be in accord with the provincial one.

Active Pass is a crucial part of the public transportation system of B.C., Fraser said. After ignoring past requests by the province to look into the problems there, Ottawa "may be prepared now to get a handle on it — what the problems are.

But as for that solution, Fraser said he'll respond to what they say as soon as their position is public.

CFAX program wins U.S. award

CFAX Victoria received the Edward R. Murrow award Friday from the Radio-Television News Directors Association for its "compelling" program on alcholism.

In presenting the award in Las Vegas, the news directors association praised CFAX reporter Bev Sinclair for her "superb use of audio tape," letting the people tell their own stories of families touched by the drinking problem in Victoria.

The Murrow award is for "courage and enterprise in reporting and documenting of a significant community problem."

KSFO in San Francisco won a spot news award for coverage of the People's Temple murder-suicides at Jonestown, Guyana.

The award for investigative reporting went to WBBM in Chicago for its inquiry into an educational testing system in Chicago schools.

KCBS of San Francisco won the editorial broadcasting award for its editorial series opposing Proposition 13, the tax-cutting measure later approved by California voters.

Canadian crew urged for barge

OTTAWA (UPC) — The Canadian Labor Congress urged Canadian charterers of a lumber barge tied up for weeks in Nanaimo to replace the Japanese crew with a Canadian one.

The union also protests that the charterers of the Panamanian-registered Douglas Fir, a barge designed for shipping lumber along the Pacific Coast, are "freeloading" on the Canadian economy.

"By registering their barge in Panama, the Canadian charterers have managed to escape taxation and are in effect freeloaders on the Canadian economy," CLC secretary treasurer Donald Montgomery said in a statement Friday, adding that Canadian tow-boat operators have been denied business, resulting in a loss of work for Canadians.

The barge has been tied up since Aug. 25 while union pickets protest the use of an imported crew.

The B.C. Supreme Court, however, has granted the operators an injuction on behalf of the operators, Maple Leaf Shipping and Toko Line Canada Ltd., ordering union members to stop picketing the ship.

Group fights McKenzie plan

A newly formed coalition of Saanich residents is calling for an immediate halt to work on the McKenzie Avenue extension.

The coalition, which formed Friday, also demands a meeting with Highways Minister Alex Fraser.

Garden City Homeowners Association and Marigold Housing Co-operative have banded together to fight the ministry and Saanich, spokesman Patricia Van't Haaff said Friday.

She said the coalition will not settle for a meeting with assistant deputy highways minister Tom Johnston.

And it refuses offers by Saanich Ald. Fred Severson to chair such a meeting.

Plans call for the extension to run from Glanford to Interurban and eventually link the Pat Bay and Trans-Canada Highways.

Saanich recently approved a preliminary design that shifted the extension so it is approximately 95 feet away from the co-op.

None of the residents like the new design.

Homeowners on the west side of the planned extension and co-op members on the east side compared notes Friday and discovered they were being played off against each other, Van't Haaff said.

To avoid meeting co-op members, highways officials would say they had already set up a meeting with the homeowners group and vice versa, she said.

"They have been telling deliberate lies."

Third ferry to stretch

The B.C. ferry Bowen Queen will go into Burrard drydock for minor stretching and engine adjustments Sept. 10.

The vessel, the third to undergo stretching this year, will be out of service until late November.

Bowen Queen's capacity will increase to 70 cars and the vessel will contain four new drive units and two additional engines.

The ferry will be replaced on the Fulford Harbor-Swartz Bay route by the Queen of the Islands which has a 40-car capacity. To eliminate delays, the schedule has been increased to 10 daily round trips from eight.

Similar adjustments were made last spring on the Powell River Queen and Mayne Queen.

Viet poison gas raids claimed by Cambodia

BANGKOK (AP) — The ousted regime of Cambodian Premier Pol Pot charged today that Vietnamese aircraft dropped poisonous gas on Cambodian civilians, killing a number of persons during four separate raids.

The Voice of Democratic Kampuchea, monitored in the Thai capital and believed broadcasting from southern China, also said the Vietnamese are making large-scale preparations for a new offensive in the coming dry season. These include renovation of the Siem Reap airbase in northwestern Cambodia to accommodate Soviet military advisers and Soviet-built MiG military planes, the broadcast said.

Some Western and Thai analysts speculate the Vietnamese may launch an all-out attack to wipe out remnants of the Pol Pot army and insure some stability for the government of President Heng Samrin in Phnom Penh, the Cambodian capital. Vietnamese-backed forces drove out Pol Pot's government and installed Heng Samrin in a military operation nine months ago.

The broadcast claimed that on four occasions in the last two months Vietnamese planes dropped gas north of Kirirom in Kompong Speu province, killing three women, five young boys and a number of other civilians. The charges could not be confirmed by independent sources.

"At Siem Reap airbase, new arrangements have been made to accommodate hundreds of Soviet military advisers and Vietnamese technicians who will renovate the airport for the storage of bombs, weapons and ammunition reserved for Soviet-made MiG planes," the broadcast said.

In a Vietnamese dispatch monitored here, the Soviet-backed Hanoi government claimed that "many groups" of Chinese military planes have violated Vietnamese airspace, aggravating the already tense situation along the border between the two countries.

The official Vietnamese news agency said two of the violations took place last Wednesday when a group of jet fighters intruded eight kilometres into Hoang Lien Son province and another flew into Ha Tuyen province.

"It should be emphasized that these violations of Vietnamese air space by Chinese warplanes coincided with intensified armed provocations, threats of war and psychological warfare activities," the agency said.

Florida fat with drug $billions

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The has federal government launched a new effort to identify who is depositing billions of dollars in cash in Florida banks each year because they believe some of the money comes from drug dealers.

A Treasury Department study of cash movements throughout the United States in 1978 showed 30 of the nation's 37 Federal Reserve offices paid out more money than they took in.

Of the seven offices which took in more deposits than they paid out last year, taking money out of circulation, the Miami and Jacksonville, Fla., offices accounted for almost $3.3 billion, or 77 percent of the nationwide total.

"The study clearly indicates that disproportionately large volumes of currency are flowing into Florida from other states, and, perhaps from other nations," the Treasury said.

Furthermore, the study said the surplus currency was deposited mostly in denominations of $20 and $100 bills.

In Miami alone, the Federal Reserve Office took in $817 million in $100s lasts year and paid out only $144 million.

"From a law enforcement point of view," said Assistant Treasury Secretary Richard Davis, "it is not very surprising in that it corroborates other information about the level of activities in Flordia relating to narcotics and drugs (and) marijuana importations."

"It is everyday knowledge in terms of law enforcement that Florida is the center" (of drug activitiy), Davis said. "Knowing more about the flow of currency, generally, in these large amounts is getting a better idea about the drug trafficker."

The study also showed that Federal Reserve offices in New York, Chicago and Detroit paid out $8 billion more than they took in last year — 55 per cent of the net increase in currency nationwide.

This pattern could indicate that drug dealers are moving large amount of money out of northern cities to pay for drug supplies in Florida, officials said.

Violence continues in Syria

BEIRUT (UPI) — A Lebanese rightist-controlled radio station today reported new violence in the northern Syrian port of Latakia and said the city was paralyzed, with special paratroop units in control of all approach roads.

The state-owned Damascus radio and the official media had no immediate comment on the report, but Western diplomats said the situation in northern Syria was critical.

The Syrian authorities earlier this week reported the killing of several persons in Latakia and admitted the region was hit by a wave of civil strife and unrest. But later statements said the situation was back to normal.

However, the radio station of Lebanon's rightwing Phalangist Party said daily shooting, looting and killing incidents were common in Latakia and other Syrian towns.

It said anti-government demonstrators early today attacked and killed an intelligence officer and wounded three others.

Language champion dies at 86

CAMBRIDGE, England (UPI) — Ivor Richards, who taught successive generations how to analyze literature and promoted a new language in which to write it, died Friday at the age of 86.

The precocious student of the 1920s who became professor of English at Harvard University died at Addenbrooke Hospital, Cambridge, near the university where he studied.

Richards was born in Sandbach, Cheshire, in 1893, and became one of a generation of fiery young critics who left their stamp on literary study.

His Principles of Literary Criticism, published at the age of 28, urged students to analyze the impact of literature rather than its causes, and paved the way for Practical Criticism in 1929, regarded as the most influential university work for students of literature this century.

Unlike his contemporary F.R. Leavis, Richards did not champion authors but set standards of approach, like the minute inspection of poetry, which virtually amounted to a science.

This commitment soon carried Richards into semantics and his collaboration with C.K. Ogden produced a new "science of meaning" in their books The Foundation of Aesthetics and The Meaning of Meaning.

Richards' travels to China in 1929 and to the United States in 1931 as visiting Harvard professor confirmed his horror of student literary standards, and as a panacea he spent many years promulgating "Basic English," a precise international language conceived by Ogden in the 1920s.

He was director of the Harvard Commission on English Language Studies from 1939 to 1944 and professor of English from 1944 to his retirement in 1963.

Richards leaves a wife, Dorothy, whom he married in 1926.

Lynch studies anti-IRA units

DUBLIN (AP) — Prime Minister Jack Lynch's government is considering setting up special anti-terrorist police units along the Irish republic's border with Northern Ireland to combat Irish Republican Army guerrillas, official sources reported Friday.

The Fianna Fail (Soldiers of Destiny) government also is expected to step up communications between the republic's security forces and British military and police units along the rugged 480-kilometre frontier.

The moves followed a five-hour summit meeting between Lynch and British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher in London on Wednesday after the funeral of Earl Mountbatten, assassinated by IRA bombers aboard his yacht off the republic Aug. 27.

The plans are expected to be approved by Lynch's cabinet amid mounting tension in British-ruled Northern Ireland in the wake of the killing of Mountbatten and three companions in the republic and 18 British soldiers in Northern Ireland the same day.

The almost exclusively Roman Catholic IRA is fighting to end British rule in the Protestant-dominated North and reunite the territory with the overwhelmingly Roman Catholic Irish republic.

Lynch's government has been increasingly criticized by Britain for not doing enough to combat the IRA in the republic, where British army commanders and militant Protestants opposed to reclaim the guerrillas find sanctuary. Lynch hotly denies this.

But another key factor behind the Dublin administration's move is to try to head off threatened revenge raids into the republic by so-called Protestant "loyalist" terrorists.

However, Lynch's plans fall far short of the security measures Mrs. Thatcher sought to curb IRA raids launched from the republic and block gun-running routes into Northern Ireland.

Informed sources said the latest Dublin effort apparently came out of some bargaining on security when the two prime ministers met. Mrs. Thatcher dropped her demand that British troops be allowed to chase guerrillast into the republic in return for a bigger security effort along the border.

The Dublin government has some 2,500 troops — about one-third of its regular army — and about 2,000 police officers on the frontier. Officials here say they would need 10 times that number of men to seal the frontier effectively against guerrilla raids.

Lynch has long maintained that Britain should concentrate on finding a political solution to the Northern Ireland problem rather than push for tougher security.

Britain says a political initiative now is futile and that nothing can be achieved until the IRA, and their Protestant rivals, have been smashed.

Informed sources noted, however, that Lynch expects London to launch a new political effort before the end of the year — apparently in return for his promise to security.

But experienced observers of the Northern Ireland conflict, in which nearly 2,000 persons have been killed in the last 10 years, see little prospect that London can budge the million-strong Protestant majority from their refusal to share power in the territory with the 500,000 minority Catholics.

The IRA's militant Provisional wing underlined the tension in the Northern Ireland by warning Thursday that "many more deaths of both British and Irish people" will occur until Britain pulls out of Northern Ireland.

Church unity top issue new archbishop says

CANTERBURY, England (CP) — Bishop Robert Runcie, who is about to become spiritual leader of the world's 65 million Anglicans — including 1.5 million in Canada and three million U.S. Episcopalians, has signalled his aim to promote church unity.

Within hours of being named by Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's office Friday as the 102nd Archbishop of Canterbury, Runchie, 57, told reporters he wants to meet with Pope John Paul and leaders of other churches as soon as possible.

All senior appointments in the Church of England are made through the prime minister's office by the Queen, the temporal head of the church after consultation with church leaders.

Runcie said the time had long passed when the Anglican church could try to solve problems or make statements without relation to other churches.

Church observers see Runcie, who has chaired the Anglican-Orthodox Joint Doctrinal Commission since 1973 and is considered an authority on inter-church relations, as a man highly qualified to pursue church unity.

Runcie, who describes himself as a progressive and has stated liberal views on social topics, will succeed Most Rev. Donald Coggan, 69, who will retire following his 70th birthday next January.

Runcie was ordained 28 years ago after a distinguished career as an army tank commander in the Second World War.

Born Oct. 2, 1921, he is the son of a Scottish electrical engineer and grew up in the English port city of Liverpool. As a Scots Guards tank commander, he won the Military Cross during the advance to the Rhine in March, 1945, for rescuing under fire one of his men trapped in a tank. The next day he blew a German gun which already had knocked out five tanks.

A tall and lean man, Rucie refers to the church as "a most lovable and most infuriating body."

An influential member of the Church of England said the new archbishop also wants to make an early visit to China, where religious activities — especially Roman Catholic and Anglican — are reported to be slowly reemerging.

Runcie, whose seat will be in the picturesque cathedral town of Canterbury, southeast of London, also will have to grapple with other problems such as the role of the English church in a changing world and declining congregations in Britain.

Rt. Rev. Robert Alexander Kennedy Runcie, bishop of the old Roman city of St. Albans, just north of London, since 1970 readily admits that the church today is viewed by many as being wedded to outmoded ideas.

Church sources say he can be expected to seek a meeting with the Pope in the Vatican to discuss important things, the chief being progress toward unity and intercommunion.

The two churches entered into a serious dialogue 10 years ago with the formation of the Anglican-Roman Catholic International Commission.

The commission comprised team of learned theologians has issued three agreed statements on the eucharist, ministry and ordination, and authority. The statements still have to be approved by the Pope and the Archbishop.

The General Synod, or parliament, of the Church of England decided at its winter session that the statements are "sufficiently congruent with Anglican teaching to provide a theological basis for further dialogue."

Another issue is the relationship between the Anglican and Orthodox churches. The Second World War interrupted talks on unity between these two churches but after the war a joint doctrinal commission was formed which has debated doctine, tradition, women priests and other topics.

The commission held its latest meeting a few weeks ago at St. Albans and later declared that its "ultimate aim remains the unity of the churches."

Its statement said: "Our conversations are concerned with the search for a unity in faith. They are not negotiations for immediate full communion.

"When this is understood the discovery of differences on various matters, though distressing, will be seen as a necessary step on the long road towards that unity which God wills for his church."

Pope Shenouda III of Alexandria recently visited Britain, the first Coptic Pope to do so. After talks with Coggan, he announced that they had agreed to open further consultations between their two churches.

The new Archbishop might well take up an invitation made to Coggan to visit the Coptic Church in Egypt.

However, Runcie has some of his most pressing problems at home.

Although there are 29 million baptized Anglicans in Britain, only a small fraction go to church. There has been what is described as a "flight from the pew."

This does not reflect the state of the Anglican Church overseas. In Africa, especially, the number of worshippers is growing.

Bishop Runcie with wife, Lindy

A man who has worked very closely with the church hierarchy says: "I think the major concern of the new Archbishop is the falling off in church attendance. I believe the church is out of touch with the ordinary people. These people feel the church is not relevant.

"The Archbishop needs to trim his committee meetings and his paper work so that he can go out and meet the people."

A major task is to have a united Church of England.

"The church is split right down the middle, with Anglo-Catholics on one side and evangelicals on the other," a close observer of the Anglican scene said.

"Because of this, such important issues as reunion between the Church of England and the Methodist Church, and the ordination of women priests, have been stymied."

Still popular

MONTREAL (CP) — The Man and His World exhibition had almost 3.8 million visitors in 1979, officials report. Attendance at the former site of the Expo 67 world fair was up some 200,000 over 1978.

'Firm diplomacy' to Cuba: Carter

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter said Friday "firm diplomacy, not panic and not exaggeration" is the way to deal with the presence of a Soviet combat brigade in Cuba.

His national security adviser, Zbigniew Brzezinski, called Cuba's President Fidel Castro a Soviet puppet and said Moscow's military support "goes far beyond Cuba's defensive needs."

In a statement he read before reporters and television cameras, Carter said if Moscow expects the United States to be concerned about its sensibilities, his administration has a right to insist that Moscow respect U.S. interests and concerns.

Carter said the Soviet troops do not pose a military threat to the United States. He said the real issue is "the stationing of Soviet troops in the Western Hemisphere in a country which acts as a Soviet proxy" in Africa and elsewhere.

Carter did not specifically demand immediate withdrawal of the troops, which he said may have been in Cuba for "quite a few years."

He said "intensified intelligence efforts" confirmed that 2,000 to 3,000 Soviet troops are there.

Carter did not mention the pending strategic arms limitation treaty with the Soviet Union, which faces new trouble in the U.S. Senate because of the troops in Cuba.

Senator Frank Church (Dem. Idaho), chairman of the foreign relations committee, has said there is no prospect that the Senate will ratify the treaty while Soviet forces remain in Cuba.

Repeating the words of U.S. State Secretary Cyrus Vance, Carter said: "We consider the presence of a Soviet combat brigade in Cuba to be a very serious matter . . . this status quo is not acceptable."

Carter said the purpose of the Soviet unit is not clear. "It is not an assault force," he said. "It does not have airlift or seagoing capabilities and does not have weapons capable of attacking the United States."

He said the unit includes about 40 tanks and some field artillery pieces.

Carter said his administration is pursuing the issue with Moscow. "Let me emphasize that this is a sensitive issue that faces our nation, all of us," he said. "And our nation as a whole must respond, not only with firmness and strength, but also with calm and a sense of proportion. This is a time for firm diplomacy, not panic and not exaggeration."

Faint praise for Carter's missiles

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's plan to deploy the $33-billion MX mobile missile force around "racetrack" courses drew scattered praise in the U.S. Congress, but some criticism that the decision is two years late.

Carter announced Friday that 200 missiles will be mounted on giant transporters and shuffled among about 4,600 blast-proof underground shelters built in racetrack-like patterns on government-owned land in Utah and Nevada.

The 190,000-pound missiles, the largest in the U.S. arsenal, will be armed with 10 warheads each and will be test-fired for the first time in 1983. The weapons are expected to be combat-ready by 1989.

The system is designed to deter a Soviet attack by preventing the Russians from knowing where the missiles are.

Senators John Tower of Texas and Strom Thurmond of South Carolina, senior Republicans on the Senate armed services committee, said they are pleased Carter had reached his decision, but they criticized his two-year delay in ordering the weapon deployed.

Tower called the timing of Carter's announcement "another SALT-selling concession" to win votes for the arms limitation pact with the Soviet Union.

Senator Jake Garn (Rep. Utah) said the decision "is a long-overdue step but (it) is not a panacea for the nation's defence problems nor for defects in the SALT II treaty.' He, too, said the announcement was calculated to boost SALT's chances.

Tower said the racetrack courses will cost about $6 billion more than a vertical-silo shelter system favored by the air force, and called on the armed services committee to examine whether the more-expensive system is worth it and "why it took so long to make the choice."

Castro, Tito win?

HAVANA (UPI) — Cuba and Yugoslavia, bitter opponents during the Conference of Non-Aligned Nations, both claimed to have won the contest for control of the movement which represents more than half of mankind.

The 1,400 delegates to the 6th triennial conference, including about 50 heads of state, government and liberation movements, were scheduled to hear a final round of speeches today before approving a once-controversial Havana Declaration and closing the summit sometime in the late afternoon.

However, a dispute over the radical Arab demand to oust Egypt from the movement for signing a peace treaty with Israel could delay the closing or mar it with harsh arguments.

Sources close to the committee drafting the declaration's final language said about 75 percent of the document was written as of Friday night.

The language was approved by presidents Fidel Castro of Cuba and Josip Broz Tito of Yugoslavia, the key contestants in charges that Havana was trying to alter the movement's basic principles and push it toward its friends in the Soviet Union.

"All I can tell you is we won," said one source close to Tito, the sole surviving founder of the non-aligned movement and key defender of its stands against both U.S and Soviet blocs.

But one Cuban official said Friday that "we won, we really did."

On Thursday, the same Cuban official acknowledged the final wording of the Havana Declaration would be quite different from the language in the first draft, written months ago by Cuba as the summit's host.

But late Friday Burmese Foreign Minister U Myint Maung threatened to withdraw from the movement unless the non-aligned tenets were written into a charter that could never be changed.

Tories eyeing sharp UIC cuts

Only 'basic essentials', secret paper shows

TORONTO (CP) — The federal government is considering sharp reductions in benefits to the unemployed, according the the Toronto Star.

The paper quotes a confidential government document which it says indicates that benefits will be reduced to cover only the basic living essentials for the jobless.

The government also is considering whether seasonal workers and those out of work because of sickness or pregnancy should be allowed to continue collecting unemployment insurance benefits, The Star says.

It says the concept of universal coverage is being reviewed and that Paul McCrossan, Progressive Conservative MP for York-Scarborough, has been assigned by Employment Minister Ron Atkey to draw up a report.

"We're paying out about $500 million a year to people who quit their jobs," The Star quotes McCrossan, an actuary, as saying. "Giving them full benefits is like paying an arsonist to burn down his own house."

The Conservative government wants to improve the insurance features of the plan, simplify it where possible, eliminate inequities and make it more cost-effective, McCrossan is quoted as saying.

The Star quotes the government document as saying that despite amendments, introduced by the previous Liberal governnment intended to contain the expansion of the program, "fundamental concerns remain about the objectives and design of the program."

It quotes McCrossan as saying: "We want to shift away from paying people not to work, and divert money to job creation and paying people to work."

Dief funeral tab totals $485,000

By JIM ROBB
FP News Service

OTTAWA — The cost of former Prime Minister John Diefenbaker's funeral was pegged at $485,000 Friday by a federal official.

Officials of the Secretary of State's department, who were responsible for funeral arrangements and are now getting the bills, say only that they will cost somewhere between $200,000 and $500,000.

The Diefenbaker ceremony was the most expensive state funeral in Canada's history. The cost escalated because of the $100,000 or more spent on the special train that carried Diefenbaker's body, official mourners, and members of the press to Saskatoon for the interment ceremony.

In 1972, only $15,000 was spent on the funeral of former Prime Minister Lester Pearson, a Secretary of State official said.

In 1973, the funeral of former Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent cost $32,500. A special horsedrawn hearse had to be refurbished for the funeral in Quebec City, pushing the cost up.

In 1967, $14,000 was spent on the state funeral for Governor General Georges Vanier.

Gen. Vanier was buried in the Citadel in Quebec City and $8,000 of the cost went to the special train that carried the body to the provincial capital.

Many hidden costs involved in the conduct of such solemn ceremonies cannot be determined.

One source claimed that Via Rail cannibalized every major passenger train to get the best cars for the special Diefenbaker train.

Attention he got . . . plus

Victoria lawyer Ellis Achtem hoped his advertisement would be an attention-getter and it was — but more than he expected.

The ad attracted the attention of applicants, an association of legal secretaries, and the provincial human rights branch.

The city law firm, Achtem and Achtem, needed to replace two long-time secretaries who quit to have babies, and after two months of searching, using agencies and other means, the firm ran a classified ad noting that "termination of gestation periods" had resulted in two vacancies, and suggested that a "knowledge of birth control devices helpful but not essential" to applicants.

Achtem said today his firm received nearly 100 telephone calls and quickly filled not only the two vacancies but also hired a third secretary, a grandmother from Vancouver who was amused by the ad.

Only about half a dozen calls were critical, he said.

Three official complaints have been lodged with the human rights branch, including one by the Victoria Legal Secretaries Association.

Association secretary Roberta White said her group is concerned that the ad discriminated against male secretaries.

She said the association also wrote Achtem asking for a letter of apology and for an apology in the classified section of the Times and Colonist.

"We found the advertisement offensive, in particular the last line which indicates that a knowledge of birth control is helpful but not essential. That more or less indicates that is a qualification for employment, and when it comes to any sort of employment, you can't indicate anything like that."

A spokesman for the human rights branch said an investigation is being conducted, but refused further comment.

Achtem said he had spent three hours with a human rights officer who indicated that the ad was in bad taste but not contrary to the provincial Human Rights Code because "the Human Rights Code does not legislate against bad taste."

He said the ad was not meant to be offensive but certainly produced results.

"We were inundated with phone calls and humorous letters. Of course there were a few expressing displeasure."

Achtem said he is sorry it offended "some of the ladies," because "the last thing I want is lady secretaries picketing my office."

He said the ad weeded out those without a sense of humor which is an asset because "we have a young and friendly place here."

The lawyer said he is prepared to apologize to anyone who found the ad offensive but will not do so in an advertisement.

"It would only add to the notoriety," he said.

Rising interest rates given another push

Canadians face record interest rates next week following a decision by the Bank of Canada Friday night to raise its rate half a point to 12.25 per cent.

This is expected to push the prime lending rate of Canada's private banks to a record 13 per cent and will, in turn, increase the cost of all other short-term loans.

There would also be pressure on the mortgage interest rate, which is currently 11.75 per cent in Victoria. It could go above 12 per cent for only the second time in Victoria's history.

Ken Travers, Victoria manager for the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, said the anticipated increase in the prime lending rate to 13 per cent is necessary to match a similar half-point hike, to the range of 12.5 to 12.75, in the U.S.

Unless Canadian rates are higher, money will flow out of Canada and the dollar will be in further trouble, Travers said.

"These rate increases are mainly designed to protect the dollar. There are other factors but that is the main one. The dollar must be protected."

As a result, all short-term interest rates are virtually certain to increase next week.

"It is too early to tell what will happen to the mortgage rate. It is influenced more by long-term rates," Travers said.

However, this year is the first time the mortgage rate has been below the prime bank rate. When and if the prime bank rate goes to 13 per cent next week, the mortgage rate would be a record 1.25 percentage points below it.

"We are exploring new territory by having the mortgage rate below the prime." Travers said. "This makes forecasting very difficult."

The only thing certain, he said, is that interest rates in Canada must follow those in the U.S. or the dollar will collapse.

Lower interest rates will come to Canada when the rates fall in the United States. Interest rates are rising south of the border to cool off the rate of inflation caused by increases in oil prices.

In Ottawa, Finance Minister John Crosbie said he is unhappy with the Bank of Canada's action but said the new Conservative government is in no position to criticize its bank.

"It is not a question of government policy but a question of the economic state left to us by the previ-

$100,000 nugget found

SYDNEY (UPI) — Two of the new electronic prospectors for gold in Australia have hit it big, finding a 13-pound nugget worth more than $100,000, reports in Sydney said today.

The two Australians, Peter Culverson, 40, an orchard farmer, and Don Peters, 50, a sheep farmer, said they found the nugget by using a metal detector last Sunday at Hill End about 160 kilometres northwest of Sydney.

They refused to disclose exactly where they found the gold beyond saying it was south of Hill End, but admitted their "treasure" is already resting in a bank vault.

Their find, in eastern Australia, came at a time when hundreds of people, most lugging metal detectors, were rushing to the opposite end of the country, to the Western Australia town of Cue, 650 kilometres northeast of Perth.

Reports from Cue told of amateur prospectors hitting pay dirt in the desert terrain. One tourist found a 22-ounce nugget Thursday estimated to be worth $7,000.

And today's readers will be introduced to a whole new world of marvellous inventions.

The major new element in Buck Rogers as written by Jim Lawrence and illustrated by Gray Morrow will be liberal doses of humor, something that was missing from the original.

Cossitt blasts slack security

By JIM ROBB
FP News Service

OTTAWA — A national security time bomb could be ticking away in Canada's parliament buildings, Tom Cossitt, Conservative member of Parliament for Leeds-Grenville, said Friday.

Cossitt revealed that few if any of the 3,000 staff members who work on Parliament hill have been screened when hired, for criminal records or subversive connections.

The MP said in an interview that his information came from a reliable source. He refused to identify the individual.

"The potential for a security breach has existed for many years," Cossitt said.

"Many men and women on the staff of parliament have access, or could easily gain access, to ministers' offices where secret cabinet documents are often filed."

Federal public servants, as distinct from parliament's staff, with access to restricted government information are given a security screening by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police when they are first hired or when promoted into a position that gives them access to confidential material.

A security expert said Friday he considered the RCMP screening to be rudimentary and of little real value in actually exposing individuals who would pose a threat to national security.

Cossitt, however, criticized parliamentary authories for failing to take even that elementary step to tighten security.

The 1969 Mackenzie Royal Commission on national security called for criminal and subversives records check of everyone hired by the federal government.

The recommendation was turned down by the Liberal administration.

New jet set . . . mean, violent

By GEORGE FRANK
Los Angeles Times

Flight attendants — once able to comfort nervous passengers with a smile and a drink — say they are now catching flak from a new and angry breed of air travellers.

The anger, they say, has been building for years. It shows itself in verbal abuse, interference with flight attendants' duties, and outright physical attacks.

Such is the growing concern about such abuse that one union is taking assault cases to court, seeking civil penalties against passengers who assault flight attendants.

"Why should they get beat up?" asks attorney Evans North. "Look, the price of a ticket doesn't give anybody the licence to abuse a flight attendant's body."

For example:

— Vacationers on a flight to Honolulu watched in dismay as a passenger choked a male flight attendant. The incident occurred after the passenger forcefully pinned a female flight attendant against the cabin wall while attempting to kiss her and the male attendant came to her aid.

— On a Braniff International Airways trans-Atlantic flight on June 25, an intoxicated passenger grabbed a flight attendant. She broke away from his grasp. When the flight landed in England the man was arrested by police and fined $100 for being intoxicated.

— On an Eastern Airlines from Atlanta to Hartford, Conn., a passenger became upset with the flight attendant and threw a cup of hot tea on her. She suffered first-degree burns on her stomach.

— On an American Airlines flight between Boston and Detroit, a well-known baseball player became uncontrollable. He intimidated several flight attendants and disrupted the flight. He was fined $500.

— On a flight between Brazil and New York in 1978, a woman became intoxicated and ueverages. She began chasing flight attendants up and down the aisle, spitting in their faces and calling them "pigs." She calmed down only after the co-pilot threatened to handcuff her to the seat.

These are a few of the accounts in reports being received by the Federal Aviation Administration, flight attendant unions and attorneys representing cabin crew members.

"It isn't funny," said one San Diego-based flight attendant who asked not to be identified. "It used to be that passengers were demanding, now they are getting mean."

Masterpiece ties Russia to past

By DAVID WILLIS

KIZHI ISLAND, U.S.S.R. — Our racy hydrofoil, a red hammer and sickle painted on her gleaming white stern, leaned into a final turn . . . and suddenly we were gazing at one of the rarest scenes in the Soviet Union, a panorama virtually untouched since the days of Czar Peter the Great.

Rearing high above us, dark against the blue brilliance of a morning sky, was an immense wooden edifice, high as a modern 10-storey building. From its octagonal base soared a profusion of 22 domes, each standing out against the arched base of the one above it like "the head of a saint enclosed in a halo," as one writer has it.

THE EYE is pulled upward to the biggest dome of all at the top, surmounted by a wooden cross on which seagulls perch.

The axes and chisels of about 80 master craftsmen fashioned it here on Kizhi Island, in Lake Onega, 264 years ago. The domes and frame are held together without a single nail (although nails do secure the 60,000 aspen-wood shingles that cover the domes).

The Kizhi Church of the Transfiguration, together with a slightly smaller church and a belfry beside it, constitutes a masterpiece of ancient Russian wooden architecture, a sculpture of weathered pine that has defied rain and snow and lightning and fire for almost three centuries — a classic piece of the religious Russian past now preserved by the rulers of the atheistic Soviet present.

WHEN THE last piece had been fitted in 1714, Chief Carpenter Nestor (the only name that survives) is said to have hurled his axe into Lake Onega, the second-largest in Europe, with the words:

"There has never been, is not now, and never will be, a church to equal this one."

Perhaps the most breathtaking views are from the wooden belfry. Its octagonal tower, not built until 1870, opens out onto the big church, onto the nine domes of the adjoining Church of the Intercession, and onto vistas of low, green islands scattered across shining expanses of lake.

TODAY THE three buildings, together with a number of other historic wooden houses and churches gathered in a nearby open-air museum, attract tourists from all over the world. They also are being advertised as prime attractions for visitors to the 1980 Olympic Games.

How has something made of wood survived so long? The main enemy is rainwater dripping down the sides and rotting the logs. But Nestor and his men made sure that dozens of strategically placed spouts carried the rainwater clear of the walls.

ON THE SMALL church of the Intercession, built in 1764, two years after Catherine the Great took the throne, spouts are supported by a zigzag frame that circles the church below the domes like embroidery on the edge of a handkerchief.

The same kind of frame is to be seen farther north on the splendid, though smaller, Church of the Dormition, at Kondopoga, built in 1775.

Now Soviet authorities are spraying the Kizhi churches with special preservative compounds, which deaden the wood and lighten it in color.

TO CLIMB narrow ladders through small trapdoors to the top of the Kizhi belfry, and to stand looking out at the unparalleled scene on all sides, is a reminder of the time when this part of Lake Onega was a flourishing trade route, north from Novgorod in the 16th century and Moscow in the 18th.

This is Soviet Karelia, not far from the Finnish border. "Kizhi" itself means "field of games," from the time when the island was the administrative centre of a large surrounding area.

The 22-dome church was a meeting place and headquarters, as well as a place to worship. Hundreds of farmers used to gather on the wooden benches inside.

EARLY IN the 18th century Peter the Great began a series of victories over the Swedes that allowed him to establish St. Petersburg (now Leningrad), his "window on the West." Not far from Kizhi the royal fleets moved northward from the White Sea to the Baltic.

Yet life for the average farmer was hard. Winters are long and bitter here, summers short and mild.

THE CHURCH of the Transfiguration was a "summer" church — it lacked heating and could not be used in winter. The nearby Church of the Intercession is the "winter" church.

Like many jewels, this one needs to be sought out. The traveller from Moscow takes a plane or an overnight train north to Petrozavodsk, a city of about 200,000 people and founded by Peter the Great in 1703 to provide ammunition and weapons for his northern armies.

Each day white-painted hydrofoils or conventional passenger ferries leave the Petrozavodsk piers for the run to Kizhi. The hydrofoil trip takes only 75 minutes.

THE OLDER ferries also operate when the lake is rough in early spring and late autumn. The sea route closes altogether when the really cold weather begins in October.

Once on the island, the visitor hears guides explain the history of the churches. At the height of the season, 500 or more tourists can wait in line for a glimpse inside them.

Lunch is served in a floating restaurant by the main jetty. In the afternoon, visitors are free to wander around the island until the return hydrofoil (or ferry) arrives.

You can play ride 'em cowboy on a guest ranch.
Get in hot water at one of our hot springs.
Or go sailing, sailing up the spectacular Inside Passage.

There's a fall holiday package that's perfect for you.

Tennis anyone? Or how about a round of golf?
If you'd rather be fishing, the big ones are waiting.
Dig gold? You'll love exploring the gold rush country.
If the city is your beat, sample the first class restaurants, interesting shops and diverse cultural activities of our two cities by the sea — Vancouver and Victoria.
British Columbia is one of the best vacation values in the world.
And it's all yours.
So this fall, enjoy it.

Super, Natural British Columbia, Canada.
